Trans-Jordan Ends Its War In Armistice With Israel

Bunche Gives Peace Dinner After Old Enemies Sign in Rhodes Ceremony

Rhodes, April 3 (U.P.).—Four veterans of the Israeli-Trans-Jordan war signed an armistice tonight virtually ending bloodshed in the Holy Land.

The old enemies sat around a table in the Hotel Des Roses with Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, the United Nations acting Palestine mediator, and affixed their names to the document at 7:30 p .m. (12:30 p. m. EST.)

The armistice, representing weeks of tedious, touchy discussions, practically completes Bunche's job in the Middle East. After the ceremony he gave a dinner to celebrate peace in Palestine between Jews and Arabs.

All Except Syria and Iraq

Israel now has signed armistice agreements with Egypt, Lebanon and Trans-Jordan, all the Arab states with which she once warred except Syria and Iraq. Israeli-Syrian negotiations are to open Tuesday in the border village of Metullah with every prospect of success.

Iraq, the lone holdout, has agreed to let Trans-Jordan's Legionnaires replace her irregulars on the central front.

The armistice generally froze Israeli-Trans-Jordan lines established in an earlier truce and set up an Israeli-Trans-Jordan commission to settle future territorial disputes, such as rival claims to Beersheba and coastal areas on the Dead Sea.

It did not, however, mention the Elath coastal strip on the Gulf of Aqaba, whose occupation by Jewish soldiers at one time threatened to disrupt negotiations.

Israel Boundary Straightened

Trans-Jordan will take over the Iraqi sector in Palestine. Here some small concessions have been made to Israel to straighten out her lines and push back the Arabs where they were close to the sea and hampering communications between Haifa and Tel Aviv.

On the other hand Israel agreed to pay the costs of constructing about 12½ miles of first-class roadway for Trans-Jordan and made some concessions in the Hebron-Dead Sea sector.

The demarcation lines set forth in the armistice for the most part were the same as those drawn in the November 30 cease-fire order In the Negev, however, they coincided with existing military posi-

Cabs Returning, New York Strike Violence Abates

New York, April 3 (A.P.).—Taxicabs cruised New York City streets in mounting numbers tonight and outbreaks of violence declined sharply in the third day of a city-wide cab strike.

Police estimated 1374 cabs were rolling in the five boroughs—largest number on the streets at any one time since the walkout began last Friday.

According to police figures, taxi operations were about 20 per cent of normal for a Sunday night. But union authorities claimed the strike was "from 93 to 94 per cent effective."

Three disorderly conduct arrests at sundown were the only reported signs of strike violence

Shostakovich Leaves

New York, April 3 (U.P.).—Dmitri Shostakovich and six other Russian delegates to the recent Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace here, left New York by plane for home today.

Alan Villiers To Speak At Book Luncheon

Alan Villiers, author of "The Set of the Sails", an autobiography which chronicles a life at sea, will speak at the April 6 Book Luncheon, sponsored by The Washington Post.

The luncheon will be in the Presidential Room of the Hotel Statler this Wednesday at 1 p.m.

Industry's 4th In 6 Weeks

Ford Cuts Prices $12 to $120 On Three Lines as Costs Fall

Detroit, April 3 (A.P.).—The Ford Motor Co. fell in line yesterday with a downward price trend in the auto industry and announced reductions from $12 to $120 on Ford, Lincoln and Mercury cars.

The reductions, attributed to "increased availability of materials and the small decrease in prices of some materials," are effective Monday.

Ford car list prices are dropped from $12 to $30; Mercurys from $80 to $120 and all Lincoln and Lincoln Cosmopolitan models are reduced.

Certain truck models are reduced $10 to $40.

Ford's price cut is the fourth in the auto industry in less than six weeks and leaves only Chrysler Corp. of the "Big Three" without any recent reductions. Chrysler raised prices on its 1949 models introduced in February and March.

Ford first reduced prices in January, 1947. These cuts, however, were wiped out by increases the following August when the company settled with the CIO-United Automobile Workers for an 11½-cent hourly pay raise and six paid holidays.

The company boosted its prices again when its 1949 models were introduced last summer and again in late July when the UAW was granted a 13-cent hourly pay increase.

Kaiser-Frazer, youngest of the automobile manufacturers, slashed prices, $198 to $333 last Tuesday.

Two weeks before, Willys-Overland cut prices on all its vehicles $25 to $270.

General Motors, other member of the "Big Three," announced late in February reductions of $10 to $40 on its cars and cuts in truck prices ranging to $150.

Fay to Center Attention on Phone Issue

The United States Attorney's investigation of gambling in Greater Washington will center today on complaints lodged with the Maryland Public Service Commission protesting last week's order for removal of telephones.

It appeared unlikely that the special grand jury would be in session today.

U. S. Attorney George Morris Fay said a member of his staff would be assigned to hear complaints from some 30 telephone subscribers whose phones were ordered taken out because they were suspected of being used illegally.

At the same time, Fay said he would concentrate on protests before the Maryland PSC. He said it "may be necessary to go into District Court" with evidence supporting his request that the telephones be removed.

The PSC told the District Attorney to "satisfy" the complaints of seven gambling suspects, including William "Snags" Lewis—described by Fay as a "big shot" in area gambling circles—or appear at a hearing on the removal within 20 days.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. announced, after the complaints were filed Saturday, that removal would be delayed until after the hearing or until the complaints were satisfied.

In Baltimore, the commission is expected to act on petitions of five Prince Georges County residents.

Those who asked the PSC to restrain the telephone company from cutting off their service include Mrs. Allen Simons and Gilbert Stanton, Bladensburg; Vincent Catalano and the Exterminating and Chemical Service Co., Mount Rainier, and the Capitol Larja Photo Laboratory of Colmar Manor.

Fay ordered the phones disconnected after eight raids 11 days ago, when he said evidence on hand indicated they were being used illegally.

Preliminary hearings for most of the 34 persons arrested during and since the raids are scheduled early next week.

With that in view Fay was asked if indictments could be expected from the special grand jury at any time this week. He said he felt it is "impossible to speculate on the time element at the moment."

Reports that an investigation of the gambling raids and subsequent developments might be under consideration on Capitol Hill could not be pinned down.

Senator McGrath (D., R. I.), chairman of the Senate District Committee, said he "does not feel the committee should inject itself into the matter."

Representative McMillan (D., S. C.), chairman of the House District Committee, said he has not

Fellow Cabbie Says Rowell Named Police

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Cab driver James Rowell definitely identified his assailants as "two plainclothesmen from the vice squad" less than two hours after he was severely beaten at Thomas Circle before dawn January 14, a fellow cab driver said yesterday.

William E. Collins, 29, of 5102 Annapolis rd., Bladensburg, Md., another Yellow Cab driver, said he visited Rowell at Garfield Hospital by request of the company just after the beating.

Except for police, who had been questioning Rowell a few minutes before, and hospital authorities, Collins said he was the first person to talk with the victim.

"He told me he was beaten by two plainclothesmen from the vice squad," Collins said.

Rowell did not give this information to police at the time, Collins added.

"I asked him why he didn't tell police," he said.

"He replied, 'What's the need of doing that? They're cops, too. I'll get them in my own way.'"

Collins said he saw Rowell about three weeks later and asked him "why he had backed down" in his attitude.

"A man has to live, and I've got a family to take care of," Collins said Rowell told him.

Collins' remarks, made in an interview with a reporter for The Washington Post, corroborated testimony of two witnesses before the grand jury Friday. Both Arthur L. Rollins, 3317 23d st. se., another Yellow Cab driver, and Clair M. Martin, 210 Kentucky ave. se., a Yellow Cab dispatcher, had said they told the grand jury Rowell had identified his assailants as plainclothesmen.

New York Arrest Of 16 in Lottery Gang Announced

New York, April 3 (U.P.).—Police announced today they had arrested the 16 members of a policy gang which did a business of $2,500,000 a year, in one of the biggest gambling raids in the city's history.

Six men described as "controllers" and seven men and three women termed "collectors" were arrested. Two automobiles, and policy printing plates, policy slips, payoff sheets and record books found in the cars were confiscated.

Police said the gang distributed 25,000 returns throughout the city every Saturday and did a weekly business amounting to $50,000. All were booked on charges of conspiracy and printing and distributing a lottery.

Mystery Fire in Yard

Stones Greet Negroes Moving Into White Neighborhood Here

Two hours after a Negro family moved into a row house in a Northeast Washington white neighborhood, the house was stoned twice and a trash fire of undetermined origin was discovered in the back yard.

As result, a policeman was assigned yesterday to patrol the neighborhood of the house, 3303 Ames st. ne., in the River Terrace area.

Victim of the stoning was Odis Von Blasingame, an advertising salesman for the newspaper Afro-American, who moved into the Ames st. house with his wife, Georgetta, and 6-month-old son, Odis, jr., about 6:30 p. m. Saturday. They had formerly lived at 3750 Grant st. ne.

The Blasingames reported that two windows were broken in the second barrage of stones.

Mrs. Blasingame said the first indication of neighborhood displeasure came about half an hour after they had moved their furniture into the house.

"I was standing at the front window with my baby, and a friend (Mrs. John Payne of 31 47th st. se.)," she said, "when a man from 3301 ran across the porch to 3305. Then he and a man from that house came and looked in our window.

"I asked them if they would like to come in. They didn't reply, but walked off the porch with one of them saying, "I see niggers are moving in.'"

A short time later, she said, a group of seven or eight men congregated on the lawn of 3301 Ames st., a corner house, and stayed there until it got dark, then they left.

The Blasingames and Paynes were in the basement fixing the refrigerator when a trash fire by the backyard picket fence was discovered.

When Blasingame rushed out with a pail of water to extinguish it, a couple of men standing on the House to Act On Labor Bill After Easter

Rules Committee Expected to Clear Way for Hot Debate Following Recess

By David McConnell
NYHT News Service

The powerful House Rules Committee is expected to clear the way this week for extensive debate soon after members return from a 10-day Easter recess on the Administration-backed bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Law.

Representative E. E. Cox, of Georgia, one of the ranking Democrats on the committee, predicted yesterday the repeal measure will receive an open rule—one which will permit House consideration of unlimited amendments. As the bill now stands it would return Federal labor legislation with a few exceptions to the form of the Wagner Act.

Heavy Schedule Planned

The heavy schedule planned for House action by Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, Democratic majority leader, between now and the recess set for the evening of April 14, is expected to preclude consideration of the labor legislation before Easter. McCormack indicated he plans to call up the repeal bill as soon as the recess ends.

Republicans and Southern Democrats are quietly claiming they control sufficient House votes to block repeal of the controversial measure, but Administration leaders appear confident that in the House, at least, they can beat down much of the opposition.

Pick Up Southern Votes

The House leaders are understood to feel that they can pick up the badly needed votes of at least 50 Southern Democrats by going along with an amendment providing for curbing strikes which create a national emergency or threaten the Nation's health. President Truman has contended that the inherent powers of the President give him that authority without writing it into the Taft-Hartley repealer bill.

Opponents of outright repeal of the labor law currently hope to write into the Administration-sponsored House bill of Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.) many of the Taft-Hartley provisions.

Botanists Find 4000-Yr.-Old Corn In New Mexico

Cambridge, Mass., April 3 (A.P.).—Two Harvard graduate students said today they have tracked down the oldest type of corn.

The botany specialists said they found cobs and pieces of corn in central New Mexico which they figure are more than 4000 years old.

Herbert Dick of Albuquerque, N. Mex., and Carle Earle Smith of St. Petersburg, Fla., weren't looking for corn especially. Their expedition, sent out by Harvard's Peabody Museum, sought traces of an early American man.

Reds Pledge China to War For Russians

Nanking, April 3 (U.P.).—The Chinese Communists said amid peace negotiations with the Nationalists tonight that they would unite the people of China to fight for Russia in any war between the Soviet Union and the North Atlantic Treaty nations.

A Communist broadcast quoted a statement signed by No. 1 Communist Mao Tze-tung and other leftist leaders, denouncing the western treaty and pledging aid to Russia in event of war.

Discussions for settling the 22-year-old civil war between the Reds and the Nationalist government continued behind closed doors in Peiping.

Cease-Fire Proposed

Details of the talks were kept secret, but the government party newspaper Central Daily News said the six-man Nationalist delegation led off with proposals for a cease-fire and the calling of a multi-party political consultation conference.

This report drew an indirect denial from official sources who said the early stages were devoted to mapping an agenda for discussion.

The Communist broadcast tonight said that, in event of war between East and West, even if it should start on the other side of the world, the Communists and their associated "democratic parties" would unite the people to "march forward hand in hand with the ally of China, the Soviet Union."

Treaty Called "Aggressive"

The joint Communist-leftist statement condemned the North Atlantic Treaty as endangering "peace and the security of mankind" by aiming at a "new aggressive world war."

It was signed by Mao and leaders of the Democratic League, which recently moved its headquarters north from Hongkong; the National Democratic Association, peasants-workers groups, and the National Salvation Society.

Meanwhile, travelers from North China reported that more than 3000 university students suspected of anti-Communist thinking have been massed in a huge concentration camp near Peiping.

Thousands of persons—students, former government officials and private individuals—were reported fleeing southward in increasing numbers daily, trying to get into areas still held by the Nationalists.

The refugees journeying to South China travel mostly by rail and bus to Tsinan in Shantung province or to Tangku, the port for Tientsin, and then by ship to government-held cities.

The official military news agency reported that Gen. Lin Piao's Manchurian Communists had arrived in central China and attacked Hsinyang, strategic rail town 100 miles north of Hankow. Lin Piao's troops earlier were reported moving in a southerly direction toward Nanking.

Gen. Liu Po-shen's Communists at the same time were reported attacking Huayuan, 50 miles to the south.

Communist attacks on the Yangtze River port of Anking, 145 miles southwest of Nanking, continued with "increasing fury," the agency said, while a small Nationalist bridgehead at Tuchiao, 50 miles northeast of Anking, was believed to have fallen to the Reds.

Expects Ban to Be Adopted

Knowland to Demand Airing Of Any Plan to Aid Red China

By the United Press

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) said yesterday he will call for a "full dress debate" on the Administration's China policy unless his proposal to bar aid to Communist areas is quickly accepted.

He told a reporter he believes the Senate will adopt, in one form or another, his amendment to the $5,580,000,000 foreign aid bill specifying that 54 million dollars in left-over China aid money be used only in non-Communist areas of China.

"I am concerned that there is any reluctance at all to accept it," he said. "If there is any desire on the part of the Administration to put U. S. funds into Communist areas, I am prepared to demand a full dress debate on our Chinese policy."

Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) reportedly is ready to push an amendment barring U. S. aid to the Netherlands because of Dutch military operations in Indonesia.

The Senate begins its ninth full day of debate on the foreign aid program today. Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he expects final approval of the measure Tuesday, but other Administration leaders said only that they "hope" for passage by midweek.

The House is prepared to take up the measure Thursday, if the Senate acts by then, and pass it in two days. The bill would continue the European recovery program for 15 months, until July 2, 1950.

Technically the entire program lapsed at midnight Saturday when the previous legislation expired. But no real break is expected. Shipments of materials previously purchased are continuing without interruption.

British Prime Minister Clement Attlee sent President Truman a message yesterday expressing Britain's "heartfelt thanks" to the American people on the first anniversary of the signing of the original aid bill.

" . . . During the last year the whole economic scene in western Europe has been transformed to a degree which must astonish all of us when we recall the uncertainties and perils of the immediately preceding years," he said in a statement released by the White House.

He said that progress was due to "the generosity and farsightedness of the people and Government of the United States."

Meanwhile, Chairman Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Service Committee, hit at those opposing any renewal of the recovery program as "modern-day isolationists."

12 Nations Sign Treaty Here Today

Alliance to Solidify Hopes of Averting War or Defeating Any New Aggressor

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Twelve nations which hope their combined strength can prevent a new war—or overcome any aggressor bold enough to move against them—this afternoon will sign one of history's greatest alliances.

The formal alignment of the United States and 11 other non-Communist nations in a North Atlantic Treaty will present a unified stand against any overt move by Russia, the only nation powerful enough to threaten them.

As the Foreign Ministers affix their signatures to the pact in ceremonies which officially open at the Departmental Auditorium at 3 p. m., the dominant question will be: What is Russia's next move?

An answer may be supplied as soon as this week in the United Nations General Assembly, which reconvenes in New York on Tuesday.

To Russia's charges that the pact is a treaty of aggression aimed at her, and violating the U. N. Charter, the pact countries have replied that their alliance is solely for peaceful, collective defense aimed at no particular nation but at "armed aggression."

At today's ceremonies, the peaceful intent of the all-for-one-one-for-all pact is expected to be stressed in short addresses by President Truman, Secretary of State Dean Acheson, and the foreign ministers.

Once signed, the treaty will be submitted for ratification by the United States Senate and the parliaments of Canada, Great Britain, France, Italy, Norway, Denmark, Iceland, Portugal, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

In contrast to the continual round of foreign policy conferences at the State Department all last week, announced activities there yesterday slowed down to final physical arrangements for the signing itself.

Work continued, however, in informal meetings to complete the draft of the military aid legislation which will be sought to fill out the defense needs of pact members with United States arms.

The bill is expected to be ready for submission to the Bureau of the Budget this week.

While many of the visiting foreign ministers held policy talks with their own staffs, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin met

Saddle Horses Die In Head-on Crash, Two Riders Hurt

New York, April 3 (NYHT).—New York City's first head-on horse collision in many a day occurred at 1:55 p. m. today on the Pelham Bridge Road bridle path in the Bronx, with both animals killed and two riders hurt.

Miss Neila Belasco, 17, was riding with Sherwood Katsoff, 18. Rounding a bend at a canter, they came face to face with Donald Bryan, a third Bronxite out for a Sunday ride.

The sudden meeting frightened the horses, which bolted, crashing head-on. The impact apparently fractured their skulls.

Two Women Lend a Hand To the Pact

MRS. CLARA F. WRIGHT
. . . binds Atlantic Pact

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Diplomats thought up the words but two State Department women gave substance to the historic Atlantic Pact to be signed today with much flourish and fanfare.

The only thing fancy about the single-copy, typewritten document of some 15 pages is the red, white and blue ribbon which holds together the gold-edged, rag paper sheets.

This is the story of the document itself:

Our State Department has, among its many offices and divisions, a Treaty Affairs Division of 24 people housed in the Walker-Johnson Building on New York ave. and headed by one-time newspaperman Bryton Barron.

This division turns out around 200 treaties and agreements of varying degrees of importance each year. The attitude there last week was that the Atlantic Pact is just another job. This division doesn't care about the words—except to spell them right and make them look nice on paper.

Once Secretary of State Dean Acheson for the United States and the 11 foreign nations involved had settled on the wording of the pact, the text came over to Treaty Affairs.

This treaty, like its predecessors for some 50 years, has been put on a special high quality, gold-edged paper some 9⅞ x 13¼ inches in size. Each sheet has double line borders printed on it to contain the typed text within an area about the size of legal type stationery.

The State Department, incidentally, has lost all record of where the original paper stock came from and it hasn't been able to find a paper manufacturer to duplicate it. Soon, there will have to be new treaty paper but that's another story.

The text and the sheets go to Mrs. Pearl Inglis of 4325 Lily Ponds drive ne., whose title is "treaty engrosser." The engrossing consists of typing the text with an electric proportional spacing machine which is similar to a newspaper linotype as far as letter spacing goes. Sometimes the text is typed two columns to a sheet, if two languages or more are involved. In this case—the Pact is in

1.8 Billion May Be Fixed To Build Up Allied Arms

Sum Would Be Far Short of Enough For Defense of European Areas

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Behind the scenes of today's historic Atlantic Pact ceremonies, vital decisions are in the making over backing it up with United States arms shipments to Europe.

Legislation calling for a limited aid program is being whipped into final shape by an inter-departmental committee. It is expected to authorize spending $1,800,000,000 to arm non-Communist Europe over the next year or two—enough to fill out shortages in existing forces but far short of equipping an army capable of defending France and the Lowlands against attack.

The bill, said well-informed sources, probably will contain general language dealing with a longer-range, more extensive arms assistance plan, but specifically authorize only the limited program.

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill the lines were forming for a battle royal over such arms shipments. Many Senators who favor ratification of the Atlantic Pact are opposed to following it up with military aid, and last night there was talk of definitely and sharply separating the two.

One suggestion was that a reservation be made which would state specifically that ratification of the security treaty was not binding this Nation to arming Europe. It is thought that the ratification resolution could be so worded as to give such notice, without limiting the pact itself.

The plan was discussed as Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) urged that President Truman postpone the arms aid program to prevent the Atlantic Treaty becoming a military alliance aimed at Russia.

Senator Edward Martin (R., Pa.) also expressed doubt of the wisdom of the arms plan. Martin, a National Guard general, said he was concerned lest the program result in the United States spreading its military strength "too thin."

George, a ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, recently urged that the arms issue go over until next year. He said then that "very strong sentiment" may develop against the pact itself if, through arms shipments, it should become an outright military alliance.

"I hope the Administration will be wise and prudent in not asking for immediate implementation of

Costa Rica Revolt Put Down After 14-Hour Battle

San Jose, Costa Rica, April 3 (U.P.) Costa Rica crushed an army revolt today after a nightlong air, artillery and infantry attack on rebel strongholds in central San Jose.

Casualties in the 14-hour battle were estimated at more than 20 dead and about 100 injured.

Leaders of the insurrection were jailed. They included Defense Minister Edgar Cardona, Max Cortes, former Costa Rican consul general in New York, and Maj. Fernando Figuls, rebellious commander of Bella Vista fortress.

The United States Embassy, situated across the street from Bella Vista, suffered minor damage in the revolt. More than 100 bullets struck the embassy during the night. All the windows were broken. But Ambassador Nathaniel Davis made no attempt to leave.

"The American Ambassador doesn't duck," he told an interviewer today.

The outbreak began when Cardona's men seized the Bella Vista and Artilleria fortresses late yesterday to back up their demands for the dismissal of four cabinet members and repeal of two economic laws.

U. S. Diplomat Killed In Damascus Accident

Damascus, Syria, April 3 (A.P.).—Leonard Parker, 47, of New York City, first secretary of the U. S. Legation here, was killed yesterday in an automobile accident.

Parker lost control of his jeep when he swerved to avoid a cloud, and plunged into a river. His body was recovered.

Pope Holds Mass to Expiate Crimes of the 'Enemies of God'

Vatican City, April 3 (A.P.).—Approximately 30,000 people heard Pope Pius XII celebrate a special mass at St. Peter's basilica today "to expiate the crime of the enemies of God"—the Communists.

This was the special extra mass for which the Pontiff called on February 12, a few days after Josef Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary was sent to prison for life by a Hungarian court on treason charges.

Before the special mass, the Pope led a regular Passion Sunday mass. In saying it, he celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his priesthood, which fell yesterday.

The special mass of expiation, which followed the other by only three minutes, was the first of its kind ever celebrated in the ancient basilica, informed Vatican prelates said.

Thirteen cardinals attended today's ceremonies.

Arriving for the first mass the Pontiff was carried through cheering throngs on a portable throne borne on the shoulders of his guards. Leaning from the slow-moving chair the Pope distributed blessings to all in the great church.

He was carried to the huge central altar beneath Michael Angelo's vast dome. There he was invested with the robes of the mass after kneeling 10 minutes in prayer behind the altar.

Hymns from the Sistine Choir added to the solemnity of the Passion Sunday mass. Alternating with the choir, about 500 seminary students in Rome chanted out hymns in deep bass tones. Pope Pius finished the first mass in 30 minutes and the second in 26 minutes.

After the special mass of expiation the Pontiff retired behind the altar again and took off his vestments. Fifteen minutes later he reappeared on his throne and was borne the length of the basilica to an increasing roar of cheers and cries of "Papa! Papa! Papa!"

Again he leaned from side to side giving his blessing to all.

Pact Fits Charter Of U. N., Evatt Says

New York, April 3 (AP).—The president of the United Nations Assembly arrived today with a pat on the back for the North Atlantic pact.

The U. N. leader, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, told newsmen at La Guardia Airport after flying from London that the North Atlantic Treaty was drawn up in accord with the United Nations Charter.

He came for the Assembly session reconvening at 3 p. m. (EST) Tuesday.

Aides said he plans to make another strong appeal for big power cooperation when he starts this second part of the Assembly which convened in Paris September 21.

"I am more convinced than ever that the United Nations is the primary organ which will help in achieving peace for the world," Evatt said in answer to a question asking his views on the North Atlantic defense alliance. "There can be no substitute for it. Important regional pacts like the North Atlantic pact are of assistance to the United Nations but are ancillary and subordinate to it. They are made in accordance with it and the possibility of such pacts was fully dealt with and decided upon at the San Francisco conference."

Wants Convictions Aired

Evatt said he regarded the coming session as extremely important.

He said he would push vigorously for a full airing of the case of the 15 Bulgarian Protestants and of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary, who were convicted of crimes against their states and sent to prison.

The Bolivian delegation has demanded that the Assembly take up the Mindszenty case; Evatt's Australian delegation asked it to deal with the case of the Protestants.

Another hot issue is the Indonesian question. The Australian and Indian delegation demanded last week that the Assembly discuss that problem, even though it still is before the Security Council. U. N. rules prevent the Assembly from making a recommendation on a case before the Security Council but the Australians and Indians said they could talk about it.

Four Ieft-Over Problems

Left-over items include what to do with Italy's former colonies; Franco Spain; the treatment of Indians in South Africa, and the work of the Geneva Conference on Freedom of Information.

The U. N. membership is expected to be increased to 59 soon after the opening session, perhaps late in the week, when Israel's application comes up for a final vote. Israel has passed the Security Council hurdle and Israeli spokesmen believe they have enough votes to win the two thirds vote needed in the Assembly.

U. S. Bombs Sabotaged, German Says

Berlin, April 3 (AP).—A German expert said today that hundreds of bombs dropped by American planes on Berlin during the war failed to explode because they apparently were sabotaged in United States war plants.

Werner Stephan, 32-year-old demolition engineer, said he personally had found 125 American duds that showed evidence of sabotage inside the workings. Some of his men employed in digging up duds in the ruins of the smashed city have found just as many, he said.

Maj. Gen. W. E. Hall, a United States Air Force officer and now chief of American Intelligence in Germany, said he knew "nothing about it, but the Air Force certainly is interested in finding out just how such sabotage could occur."

Air Force headquarters at Wiesbaden said one of its experts had exploded between 6000 and 7000 duds at Wright Field, Ohio. Defective fuses were found in all of them, the headquarters said, but sabotage was not involved. The fault in manufacture has been corrected.

At Dayton, Ohio, the Wright Field public relations office denied that 6000 or 7000 bombs ever were exploded there.

Stephan claimed two types of bombs were sabotaged. One carried an M-103 fuse and the other an M-124 fuse, he said.

"The M-103s lacked what we call the fieihbacken (a central jaw-like part), and it obviously was left out deliberately," Stephan said. "In its place the workman installed some meaningless wire that apparently got past the inspectors, but it was impossible for these bombs ever to go off.

"The M-124s also lacked certain parts, and they were just the parts that could easily have been overlooked by an inspector. Without those parts the bombs were nothing."

Stephan figures it will take 50 years to dig up all the unexploded bombs beneath the ruined buildings.

Yugoslavs Hail Defiance Of Cominform

Belgrade, April 3 (U.P.).—A leading Yugoslav spokesman told a cheering crowd of 40,000 today that if the Cominform wants to bring Marshal Tito to his knees, it will have to use force.

Moshe Pijade, Politburo director of the battle of words with the Cominform, brought thundering approval and chants of "Tito-Party" from massed thousands when he declared:

"Against a people's state no resolutions are effective. It has to be taken with the rifle—to be conquered."

He said the country's enemies have been a pack of "ordinary liars and slanderers" from the very beginning of the rift in the world Communist front.

Pijade scoffed at some of the "ridiculous" reports circulated about Yugoslavia and singled out "a Balkan politician who declared that in a few months Yugoslavia will be an ally of monarcho-fascist Greece."

Hungary Reds Adopt Plan to Improve Army

Budapest, April 3 (AP).—The Hungarian Workers Party (Communist) has adopted a new five-year economic plan whch calls for an improved army "to defend the peace."

The plan was passed at a meeting yesterday in which Vice Premier Matyas Rakosi, Hungary's No. 1 Communist, made a report on the "political situation." There were rumors this report outlined details for parliamentary elections scheduled for May 15.

The party resolution on the economic plan, to replace a three-year plan which is now said to be completed, boasted that the government now owns 80 per cent of industry, 75 per cent of wholesale trade and 20 per cent of retail trade.

The new plan calls for an investment of 35 billion florints (three billion dollars) in industry, agriculture, transport, housebuilding and other purposes.

No details were given concerning improvement of the army, which was rated as a "major task."

(Hungary's army is limited to 65,000 men by the peace treaty. Britain already has charged officially that she is rapidly exceeding that limit.

Italian Reds Get Warning

Rome, April 3 (U.P.).—Minister of the Interior Mario Scelba warned Italian Communists today that the state will crush them if they attempt a revolution.

The iron-handed police boss, speaking at Siena in defense of Italy's entrance into the Atlantic Pact, said the western alliance can be "the only hindrance to every further action of Russia for the salvation of peace."

Scelba spoke a few hours after a cabinet commission was appointed to draft a law to block industrial sabotage through slowdown strikes which have cut Italy's production by 35 per cent since the first of the year.

Scelba accepted the challenge presented by the recent Communist fight against the Atlantic Pact.

"It is clear," he said, "that in the face of insurrectional attempts the state will defend itself without hesitation. I have already said at other times that the weapons given to the forces of the state do not constitute democratic elements but means of defense and of offense."

Notables at Mass Here Mark Papal Anniversary

The Washington Post

Visiting Notables Attend Mass Honoring Pope's Anniversary

The fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Pope Pius XII was observed yesterday at a solemn pontifical mass at St. Matthew's Cathedral, 1727 Rhode Island ave. nw.

French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, in Washington for the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty, and Italian Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani attended the service. The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, was the celebrant and the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle gave the sermon.

Archbishop O'Boyle said no Pope was ever called upon to meet so many varied and world-shaking problems and crises as have confronted Pius XII in the past 10 years.

At the end of World War II, the archbishop recalled, Pope Pius XII "set himself once aain to the heroic task of promoting peace among men, voicing the commandment of peace as the law of God for the nations, not the uneasy peace of armed truce but that peace which is born of justice and love in tranquallity of order."

He said the great tragedy which has brought sorrow to the Pope is that after the war "new oppressors of mankind appeared, consolidating new positions, and a devil's brood of new evils was spawned behind the hard veils of an Iron Curtain."

for a morning conference at the British Embassy with Italian Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza, to discuss disposition of Italy's prewar colonies.

Italy has announced its hope to gain trusteeship over the African colonies—Italian Somaliland, Eritrea and Libya—but has also indicated a willingness to compromise.

The issue, on which the Big Four have failed to agree, comes before the U. N. at its current session. Count Sforza said last week that he is hopeful an agreement on this subject can be reached while the foreign ministers are here.

At the Departmental Auditorium yesterday, workmen were putting finishing touches on photographic, newsreel and television stands being erected in the auditorium.

Nearly 200 newspapermen will be present for the ceremonies, which will be broadcast by all major radio and television networks and carried across the globe in 43 languages by the Voice of America.

In Marked Contrast

The elaborate signing ceremony, in the high-ceilinged auditorium encircled by massive fluted stone columns, will present a marked historic contrast to the most significant event held there before—the October 29, 1940, drawing for draft numbers, sending American men into training for World War II.

That ceremony typified America's lone-wolf thinking in its efforts to maintain neutrality and follow the path of avoiding "foreign entanglements."

Today's action will break a new path for the United States in peacetime, as this Nation demonstrates that its safety is not only linked to the safety of the whole American hemisphere—as the 21-nation Rio Treaty declares—but to the safety of western Europe as well.

To dramatize the occasion, a 2½-hour program has been arranged, before as many diplomats, congressional leaders and Government officials as the seating capacity will permit. Normally, the auditorium seats 1325 on its main floor and balcony, but a few rows of seats have been removed to make room for photographic facilities.

Band to Open Program

At 2:30 p. m., the program opens with music by the United States Marine Band, and the foreign ministers enter the hall 30 minutes later, to take their places on the circular stage.

Secretary Acheson will then introduce each one, and following this, each minister will speak for about five minutes, in his native language if he chooses. Speeches not delivered in English will be translated.

President Truman is scheduled to enter at 4:30, be introduced to each minister, and then the President will deliver a 10-minute speech.

The ministers and Secretary Acheson, using 12 different pens, will then sign the treaty on a long mahogany table, in the following alphabetical order by countries:

Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgium; Lester B. Pearson, Canada; Gustav Rasmussen, Denmark; Robert Schuman, France; Bjarni Benediktsson, Iceland; Count Carlo Sforza, Italy; Joseph Bech, Luxembourg; Dirk U. Stikker, the Netherlands; Halvard M. Lange, Norway; Dr. Jose Caeiro da Matta, Portgual; Ernest Bevin, United Kingdom, and Secretary Acheson for the United States.

After the signing, Acheson will make a few closing remarks, ending the ceremony.

Area Stations to Carry Pact Ceremony Programs

The following radio stations will carry broadcasts of the Atlantic Pact ceremonies today at the times indicated:

WMAL—4:30 to 5 p. m.; WOL, 3:30 to 3:45 and 4:30 to 5 p. m.; WRC, 4:30 to 5 p. m.; WTOP, 4:30 to 5 p. m.; WWDC, 4:30 to 5 p. m., and WASH-FM, 3 to 5 p. m.

The ceremonies will be televised from approximately 3 to 5 p. m. over Stations WMAL, WNBW, WOIC and WTTG.

Hands Labor Long Setting Pact Stage

Far from the formalities preceding today's signing of the North Atlantic Pact, a few hired hands from the State Department's Division of International Conferences labored long yesterday to prepare the Departmental Auditorium for the historic event.

They had company from 61-year-old Custodian C. J. Jones, 1600 N. Lexington st., Arlington, Va., who had opened up at 10 a. m. He told his wife he would be home at 1:30. At 5 o'clock he was still in the auditorium.

Main activity that kept him and the others late was the testing of the lighting for photographers and the checking of camera positions on the scaffoldings which have been constructed on either side, one for stills, one for movies and television.

Architecture Varied

The Departmental Auditorium, on Constitution ave. between Twelfth and Fourteenth sts. is indeed a varied piece of architecture. Of Indiana limestone, its walls and columns are faced with crushed oyster shells to absorb sound. Jones likes to have people put their mouths against the wall and blow to show them that the air goes straight through.

The gold leaf, of which there is much, was put there to "give life" to the place which would "otherwise be too dead," Jones said.

The auditorium is further given life by a ceiling of vivid blue—the color having been sponged on in order to leave the pores of the oystershell covering open. Six huge chandeliers hang down the center section and five smaller ones down each side. The overhead color is bounced back by blue carpets.

On hand yesterday afternoon from the State Department were men who had handled such events as the U. N. San Francisco Conference, the Nuremberg trials and the Council of Foreign Ministers meeting at the Waldorf in New York.

Their goal for the setting has been, as one stated it, "to make it as dignified as possible without too much pomp and circumstance."

They have had their headaches. One has been the assignment of seats to the 1400 or so persons lucky enough to be invited.

"There isn't a one of them," one remarked, "but who according to his own feeling should be up front."

Some 350 radio, press and television men will cover the signing, a State Department spokesman said, and a total of some 1310 persons will see it from downstairs, about 125 from the balcony. The stage will have 24 chairs—for the 12 foreign ministers, 11 ambassadors and President Truman.

The signing will take place on a long mahogany desk. Originally it had a ledge in front but because it might obscure the hand of the minister signing, the ledge was taken off at the request of photographers.

In order that the event may be well photographed and televised the 24 central figures will sit for two hours or so under a glare which, when tried out yesterday, really called for colored glasses.

Fern and flowers will alternate on the front of the stage. Albert W. Harrell, superintendent of buildings, said. The flowers, he said, will be principally azaleas.

Stage Set for Signing of Pact

ALL READY—The stage of the Departmental Auditorium here is being made ready for signing of the Atlantic Pact today. The signing will take place at the long table in front of the stage. The foreign ministers will sit in the front semicircle of chairs with the ambassadors behind them. President Truman and each of the foreign ministers will speak from the rostrum at center. Flags at left will be arranged as a background the pact through arms shipments," he said yesterday. "Very strong sentiment against the pact itself may develop if it appears that it is inclined toward a military alliance and it then would result in merely widening the gap between the East and the West."

Battle Looms On Pact Arms

Chairman Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, termed both renewal of the European Recovery Program and the signing of the Atlantic Pact as "musts" forced upon the United States by Soviet pressure.

Officials said that several decisions have yet to be made on the arms assistance legislation before it goes to the Bureau of the Budget, probably this week. Here is the way it is shaping up:

1. Cost—The authorization is expected to total slightly more than $1,800,000,000 for aiding not only western Europe, but also carrying on the existing Greek-Turkey military assistance program. That sum contemplates shipping a long list of specific armaments, in three categories. Some would have to be produced in American factories. Others would come from our strategic reserve and would have to be replaced. Still other items would come from war stocks in excess of our estimated military needs.

The question of putting a price tag on arms taken from existing stocks is not yet finally settled. Presumably those from the strategic reserve, which must be replaced, will be evaluated at their replacement value. The surplus weapons, however, are expected to be listed at 10 per cent of their original cost. The $1,800,000,000 authorization is based on this formula.

However, it may be decided to list the surplus at its replacement value. This would raise the figure well over two billion dollars, as prices have risen and mass production savings would not apply.

Still another factor which may affect the final total of the arms aid bill is the domestic economic situation. If top Government economists decide the national income next year may be lower than previously estimated, the military assistance program may be cut. This angle was being given close attention over the weekend.

2. Scope—no decision has been made as to whether the bill will ask blanket authority to extend arms aid, or confine it to Atlantic Pact countries and other European and Middle East nations. In any event, the overwhelming bulk of the arms shipments would go to Europe.

Would Rule Out Spain

It is expected that countries desiring arms must qualify on the grounds of military need and capability and political acceptability. This last would rule out Spain.

3. Types of arms in program. The list is a broad one, but predominately includes army equipment. Some aircraft and airplane parts and supplies are included, which would largely come from existing American stocks. Generally speaking, the Western Union powers want to build up their own jet warplane plants rather than place orders with ours.

Some of the supplies we have in surplus, such as small arms, are not needed by the European countries. Other excess stocks here, however, such as .30 caliber machine guns, artillery and ammunition, planes, bombs and small naval craft are desired by the pact signers. Britain is understood to have asked for 200 Boeing bombers and the French for some Douglas SB-2C dive-bombers for their aircraft carriers.

Some Republic F-47 and North American F-51 propeller-driven fighters also are on the arms aid list, it is stated. We have more than 2000 of these left over from the war.

4. Contract procedure—Where new equipment would be ordered from American factories for foreign countries, it is expected that the bill will provide that the United States Army, Navy or Air Force place the contracts for the aid of nations. This would enable them to coordinate the program with our defense plans.

Colony Bar Likely

5. Limitations — A proviso barring any nation from sending American arms to their colonies is likely to be written into the bill. This would prohibit the Netherlands from using United States arms against Indonesian rebels, the French shipping weapons to Indo-China, etc.

(6) Ultimate scope — Military planners want to build up a strong, well-equipped Army of 35 to 40 divisions, with adequate air support, in Western Europe. Such a force, it is believed, could hold Russia at the Rhine. A military machine of this size is visualized under the military aid program, but it is emphasized that it will take several years to build and that by far the greater part of the equipment must be provided by the European nations themselves. We would only help get rearmament started and fill in the gaps. The extent of the latter, beyond the original authorization would be determined later.

Mrs. Inglis, who's been typing these documents since she came to the department in 1943, said:

"I typed the first draft in one afternoon. Then after we decided what changes to make to dress up the appearance of some of the lines, I typed the final copy in one day. It was correct the first time, too."

The exact number of pages is considered a State Department secret for some reason not easily fathomed. Also, photographs of the document were forbidden last week.

"The foreign ministers have to be the first to see it," one official said. "They might not like to see it first in the newspapers."

Signature pages state only "for the United States of America" and leave a space for Acheson to sign, and similarly for the other 11. Nobody's title is used because it's presumed the Nation itself is signing the agreement.

Once the pages were typed and proofread, John W. Foley of Chevy Chase View, Md., one of the "treaty advisers" in the division who is shepherding the Pact, turned them over to the "depositary and procedural officer."

This lady is Mrs. Clara F. Wright of 3016 N. Pollard st., Arlington, Va., who said "the office has grown up with me" while she's been processing hundreds of these documents since 1935.

Mrs. Wright put the sheets together in proper order—the sheets are double so they can be bound, in the end, in book form. So the edges come out even there are sheets of slightly different sizes making up basic "nests" of 10, 12, 18 or 25 double sheets. The 10 nester would provide 20 pages, just about right for the Atlantic Pact.

Once Mrs. Wright had the sheets in order, she put three holes through the middle with a punch and got out her fancy ribbon.

There's protocol for ribbon, too. If a treaty or agreement is between this country and one other and the other is a kingdom a red ribbon is used. But if the other is a republic—or dictatorship—the ribbon is blue.

Since the Pact is multilateral, however, the ribbon must be red, white and blue. It's exactly 5/16 of an inch wide. Mrs. Wright said it took about a yard and a half to put the pact together.

Usually, and probably so in this case, a dab of wax is used to seal the knot when the ribbon is tied—just to give everybody concerned an easy feeling no one will slip in an extra page or two after the signing.

Now the document is ready for the pens. On Monday one of the Treaty Affairs Division officers will take the document over to the Departmental Auditorium, stand by for the signatures, and when it's all over take the Pact to the main State Department Building to be placed in a special vault. The important treaties and agreements are kept here. The United Nation's Charter, for example, will have to move over for the Atlantic Pact, in more ways than one.

The reason all the work in preparing the document has been done in Washington is that the Pact provides the treaty "shall be deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America."

This Government will make photostat copies of the original and send them to the 11 other nations involved. The idea of having a typewritten text rather than a printed one, incidentally, is that there then can be no question of which is the original. When printed texts have been used, the signers usually put their pen to enough copies that each nation gets one to keep.

The Pact does not come into force until a majority of the 12 nations involved have ratified it and the majority must include the United States, Britain, Canada, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands. Italy, Iceland, Portugal, Denmark and Norway need to produce only one ratifier among them to put the pact into effect once the six others have agreed.

Mrs. Wright's office is the depository for the ratifications which the treaty says must be sent to the United States.

When the Senate of the United States has approved the treaty, as it must do by a two-thirds vote under our Constitution, and when enough other nations have likewise given final formal approval, President Truman will proclaim the treaty in force.

This proclamation along with the original treaty and the various ratification notices all will stay in the State Department's safe. Some day, when the Pact is more history than anything else, it will be moved over to the National Archives where hundreds of its predecessors rest.

The text of the document—the words so carefully worked out by the diplomats—will be printed all over the world and broadcast in practically every language. The Pact could mean war or peace.

But to Mrs. Inglis and Mrs. Wright it was just another job in a busy part of the United States Government.

Sen. Graham Reported 'Vastly Improved'

By The Associated Press

Senator Frank Graham (D., N. C.), who is ill with pneumonia, was described yesterday as vastly improved.

His administrative assistant, John McConnell, said Graham's temperature has declined and that under the circumstances he can be considered "in splendid condition."

History Shows Many Famous Signings Here

Washington has been the scene of numerous signings of international agreements which hold a significant role in world history, but none of them was accompanied by the ceremony and modern-day global publicity which will focus on today's signing.

Among historic agreements signed here, most of them in simple ceremonies in State Department conference rooms, or at the White House, were:

The Alaska Purchase, May 30, 1867, one of history's biggest real estate bargains, under which the United States bought Alaska from Russia for $7,200,000.

U. S.-Canada Boundary

Webster-Ashburton Treaty, August 9, 1842, which settled the boundary between the United States and Canada, and was a milestone for amicable relations between the two nations.

Treaty of Washington, May 8, 1871, which resolved outstanding differences between the United States and Great Britain growing out of the Civil War.

Washington Conference for Reduction of Naval Armament, held in the latter part of 1921 and early 1922 under the chairmanship of Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes. In scope and number of world political leaders it brought to Washington, this conference provides the closest comparison to Monday's ceremony.

It resulted in the Four Power Treaty, December 13, 1921, in which the United States, the British Empire, France and Japan agreed to respect each other's rights in the Pacific; the Five Power Treaty of February 28, 1922, limiting naval armaments of the world's greatest powers, the Nine Power Treaty, February 6, 1922, guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China and reaffirming the "open door policy" there, and lesser agreements, signed in the Memorial Continental Hall, adjoining Constitution Hall.

Inter-American Treaty

General Treaty of Inter-American Arbitration and General Convention of Inter-American Conciliation, both signed on January 5, 1929.

Reciprocal Trade Agreement with Canada, Reciprocal Trade Agreement with the United Kingdom, November 17, 1938, landmarks in the United States' agreements to lower trade barriers between nations.

Declaration by United Nations, January 1, 1942, agreeing that World War II would be prosecuted to complete victory over Germany, Italy and Japan. Eventually signed by 47 nations. (Not to be confused with United Nations establishment.)

United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration agreement, November 9, 1943, establishing the temporary world relief agency.

Articles of agreement establishing the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and International Monetary Fund, signed December 27, 1945.

Lillian Gore to Speak

Miss Lillian Gore, supervisor of schools for the Eastern Suburban Area of Montgomery County, will talk on the language arts program at the Takoma Park Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the school auditorium, Philadelphia ave. and Hodges lane.

Science and a Lasting

PEACE

By WALDEMAR KAEMPFFERT

Despite the reluctance of the great powers to yield their ancient sovereignties in the interest of world unity the signs are plain enough that as science and technology sweep on, unification proceeds rapidly.

It means something that an Englishman, a Frenchman, an American, an Australian are scarcely distinguishable so far as their clothes are concerned. It means something that automobiles are very much alike, that electric lights in millions of homes here and abroad glow in accordance with the same principle. It means something that Hottentots, Chinese, Americans and Englishmen rock with laughter at the same film or thrill to a symphony shortwaved from New York to London. It means something that in all advanced countries people travel in similar trains, steamers or planes, cook by gas supplied by a gasometer, suck dirt out of carpets by electricity shot from a central station. It means something that mass production and standardization, which are the hallmarks of a developed industrial technology, have been adopted by every industrial nation. At the bottom of all this lies the conviction that science and technology are good in themselves and are worth cultivating for social and economic reasons.

A World-Unifying Force

Clearly, we have in science a world-unifying force that should be systematically and rationally applied. Already there are in the world perhaps 250,000 first-class research chemists, biologists, physicists and engineers. These men and women in normal times meet in international conventions and give freely of their knowledge to the world. No questions are asked about the race, nationality or creed of these internationalists. We have here the nucleus of an organization that could weld the world psychologically and socially into a unit.

Science ought to be discussed at the peace table and not just politics, spheres of influence and economic rights — the kind of science that will really usher in a new order. Science has never had more than half a chance. It has had to develop in the face of frustration, even of downright suppression. Let us then at the peace table organize research on a world-wide scale with the intention of raising all countries to a single high intellectual and economic level, of giving all peoples a common outlook, and of thus preparing them for the acceptance of a single political order. We need experience in thinking and acting together if we are to convince ourselves that more is to be gained by regarding the land, the sea and the air as a whole than by regions and countries.

Suppose, therefore, we organize a World Scientific Commission and suppose that we finance it by contributions from participating nations. One quarter of 1 percent of pre-war budgets would be enough.

The Commission would first map out what has been accomplished. Gaps in our knowledge would appear. The program of research would be framed to fill them as well as to advance existing knowledge. As the results poured in some of the major disgraces of our scientific record would be expunged.

It is a disgrace that millions must still groan with arthritis. It is a disgrace that the conquest of cancer is not yet in sight. It is a disgrace that we have only the vaguest notion of what happens when a piece of beefsteak is chewed and digested. Because we know so little of the mechanics of heredity — why we inherit blue eyes or stub noses and some afflictions from our parents — it is a disgrace that we cannot pick out of the American population the 18,000,000 who are themselves mentally sound but who are believed to be the carriers of mental disease that can be passed on. It is a disgrace that millions of chemical compounds remain to be discovered — compounds of immense potentialities in medicine, agriculture and industry. It is a disgrace that we cannot predict what the weather will be a fortnight hence in Chicago and New York.

Fruits of Organized Research

If we organize research to remove these and many other disgraces we shall not only improve the lot of mankind but change world outlook. Enlist the aid of the sociologist to predict the consequences of discovery and invention, so far as that is possible, and it lies within our power to direct social change, to imbue the world with new social purpose, to prepare the world for unity.

No vast palace of research is necessary. Universities that accept grants under the plan would still conduct research on their own account. So would the great foundations and industries. The Commission would be fully aware of its social function, meaning that the unknown would be penetrated with no thought of profit yet with the conviction that direct material and intellectual benefits would accrue. The Commission would concern itself not with inventions as such but with the discovery of principles that inventors, engineers, physicians and farmers could apply.

Year after year the work would go on. The lagging biological sciences would receive an enormous impetus, and the social scientists and psychologists would be able to make field studies and conduct experiments on a scale unprecedented. We want to accelerate the process of unification that has begun with steamships, radio, airplanes, motion pictures and engineering.

Science and Human Progress

The World Scientific Commission must concern itself with the broad pattern of education as well as with the organization and support of research. That pattern must be shot through and through with social purpose. What does relativity mean to me? Why are physicists bombarding atoms? What good will it do when they find out how matter and how the universe is put together? Such questions probe deep into meanings that are rarely revealed in the classroom. Both the social point of view and the scientific approach to any problem must be acquired by the masses of Asia, Europe and the Americas. It may take decades but the project is worth undertaking.

Give us international cooperation in science and soon there will be cooperation in other fields. For invariably change in science means social change, so that new discoveries in turn call for cooperation in government to make the most of them. With peace maintained by an international police force and experience in cooperation gained by the international organization of science (the one subject on which we can agree), the world will begin to think of unity not as something utopian, but as something necessary.

tions as surveyed by the U. N. in March.

Israel won more territory on the central front, including control of the Tulkarm-Qalqilye road, but in return the lines were modified to favor Trans-Jordan in the Hebron-Dead Sea area. Troops are to be reduced to defensive strength within 10 days after the demarcation lines are marked out.

Trans-Jordan troops replace Iraqi forces on the central front within 5 to 15 weeks and the Ammam government accepted full responsibility for all Iraqi units.

The special commission also is charged with arranging free access to all holy places, free movement of traffic on all vital roads and resumption of hospital service on Mount Scopus in Jerusalem.

(At Tel Aviv, government spokesman Moshe Perlman said the armistice provided for gradual withdrawal of opposing forces, with each side allowed to keep 14 defensive battalions of troops. He said this covered existing occupation lines in the Negev Desert and the strength of British forces at Aqaba, Trans-Jordan.

To Withdraw From Area

(In the north, the demarcation line runs from Nazareth to Tulkarm to Qalqilye to Jerusalem, Perlman said. Trans-Jordan's troops will withdraw to the east from this line, leaving Israel in control of all territory to the west of the line.)

Reuben Shiloah of Israel smiled when he scratched his name on the armistice agreement today, but the smile emphasized the vivid scar that runs from his mouth to his temple. He got it when Arabs dynamited the Jewish Agency in Palestine.

Opposite Shiloah sat Col. Ahmed Sindki El Jundy, who helped lead the Arab Legion.

Beside El Jundy was Lieut. Col. Mohammed Muaytab, former commander of Arab artillery in Jerusalem.

Bunche Going to Beirut

Bunche will go to Beirut, Lebanon, Tuesday to confer with members of the U. N. Conciliation Commission, who will start where Bunche left off. The commission is charged with building permanent peace in Palestine.

With violence halted, the conciliation commission is expected to start work at once on the problem of Arab refugees suffering from disease and malnutrition.

Jewish occupation of parts of Palestine has left some 750,000 Arabs homeless and many of them die each day in refugee camps. The armistice agreement did not solve this problem.

Burma Deals With Reds

Rangoon, Burma, April 3 (U.P.).—Premier Thakin Nu's shaky government began negotiations with the Communists today following the resignation last night of six Socialist members of his cabinet.

An official announcement said Thakin Nu would continue his duties, working with a skeleton cabinet of independent ministers, but that he was negotiating with the White (Communist) Band of the People's Volunteer Organization (PVO). The PVO, one-time popular front which last year split into Yellow and White bands, appeared irrevocably broken, the sources said.

The resignations of the Socialists, or Yellow Band of the PVO, was interpreted in political circles as a rejection of Communist proposals for an all-leftist coalition government. Among those resigning was Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister U Kyaw Neyin.

Besides the Yellow and White bands, there is also a Red Flag Party, an extremist offshoot of the White Band. These two Communist organizations are working against the anti-Communist Karen tribesmen, who are fighting for political autonomy.

Thakin Nu, now without Socialist support, must turn either to the strong Karens who have won a large part of Burma with their nationalist aspirations, or to the Communists. The latter control Mandalay, largest city in central Burma, and some 300 miles of the Irrawaddy Valley in the north.

Besides U Kyaw Neyin, five ministers and eight parliamentary secretaries quit the government last night. The ministers are U Kyaw Myint, mines and industry; Thakin Tin, agriculture and forests; U Win, education; Bo Hla Aye, health, and Bo Sein Hman, minister without portfolio.

The resigned ministers announced they would not go underground and would continue working for peace.

Police, meanwhile, took special precautions against possible infiltration into Rangoon of White Band forces.

40 Greeks Sentenced To Death

Athens, April 3 (A.P.).—Forty persons—Communists and rebel guerillas—were sentenced to death in Greece today.

Twelve persons, identified by the government as members of the Communist execution squad, were condemned by Athens military tribunal on charges of setting fire to a government garage near here last year.

Twenty-eight others, guerillas captured in recent operations on Peloponnesus, were doomed by a military tribunal at Tripolis for participation in rebel sabotage and killings.

The army reported continued fighting today in the Grammos area in the north. A communique said rebel forces came in from Albania Friday night and opened the attack.

How Douglas is helping to meet the

GROWING CRISIS IN AIR TRANSPORT

It's been something of a miracle—the Berlin Air Lift. And it was fortunate that courageous, well-trained American flyers and staunch Douglas planes were available to carry out this new kind of diplomatic mission.

But military strategists admit we are scraping the barrel to keep these planes flying. They realize fully that tomorrow's miracles will require larger, faster transport planes.

That is why the Air Force has given Douglas the green light for the construction of a fleet of new-type cargo planes—the revolutionary C-124A.

Towering 48 feet above the ground, this giant transport will fly loads up to 50,000 lbs. 1,200 miles and return to base without refueling. Yet, despite its great size, reversible-pitch propellers and wing-length brake flaps will enable it to take off and land from medium-size air fields.

The C-124A's unique clamshell loading doors and self-contained ramp also make it the only transport where heavy field equipment such as tanks, field guns, bulldozers, and fully loaded vehicles can drive directly on or off the plane.

Designed to support global operations, the C-124A carries on the Douglas tradition of building dependable aircraft—always ready—whatever the job, wherever the mission.

Reclamation Aides' Loyalty Affirmed

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said yesterday he believed the Senate Appropriations Committee would move to kill an Interior appropriations rider aimed specifically at two officials.

These are Reclamation Director Michael W. Straus, and Richard Boke, regional director for California. The appropriations measure now carries a rider requiring that their posts be filled by qualified engineers, which they are not.

O'Mahoney Reports

O'Mahoney was chairman of a subcommittee appointed by Appropriations Committee Chairman McKellar (D., Tenn.) to find out from Attorney General Clark and, if necessary, from President Truman, why FBI loyalty records on Straus and Boke could not be made available to the committee. The Wyoming Senator reported yesterday to McKellar that his subcommittee had talked with Clark and that "no purpose would be served in pursuing the matter further."

He said Clark told the subcommittee the cases had been reviewed by himself and by Interior Secretary Krug, and that a loyalty board had found nothing of substance affecting the loyalty of either official concerned.

The subcommittee was appointed last month when the Senate committee was considering an Interior Department deficiency bill.

Rider's End Forecast

Another deficiency measure is now in the House, and O'Mahoney told The Washington Post he believed the committee, on the basis of his subcommittee's interview with Clark, would knock off the rider. Straus and Boke have been serving without pay since January 1.

O'Mahoney said he felt that attaching legislative riders to appropriation bills was "a violation of good practice," and amounted to "legislative blackjacking of the President." The problem of determing fitness for office, he said, was not for appropriations committees, but for legislative committees.

In addition to O'Mahoney, members of the subcommittee were Senators McCarran (D., Nev.) and Cordon (R., Ore.).

Foes Claim Votes to Keep Wallgren Out

By The Associated Press

President Truman's determination to see Mon C. Wallgren named chairman of the National Security Resources Board is up against 48 Senate votes, opponents said yesterday.

These are lined up, it was claimed, against any effort to pry the Wallgren nomination out of the Armed Services Committee. This number probably would be enough to block action. The committee voted 7 to 6 to table the appointment.

Still Backed By Truman

President Truman said last week he still is behind the selection and no one else is under consideration.

Meanwhile, it became known that Democrats failed to take advantage of an offer by Senator Morse (R., Ore.) to let the appointment go before the Senate with an unfavorable report.

It also was learned that while Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) voted for the appointment March 15 when the committee decided to bottle it up, he told his colleagues: "I wouldn't be stating my honest convictions if I didn't say that I would have preferred to see the President nominate for this place a man who had, among other things, and principally among other things, a wider comprehension of the industrial equation of the Nation."

White House Pressure

White House pressure recently has been brought to bear on some Senators to change their votes to permit the nomination to go to the Senate with an unfavorable report. Morse is said to have told John Steelman, presidential adviser, who is acting chairman of the board temporarily, that he can't now change his vote to table.

The committee's decision to table bars the Senate from action on the appointment unless a majority of the 96 senators votes to take the matter out of the hands of the Armed Services group.

Against such a move, Wallgren's opponents claimed they have six Democrats and all 42 Republicans lined up on their side.

Pa. Transit Strike Affects 400,000

Scranton, Pa., April 3 (AP).—A strike of 400 bus and trolley workers cut off transit facilities for 400,000 residents of the Lackawanna Valley today.

The bus and trolley men walked off their jobs at 2 a. m., demanding a wage increase of 29 cents an hour for operators and 35 cents for mechanics. Operators now make $1.21 an hour, mechanics, $1.27 to $1.42.

Coal Overproduced As Exports Shrink

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A dramatic story of what is happening to the coal industry, with an indication of some of the factors behind the recent coal shutdown, may be found in the normally uninteresting figures dealing with coal production and exports.

In the years following the war this country underwent a new experience—it became the greatest coal exporting country in the world.

At one time the United States was literally "carrying coals to Newcastle," when in 1947, it shipped 675,000 tons of bituminous coal to the United Kingdom—traditionally the world leader in coal exports.

Today that tremendous business is gone again, and the thousands of men needed to produce coal for a cold and hungry Europe in the dark days of 1946 to 1948 find that market gone. Once more our mines are overproducing. Improved production and distribution facilities for other fuels—oils and natural gas particularly—are increasing competition for coal.

Before the war the United States shipped from 8,827 (in 1934) to 11,192 (1938) tons of coal to Europe. With the outbreak of war in 1939, these exports jumped to 165,000; in 1940 to 652,000, and then back down to 218,000 in 1944.

Prewar coal exports to Europe were only a minute part of our total exports in those days. Bituminous exports to all countries ranged from 10 million tons in 1934 to 13 million in 1937. Ninety per cent of this went, in the 1930s, to Canada, Mexico and Central America, and another 9 per cent to South America. All the rest of the world, including Europe, accounted for only about 1 per cent.

The war left the coal industry in Europe prostrate—in about the worst condition of any industry. Most of Europe lies far north of the United States. It is highly industrialized. Coal is a prime necessity not only to its business life, but also to the mere daily existence of its inhabitants.

Next to food, coal was America's greatest contribution to Europe in those terrible immediate postwar days.

In 1945 our coal exports to Europe jumped from a prewar figure of about 10,000 tons to an amazing four million. The world, including ourselves, marvelled at the mere job of transportation involved. In a year exports had quadrupled to more than 16 million tons; in 1947 to about 37 million tons.

By this time Europe had started on its way back to recovery. In 1948 bituminous coal exports had dropped back to 16 million tons again. This year's figures, from January 1 to March 12, would indicate that exports to Europe have virtually disappeared.

In that period total exports from our four chief Atlantic ports had dwindled from 5,385,000 tons a year ago to 3,690,000. The latter figure just about represents our normal peacetime exports outside of Europe.

Anthracite figures were even more striking, but on a smaller scale. In prewar days anthracite exports to Europe were virtually nonexistent, being only 22 tons in 1936 and 8 tons in 1938. In 1940 they jumped to 24,393 tons, then back to less than 250 for 1943 and 1944.

Came the postwar days, and anthracite exports jumped just as soft coal. In 1945 anthracite shipments to Europe reached 216,000 tons; the next year they went to almost two million, and in 1947, to almost four million.

Last year they dropped to less than 1.7 million, or down about 60 per cent, and so far this year to about nothing.

Together the bituminous and anthracite exports to Europe reached the amazing total of almost 41 million tons—which represent a lot of work for a lot of miners, as well as for railroads, ocean shipping companies and the myriad of workers at docks, rail centers, etc.

The coal industry, however, more than met the increased demand from overseas by increased production. Here's how those figures compare:

In 1941 our bituminous coal production was about 510 million tons; our total exports about 21 million.

By 1946 our production of soft coal had jumped to 530 million tons, our total exports to 41 million. In other words our increased production just about matched our increased exports.

But in 1947 production jumped to about 610 million tons while exports jumped to 69 million. Thus production increased 80 million tons over the previous year, while our total exports increased only 28 million tons.

Last year a greater imbalance was created. Preliminary figures on 1948 bituminous production fix the total at about 650 million tons; while our total exports fell off to 46 million tons.

In other words, our total bituminous coal production last year was about 40 million tons more than the year before, while our total exports were 23 million tons less. That would provide about 63 million more tons in 1948 for domestic use—or about 10 per cent of our entire production—than in 1947.

Anthracite figures follow a similar pattern. The cold figures would indicate that too many miners are producing too much coal.

A week ago in this column it was pointed out that allocations for steel under the Voluntary Allocations Program operated by the Commerce Department, was being materially cut.

It is significant that allocations are being cut for 13 of the 14 items for which priorities were given under the allocations program for steel. One was increased. That was for mining machinery, which was raised from 26,400 tons in February to 31,785 tons a month in June.

Modern mining machinery is touted as being able to greatly increase the output per man of coal. It is significant that it is getting the green light.

Recent reports are that John L. Lewis in his scale negotiations with the mine operators plans to ask the same weekly wage for less work—the same pay for 35 hours as his men now get for 40. The figures given above would indicate that is about the only way to keep his miners busy.

Paris, April 3 (U.P.).—An explosion occurred in front of the Romanian Embassy tonight. No casualties were reported. Police said a passerby probably threw a hand grenade in front of the building.

Printers Reject 'Final' Offer

Chicago, April 3 (U.P.).—Striking AFL printers voted heavily today to reject a "final" contract proposal from Chicago newspaper publishers.

The vote was announced by the union as 1266 to 93. The strikers in effect turned down the publishers' offer, although the vote was not labeled as a decisive action.

The union, Local 16 of the International Typographical Union, had said members were voting to accept or reject their committee's recommendation.

The typesetters have been on strike against five Chicago daily newspapers since November, 1947. The papers have continued to publish with substitute processes.

The publishers offered the union a full contract proposal for settling the strike, including a $10 weekly wage hike. At the time, publisher spokesmen indicated both sides were in agreement on all issues except wages. The proposal was submitted to the international union's executive council, which reportedly found "serious defects" in it.

Subsequently the local's negotiating committee made a recommendation for rejection. The union did not announce what the status of the dispute would have been if the members had overruled the recommendation.

The scale committee in its recommendation to reject said a wage boost of at least $17 was necessary to offset cost-of-living increases. The rank-and-file vote also authorized the scale committee to continue negotiations.

A statement from Local President John J. Pilch, which accompanied the vote results, charged that the publishers' proposal was a "yellow-dog contract." Pilch said is was "greatly inferior" to other contracts in effect with publishers. He cited the case of the Hammond (Ind.) Times, originally a part of the Chicago walkout. Hammond workers settled their strike separately for a $12.50 weekly raise.

Assembly Has Preview of Election War

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., April 3.—A preview of the 1950 election campaign in Montgomery County has been run off here in the closing hours of the 1949 General Assembly.

On the sidelines of State and local legislative activities, county Republicans and Democrats have been slugging it out over burning Montgomery County issues.

To date, E. Brooke Lee, unchallenged leader of county Democrats has, through his many legislative contacts and friendship with Governor Lane, successfully knocked down every major Republican try this session.

Election Ammunition

But members of the all-Republican delegation say Lee, by defeating, single-handed, major legislation sought by the county council and the county delegation, has provided them with ammunition for the 1950 election campaign.

Both Republicans and "Charterites" will be lined up against Lee's bid for power in 1950, they point out.

Most recent development in the fight this session between Lee and the Republican delegation was a speech yesterday by Delegate Julian P. King (R., Montgomery). He told the Democratic majority it was, in fact, losing Montgomery County votes in 1950 by following Lee's wishes.

Extinguished Leader

Referring sarcastically to Lee as "the extinguished leader," King said the one-time State Comptroller, Secretary of State, Chairman of the State Roads Commission, and Speaker of the House of Delegates, "could not now be elected to the lowest office in Montgomery County."

"Why do you think the people of Montgomery County have sent an all-Republican delegation down here?" he asked. Declaring that Lee had been "repudiated," King also pointed out that in Montgomery registered Democrats outnumber Republicans more than 3-1.

King also quoted a recent statement in the Senate by Senator George W. Della (D., Baltimore), an Administration leader who, in supporting a Montgomery County measure, said he was doing so "because there must be something wrong with the Democratic leadership up there."

Against Organization

"My vote should be construed as being a vote against the Democratic organization in Montgomery County," Della had stated.

A hint of what the Democratic reply will be to GOP charges in 1950 that Lee "emasculated" county legislation this session, was seen in this statement by Lee yesterday. He said in part:

"The actual record is that in three sessions covering three years, they (the Republicans) have not even introduced one major bill to create, curtail, enlarge or eliminate a single major service of county government."

Annapolis, Md., April 3 (AP).—The General Assembly tried hard, but fell short last night of reaching adjournment before the deadline for the 90-day session. It will have to come back Monday and finish up tag ends.

Administration leaders sent down the word shortly before midnight to quit for the weekend. Most of Governor Lane's "must" legislation was safely through by that time.

All but a few of the measures were local in nature. But the confusion always accompanying an assembly windup was mounting—and the administration had two more bills it wanted to make sure survived the crush.

Two Bills Await Action

One calls for salary raises for the three Public Service Commission members. The other would make the terms of the Governor and the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles coincide.

The latter bill was a reflection of Governor Lane's political feud with W. Lee Elgin, who was appointed Commissioner of Motor Vehicles by then Governor O'Conor, and whose term ends in June.

Lane has had to work with Elgin for two years, and has not liked it. The measure was introduced so that henceforth an incoming Governor would have the right to choose his own commissioner.

All in all, the session proved successful from an administration viewpoint.

Money Program Passed

Some proposals originally backed by the Governor were killed, but every cent of the administration's $244,211,929 money program was approved.

Although the program will wipe out a 25-million-dollar treasury surplus, it will be carried out without an increase in taxes.

The greatest interest in nonfiscal legislation passed and signed was in the saw-toothed anti-Communist bills. They make it a crime for a person to continue membership in a subversive organization, call for loyalty checks on all public employes, and bring Maryland's wartime sabotage prevention act back in force.

Originally, the bill would have taken effect June 1. However, legislators got wind of a referendum petition being circulated, and rushed through an amendment yesterday which will put the act in force immediately.

Capitol Police Private Fired

Louis E. Brogan, 39, of Hyattsville, Md., has been discharged as a Capitol police private for striking Jack Ott, 24, 127 N. Carolina ave. se.

This was disclosed by Capitol Police Capt. Olin Cavness. Brogan admitted hitting Ott in the face in the guard room of the Senate Office Building March 17.

Brogan arrested the young man for passing a stop sign and driving on the wrong side of the street on his motorcycle near the Senate Office Building. Ott forfeited collateral on the two charges, and a third charge of unnecessary noise.

Cavness said he acted after hearing all persons involved.

Brogan had been employed at the Capitol nearly four years.

House Sergeant-at-Arms Joseph H. Callahan said that as far as he was concerned Brogan would remain off the force.

Tydings Cites Cold War Cost

Baltimore, April 3 (AP).—Senator Tydings (D., Md.) put the cold war on a dollars-and-cents basis today. He said it is costing the United States "at least" 10 billion dollars a year.

That was the price tag he put on United States expenditures "which would not be necessary if the threat of communism did not exist."

In a radio address, the chairman of the Senate Committee on Armed Services said this includes the military budget, and money spent under the Marshall Plan.

Of the latter he said: "While this program is designed primarily to help our western European allies regain strength from the effects of the war, indirectly it does create work for our workmen and markets for the products of our people."

He explained that the $5,500,000,000 which the Senate has been asked to appropriate for continuing the Marshall Plan for another year would not actually "be sent to Europe."

"Practically all of it," he said, "is spent in our own country to purchase food, machinery and other supplies which western Europe needs in order to regain economic stability and security."

District Council

Senator Taft's suggestion that membership on the proposed District Council be increased from 9 to 11, with the President appointing the two additional members, has a good deal of merit. The idea of "Federal representation" on this local governing body is by no means novel. It has been revived again now because of the unquestioned fact that the Federal Government has an enormous interest in what any local government here may do.

To be sure, the plan also has disadvantages. In some measure it distorts the home-rule principle. If the appointments were to be used to give representation to minority groups not able to obtain such representation under the proposed city-wide election system, as Senator Taft suggests they might be, we think they would be a source of much friction and complaint. The election system itself ought to be fair to all groups, although we doubt the wisdom of proportional representation which often denies the majority a chance to put its program into operation. If the city-wide election system is accepted, we assume that slates of candidates giving fair representation to minorities will be arranged. In any event, it would be a dangerous venture to have the President select councilmen to represent any group or faction.

The strong argument for two presidential appointees on the council is to give representation to the national interest in this Capital City. Under a home-rule system many issues involving both community and national interests are certain to arise. Congress is likely to be more disposed to grant the council ample powers to govern the city if the national Government is represented on the council. And the two presidential appointees would probably be in the best position to impress upon the President and Congress the necessity for an adequate Federal contribution in lieu of taxes on the Government's vast tax-exempt holdings here.

If the Kefauver Subcommittee can also work out a formula that will provide an equitable Federal payment to the District each year without weakening the home-rule bill, it will render a unique service. But, as previously stated, we do not think the bill should be condemned if no acceptable fiscal formula can be found. Home rule without a fiscal formula would certainly be preferable to the present undemocratic misrule without a fiscal formula.

Tito's Dilemma

At first glance, Marshal Tito's curious speech the other day at Brioni, his island playground in the Adriatic, seems a haughty rejection of the opportunities of reconciliation cautiously held out to him by the Western powers. Most of the speech was devoted to calling down assorted plagues upon the House of Stalin and the House of Wall Street and to accusing both the Cominform and the bourgeois press of spreading lies about him and his regime.

He was at particular pains to deny the reports recently circulated in Great Britain and the United States that negotiations were taking place between those countries and Tito's government with a view to the resumption of trade relations and the eventual admission to Yugoslavia into an anti-Cominform bloc. The marshal denied angrily that he had been having any secret consultations with British and American representatives. "I do not even need to tell you," said Tito to a delegation of Istrian Communists, "that this is not true, nor have I invited you here in order that you may convince yourselves that it is not true."

Here, it seems to us, the marshal was protesting a bit too much. It is known at least that both British and American metallurgical and industrial engineers have been invited to Yugoslavia to discuss the reorganization of the steel industry, and it is difficult to see how such an expansion would be possible without assistance either from Britain or from the United States. But it is also probable that Marshal Tito's Stalinist enemies have been making the most of the opportunity for propaganda thus afforded them.

Tito is in a position where he must move with the utmost trepidation. No doubt a considerable part of the Communist followers who have stood by him after his breach with the Kremlin, might desert him if it became clear that the breach was ideological as well as expedient. At the same time it can hardly be supposed that the break with Stalin has reconciled to him the numerous enemies with whom he dealt so harshly during his rise to power. Among these may be included the Serbians and Montenegrins who remember General Mahailovich and the Croatian Catholics who remember Archbishop Stepinac.

Tito's main problem, of course, is the one that confronts all revolutionary regimes founded upon terror: how to protect himself simultaneously from enemies within and without. He could not move any farther to the left without provoking open revolt among his subjects, and it was this fact that obliged him to break with the Kremlin when it insisted that he transform the peasant holdings into collective farms. But no more can he move rapidly to the right without alienating a large number of those upon whom his power depends. In other words, his regime is no stronger than the fidelity of its police.

One For All

The ceremony of the signing of the North Atlantic Security Pact today will be more spectacular than the act itself. The signatories are merely redoing on a regional scale what they did at San Francisco when they signed the Charter of the United Nations. That is to say, they are pledging themselves to take action—individual and cooperative action—in the event of an armed attack anywhere in an area loosely called the Atlantic world. The pledge has been made necessary by Soviet stultification of the peace enforcement provisions of the United Nations. It is the answer to Moscow's everlasting "no!"

It is sometimes said that in this instrument North America is making a gesture to protect western Europe from invasion. This is a wrong conception: Some signatories are not protecting others; all are protecting themselves by mutual insurance. Indeed, if the aggressor—or, to be blunt about it, the Soviet Union—decided on armed attack, the chances are that the attack would be launched at the United States, the new kingpin of the Western world. And the base might possibly be the Mackenzie River territory of northern Canada. The clear-thinking Canadians realize this. That is the reason for the virtually unanimous backing in Canada for the pact—a backing that the people of the United States have reason to be grateful for. As the implications of the pact are studied, the same support will doubtless come from the American people. The first law of nature is self-preservation, and self-preservation is the keyword of the North Atlantic Security Pact.

There was, to be sure, an alternative method of accomplishing this object: a series of mutual assistance pacts within the United Nations. This was the method preferred by this newspaper when it became clear that the pact was to be open-ended, i.e., extended in Europe beyond the Brussels five. But our preference for this method does not convey or imply any questioning of the purpose of this pact. Not in the slightest. The pledge is the thing. And this pledge will count only as the words to which the participating governments append their signatures are freighted with meaning. What we have in mind is not the arms program, though an arms program, prudently worked out, is a corollary of the pact. However, not all the arms from Vulcan's stithy could make people resist who had no spirit to resist. It is the demonstration to act that will impress the Soviet world more than the articles of the present compact. This is the stamp that will make the solemn pledge renewed at today's ceremonies effective as a peace instrument—and, as Mr. Paul Hoffman said last night, peace is our business. The Soviet world will not move in the sure foreknowledge that a crushing power would be mobilized by the Atlantic world against any aggression. It would move, as Hitler moved, on the supposition that the Atlantic world would be too pacifist and divisive to resist.

The pact should bring back a sense of security which has been undermined by Soviet sabotage of peace enforcement in the United Nations. All for one and one for all—that is the recipe of confidence. All for one and one for all—that is the only principle that should govern this coalition. Without mutual help the Wallace creed would find converts here, the creed, that is to say, of dividing the world into an American-Russian condominium. Accordingly, there is no room for leaners, only for active participants in the Atlantic Pact.

Alaska's Gruening

The Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs has completed hearings on the reappointment of Ernest Gruening as Governor of the Territory of Alaska. We hope that the committee's approval will be promptly forthcoming. Governor Gruening's record during his nine-year tenure can best be judged by those who support and those who oppose him in Alaska. On his side are, with few exceptions, the people of Alaska. He has shown a determined liberalism and courageous leadership in the effort to bring Alaska to the maturity that now justifies its acceptance for full statehood. The people of Alaska, of course, do not elect their Governor; he is picked for them just as our own municipal administrators in the District are picked for us. If they did have the vote, Mr. Gruening's election would probably be assured.

Against him are aligned certain numerically small but financially powerful elements. By and large they have nothing specific against him or his statehood policy. Their opposition is based on the fact that he is a liberal in outlook and does not take orders from them. On the contrary, Governor Gruening has vigorously and with reasonable success bucked the absentee owners who are taking all they can get from Alaska. The Legislature's passage of a basic tax law indicates that his program of keeping more revenue within the Territory has popular support. Governor Gruening has, in our opinion, been a strong force for advancement in Alaska against bitter and selfish opposition, and that kind of service ought to be rewarded.

Racing Wires

United States Attorney Fay appears to have hit the nerve center of organized gambling by acting to cut off racing wire service and to remove telephones used for bookmaking purposes in the Washington area. Bookmakers are severely constricted in their operations, if not put out of business, when denied immediate access to horse racing results. Both the Chicago and the California Crime Commissions have found that the Nation-wide bookmaking racket and the racing wire service are operated through "fronts" by the notorious Capone Syndicate.

The present controversy over Mr. Fay's order for the removal of more than 300 telephones has nothing to do with the legality or the desirability of using this weapon against gamblers. Only Mr. Fay's procedure in accomplishing that result seems open to question. He gave the telephone company orders to take out more than 300 telephones because of evidence indicating they had been used for violation of the law. Apparently there is ample precedent for doing this, but Mr. Fay would have been on sounder ground if he had given the individuals concerned an opportunity to show cause why their telephones should not be removed. After a conference with Judge Pine, Mr. Fay wisely held up one order for the severance of telephone service. Hearings for many other subscribers have been scheduled. That is the American way. No person ought to be penalized on charges of having violated the law until he has had the opportunity for a hearing.

It is, nevertheless, important to deny use of the telephone to organized gambling rings. The fact that some 26 Western Union teleprinters and more than 300 telephones were being used illegally indicates that the companies have not been as alert as they might have been in policing their own services. If the current suspensions are to be effective, they must be followed by periodic checks by law-enforcement officials. Western Union and the telephone company could aid in this process by instituting a more thorough investigation before they take on customers.

Indeed, there is good reason for approaching the illegal use of communication facilities on more than a local basis. Last December the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, in McBride vs. Western Union, upheld the right of the telegraph company to suspend wire service to Continental Press in California because the service was used for bookmaking. This put a severe crimp in bookmaking in California. In an accompanying move the State Public Utilities Commission requested the Federal Communications Commission for an investigation and ruling on the use of communications facilities in the bookmaking racket. So far the only FCC action has been a request to Bell System telephone companies to file tariffs covering the suspension of telephone service used in violation of State laws. Undoubtedly a great deal can be accomplished through the cooperation of the telephone and telegraph companies. But the bookmaking racket is a national concern, and so serious a concern that we think a Nation-wide FCC ruling on racing wires would be well justified in the public interest.

Costly Coercion

The National Labor Relations Board has established a healthy precedent by setting aside a collective bargaining election because of preelection threats made by a union organizer to an employe. Joseph Lewis, organizer for the International Ladies' Garment Workers, had urged Helen Basnett, employe of a dress manufacturer in Wheeling, W. Va., not to vote in the election so as to avoid "causing hard feelings." Then, he added, "There has been a lot of rough stuff at these union elections." A majority of the board found the conduct of the organizer to be coercive. "Consequently," they held, "it cannot be said that the results of the election reflected the employes' free and uncoerced choice of bargaining representative."

The line between justifiable free speech and unwarranted coercion is sometimes difficult to draw. Yet such a line must be drawn if the guarantee to workers of the right to choose their own collective bargaining agency, or to reject collective bargaining, is to be protected. Coercion by a union is no more tolerable than coercion by an employer. In this instance the union won the election by a vote of more than 2 to 1, only to have its victory set aside because of the offensive tactics of an organizer. That is an unfortunate result for the majority who wish to be represented by the ILGWU. But the importance of protecting employes against coercion overshadows the outcome of any single election.

ONE WALKS A DREAM

One walks a dream of green and gold,
And sunset towers in the west,
And trees that spread their peacock fans
Beside the lake, and in his breast
Peace is a dove content to stay
And watch the ending of the day.

The air is still, and stirs no leaf
And stirs no thought, his mind asleep
He walks a dream of green and gold,
Beneath the trees that bow and weep
A dew of quiet on his brow,
As he moves from bough to bough.

The sun goes down, and Venus is
A starry jewel that crowns his head.
He moves as whitely as the moon
From out the shade, and from his tread
The grass springs up, so light his feet
That come when day and evening meet.

Syrian Revolt

To consider the coup d'etat in Syria as a sudden movement would be false calculation. The Zaim's revolt in Damascus was the climax of protest against the economic and political conditions in Syria. The Arab intelligensia, though in tactical alliance with those who professed to fight against imperialism, realized, after the outcome in Palestine, that the integration of the nationalist forces in the context of liberal thinking was the only means of ridding the country from feudal despotism and self-seeking government.

Late in December 1948, Dr. George Hanna published a very stimulating book, Path to Salvation. The response to his call was amazing. He said the causes of the Palestine debacle were the prevalence of illiteracy, widespread poverty, concentration of wealth, religious fanaticism, exploitation of women, disregard of the governments for the welfare of the people, the petty jealousies of the rulers, the lack of responsibility on the part of those who govern and the reluctance of the intelligensia to take part in active politics. Many leaders from Syria and Iraq came to him in Lebanon for consultation, among whom were several who engineered the bloodless revolt in Syria. This book set the line of demarcation between Arab traditionalists and Arab progressive forces.

In undertaking economic reconstruction in the Near East our State Department officials are well advised not to consider the Arab people as supporting existing governments, as has always been the case, but as a positive force helping the progressive elements of the Arab world. It has been pointed out several times by leading experts on Near Eastern affairs that perpetuation of present governments in the Arab world by subsidies, loans or economic and moral backing, though for purposes of rehabilitation, is a case of polling our money against the purposes it is intended for.

In certain areas a similar revolt might not be in harmony ideologically with the Zaim coup and therefore would be detrimental to the security and interests of the United States. Hence, it would indeed be a positive approach on the part of the United States in sponsoring Point IV to stipulate the broadening of the present governments and the inclusion of liberal and progressive elements, as a guarantee that whatever help is granted will be to achieve the welfare of the people rather than perpetuate autocratic regimes. "Belasco Theater"

Isn't there a conflict in your issue of March 25 between the two editorials, "Belasco Theater" and "Riskless Enterprise"? The Celler bill, which you apparently approve, would provide the lessee of a renovated Belasco with a "riskless enterprise" by donations from the Federal Treasury.

If there ever was an ideal place for free private enterprise to function entirely on its own, it seems to me we have it here in this area of more than a million people without a single legitimate theater. If private enterprise without Government subsidy cannot work in such a case as this, we'd better quit our quarrel with Russia, quietly fold up and let the Communists take over.

OTTAMAR HAMELE.
Washington.

Editor's Note: Our editorial on the Belasco Theater mentioned the Celler bill without indorsing it. We did indorse the "Committee of 20" which has set itself the goal of reviving the theater in Washington, with the Celler bill as a primary avenue of attack.

The Celler bill's subsidy is no more an ideal solution of the Belasco problem, in our opinion, than the Belasco is of the theater problem. The curse might be happily taken off that problem were the Celler bill combined with that of Representative Javits. By such a marriage the American National Theater and Academy (ANTA), chartered by Congress in 1935, would become the lessee-operator of the Belasco and the semipublic beneficiary of any subsidy.

"Free Ride"

I have just read "D. C. Mother's" March 29 letter, "Free Ride." This article certainly is true, but does not go far enough. When I came to Washington in 1945 I inquired of many people living in the District how to go about paying my income tax. The only answer I received from most of them was an amused snicker. I was actually ridiculed for thinking of paying taxes. Two or three people stated they had lived in Washington all their lives, had businesses here and had never paid a cent of tax.

If the District is so lax in enforcing the income tax how can they ever expect to support the schools, hospitals, etc.? In my opinion something ought to be done about the hundreds of parasites who actually brag because they don't pay taxes.

Earning Pensions

All the arguments which have been expounded of late regarding a certain Congressman's proposed pension plan for veterans have neglected a salient point.

The Eightieth Congress passed a bill, last year, which authorized retirement pay to members of the Organized Reserves who, attaining the age of 60, and having completed 20 years of satisfactory active reserve requirements, would receive a modest monthly payment from the Army. Due to the fact that the conditions of satisfactory service require constant attendance at training sessions, a member of the Organized Reserves earns the pension he finally receives.

We already have on the books a plan whereby any veteran may earn a pension. All the other plans proposed so far have been based on the feeling of "let's get something for nothing," and to blazes with the national economy. That sort of thinking does the veteran no good, does the country no good, and certainly does an individual's self-respect no good.

Compulsory Vaccination

Dorris D. Speck's March 29 letter on vaccination says: "No State having a compulsory vaccination law has rescinded this law." She is absolutely wrong. North Dakota repealed the compulsory law there in 1919, and Congressman William Lemke tells me that since that time there have been no "smallpox scares."

The States of California, Washington, Utah, Arizona, North Dakota and Minnesota have no compulsory vaccination law. People are not dying off from smallpox in those States. Why has England repealed the vaccination acts?

"Coudert Resolution"

In your editorial of March 20, commenting on Representative Coudert's proposed plan for choosing presidential electors, you say: "No doubt the effect would be to widen the real area of presidential contests and to reflect the will of the people more accurately than does the present system." Then you say the "fatal defect" of the plan is the retention of the office of presidential elector. You conclude that it would be "farcical" to change the present plan "without eliminating the elector entirely and providing for the division of each State's electoral votes among the candidates in the same proportion as the popular vote is divided among them."

May I suggest that you may not have explored fully the potential benefits of the Coudert plan and the dangers inherent in the plurality-proportional-representation scheme of Senator Lodge and his colleagues, and weighed the one against the other.

The preeminent virtue of the Coudert plan is that it stands foursquare within the concepts of the Constitution The Lodge plan, on the other hand, does violence to traditional American concepts because it is based squarely on the principle of proportional representation which, through its inherent multiparty characteristics, has prevented the development of effective representative government outside the English-speaking world.

Conceivably, under the Lodge plan we would have a multiplicity of parties—a dozen or so—and choose the President by a plurality of less than one third of the voters. And once the proportional principle has been dignified with the cloak of constitutional respectability the logical step will be the election of Representatives in Congress on that same basis, rather than by geographical districts. The end, in a generation or two, will be paralysis in Government, dictators to relieve that paralysis—a la continental Europe.

The Coudert plan would merely conform the form of constituency of the President to that of the Congress. With the matter proposed to be deleted shown in parentheses and the proposed new matter italicized, the second paragraph of Article II, of the Constitution, reads:

"Each State shall choose (appoint in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct), a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress, and each elector shall be chosen in the same manner as his counterpart member of the Congress; but no Senator or Representative or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States shall be chosen (appointed) elector."

Another important and far-reaching effect of the Coudert plan would be the extension of availability for nomination as candidates for President, to able men in all of the 48 States of the Union, and the extension of the campaign over the entire country. These effects would be by-products of giving one presidential elector to the voters of each congressional district and only two to the whole body of voters in each State.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Mr. Churchill's Riddle

IT IS NOT OFTEN that Winston Churchill speaks in riddles. He did not do so at Fulton, where his plain words about plain facts sent the woolly minded into agonies of wishful revulsion. But at the Massachustees Institute of Technology last week, he chose to wrap up the hard, terrible kernel of his meaning in such a way that it has actually escaped attention.

Perhaps he chose to do this because what he was really saying was so terrible, so unpalatable, that even he did not believe the time had come to use plain words again. But Mr. Churchill being Mr. Churchill, it is none the less important to extract this kernel of his meaning from its rich philosophical wrappings.

The significant passages of the great M. I. T. speech came at the close. In a relentlessly marshalled series of judgments, Mr. Churchill broke down the world problem as follows:

First: The Soviet Union now confronts us with "something quite as wicked but in some ways more formidable than Hitler." The Soviet government is "pursuing imperialist expansion as no czar or kaiser" ever did.

Second: Only "the deterrent of the atomic bomb in the hands of the United States" holds the Soviet Union in check at present. If it had not been for this deterrent, "Europe would have been communized and London under bombardment some time ago."

Third: "We have certainly not an unlimited period of time before a settlement should be achieved. The utmost vigilance should be practiced. But I do not think myself that violent or precipitate action should be taken now."

Fourth: It is worth watching and waiting for a while, because something may yet occur to change the course of history, as the death of Ghenghis Khan caused the sudden retreat of the Mongol hordes, at the very instant when all Europe lay open to their conquest.

WHAT IS NOTABLE about this series of judgments is how much Mr. Churchill preferred merely to imply. What did he mean by denying that we had "an unlimited period of time before a settlement should be achieved?" To what was he referring when he said he did not think violent or precipitate action should be taken now," with sharp emphasis on the "now?" At what was he hinting, in his brilliant historical reminiscence of the death of Ghenghis Khan? Here is the knot of the riddle, which can be unravelled in only one way.

Paraphrasing Mr. Churchill is a bold enterprise. Yet his meaning becomes obvious at once, if simple, positive statements are substituted for his surcharged double negatives. Do this, beginning with the second of the four judgments above, and the following emerges:

"Because of the deterrent of the atomic bomb in the hands of the United States, we are safe for the present, if we practice the utmost vigilance. But there is a limit to this period of safety. Thereafter a settlement should be achieved. This may require violent and precipitate action. And it is worth putting off this action, because the death of Stalin or some other unforeseen event may shortly unleash an inner convulsion in the Soviet Union, which will suspend Russian imperialism and cause the Soviet power to contract within Russia's former borders."

There is here no straining of Mr. Churchill's actual words, except by crudely mentioning the death of Stalin, so clearly pointed to by the Ghenghis Khan parallel. There is here, also, a bleak statement of two simple alternatives.

In Mr. Churchill's opinion, it is apparent that we have only two ways to survival. Either Russia will change radically and soon, or, when the "not unlimited period" of our safety begins to run out, we must force a preventive crisis, leading if need be to preventive war, in order to secure a settlement with the Kremlin. When this will be necessary is suggested by his emphasis on the temporary American monopoly on atomic energy. In short, there must be a showdown before the Kremlin possesses a people's democratic bomb.

HERE IS THE FIRST serious public suggestion—dim and roundabout, to be sure—that preventive action may ultimately be necessary to counter the Soviet menace. Coming from anyone but the greatest living figure of the west, so startling a suggestion might be ignored, but tens of millions of men have perished, the very foundations of civilization have been shaken, because Mr. Churchill's warnings were too blithely dismissed on a previous occasion. This speech, so generally regarded as no more than the peaceful, rich expression of an old leader's philosophy, may later seem as definite a turning point as the all-too-prophetic speech at Fulton.

Why Food-Drug Checks Cannot Be Divided

By Edward Brown Williams

Former Assistant General Counsel, Federal Security Agency

YOUR March 28 editorial, "Welfare Reports," takes note of the proposal of the Hoover Commission that the functions of the Food and Drug Administration relating to foods be transferred to the Department of Agriculture, and that those relating to drugs be transferred to the Health Bureau of a proposed new United Medical Administration.

The Food and Drug Administration, now a constituent unit of the Federal Security Agency, has been at the job of policing interstate shipments of food and drugs since 1906 with conspicuous success.

The commission's proposal would involve the subjection of the policy-making and enforcement function in food regulatory activities and food standard-making to a producer-minded department rather than, as now, to an agency whose interests are not geared to any one segment of the population.

THE AIM of the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as its legislative history amply demonstrates, is the protection of the public interest in the integrity and honest marketing of foods, drugs, and cosmetics. It will certainly be granted that the Department of Agriculture would enforce the food provisions of the law in the consumer interest as that interest appears to it.

But the farmer is also a consumer. Can it reasonably be supposed that his interest as a particular class—a minority—would not weigh with some heaviness upon policy-forming personnel who, in effect, represent that interest and that this influence would not make itself felt in regulatory matters which concern both industry and the general public?

The commission's task force on agriculture recognized that "occasional" conflicts arise between consumer and agricultural interests and achieve substantial political significance, but stated that such controversies are, after all, "relatively infrequent." The fact is that such controversies underly every contest in the Food and Drug Administration's important food-standard-hearings where the use of chemical substitutes for natural products is involved, as well as controversies such as those mentioned in the report of the commission's task force.

THE PRIMARY interest of the Department of Agriculture is in the rural life activities of the country and not in the regulation of commercial practices. The fact that it does exercise regulatory functions in other than its primary field is no valid reason for adding to those functions.

Eight years ago, in recommending to Congress the transfer of the Food and Drug Administration from the Department of Agriculture to the Federal Security Agency, President Roosevelt said that "The work of the Food and Drug Administration is unrelated to the basic functions of the Department of Agriculture," and expressed the belief that "the opportunity for the Food and Drug Administration to develop along the increasingly constructive lines" lay in the Federal Security Agency. These reasons are as applicable today as they were then.

The proposal would entail the loss of the effective continuity of policy and personnel maintained for many years by the Food and Drug Administration, and it would result in unnecessary and wasteful duplication by the Department of Agriculture and the new medical agency of headquarters and field administrative, technical, and inspection personnel and laboratory equipment.

ADOPTION of the commission's proposal would create overlaps and conflicts of jurisdiction more troublesome than those which would be eliminated.

The Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act contains numerous basic provisions common to food, drug, and cosmetic regulation, for example: the criminal, seizure, and injunction provisions; authority to promulgate exempting regulations as well as regulations establishing affirmative requirements; and certain very basic misbranding and adulteration provisions.

It would be intolerable to have two agencies following different enforcement and regulatory policies under the same or substantially identical provisions of the same law. Carriers and industry would be faced with investigations of their records, plants, and warehouses by two different sets of inspectors instead of one, as now.

Under the law, many articles may be subject to regulation as both foods and drugs, according to the uses to which they are to be put and whether they are listed as drugs in the United States Pharmacopoeia, the National Formulary, or the Homeopathic Pharmacopoeia, the official drug compendia. The United States Pharmacopoeia alone lists as drugs more than 35 common foods.

A manufacturer of vitamin pills who succeeded in clearing his product as a drug with the splinter of the divided Food and Drug Administration enforcing the provisions of law relating to drugs—the medical agency—might, nevertheless, find the product seized and himself prosecuted criminally by the food splinter—the Department of Agriculture—for the violation of identical provisions relating to foods.

This is not an unlikely situation. Manufacturers and shippers have suffered similar painful experiences as a result of the present divided jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission, which polices advertising of foods and drugs, and the Food and Drug Administration, which regulates labeling of the same articles.

COMMISSIONERS James K. Pollock anad James H. Rowe, jr., dissented from the commission's recommendation and have recorded an excellent statement of their reasons. The task force on agricultural activities proposed the shift of all functions of the Food and Drug Administration to the Department of Agriculture; the task force on public welfare said they should all go to the Public Health Service; and the task force on Federal medical services wanted them placed in the Public Health Division of a proposed National Bureau of Health. Such unanimity of difference is not conducive to confidence in the Commission's conclusions in this matter.

It seems clear that better reasons must be advanced if the change recommended by the commission is to be justified on the record. As a matter of fact, the commission has succeeded only in a penetration of the bare periphery of the food and drug regulatory problem. It has obscured the real issues by the adoption of an over-simplified pattern of functional alignment apparently based on product origin rather than on the purpose and character of the regulatory function itself.

300 at Citizen Group Meeting Vote Negro Residence Action

About 300 persons decided at a meeting of the Citizens Association of River Terrace last night to investigate what action may be taken against Negro residence in the neighborhood.

The northeast neighborhood has been aroused since Saturday night when Odis Van Blasingame, a Negro, and his family, moved into a house at 3303 Ames st, ne.

Hot tempers were in evidence at the start of the meeting but things cooled off and a six-man committee, headed by J. F. St. Peter, of 3314 Ames st. nw was appointed to make the study.

Among other things, the committee was directed to investigate whether legal aspects of the Blasingame's purchase of the house had been completed.

The committee was appointed at an impromptu session in the association's regular meeting place, River Terrace Chapel (Episcopal), Anacostia ave. and Clay st. ne.

The citizens also voted that "a dollar or more" be collected from members and other residents of the area by volunteers, and used to hire counsel if legal advice is needed. The action would be "in the name of the citizens of River Terrace," not the association.

Clifford Newell, former president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, advised the meeting to "keep calm and keep your heads."

"I it is true that settlement has not been made upon this home, then there are legal factors we can interject. If that cannot be done, let us do what we have a right to do," Newell said.

He proposed ostracism, because "no self respecting person wants to stay in a community where no one else wants him," and also application of a "clean-up program."

This means, Newell said "that you will see that undesirable neighbors live up to everything the health department wants them to do, that zoning laws are adhered to, see to it that no nuisances are committed in that house."

Newell said he was "very sorry" to hear that stones had been thrown at the house, and said it was probably done by children."

The association is to meet again at 8 p. m. Thursday in the parish hall.

Trial Postponed As Jury List Excludes Negroes

Ludowici, Ga., April 3 (U.P.).—Judge Mel Price, of the Atlanta Circuit Court, ruled today that a Negro cannot be tried for murder at the current term because Negroes have been deliberately excluded from jury lists.

R. B. Harris, a Negro charged with slaying of another Negro, Harley Daniels, was released on bond and his case will not come up again until September. Meanwhile Price ordered the jury lists revised.

Members of the jury commission testified at a hearing that Negroes were arbitrarily struck from the lists in 1948. The clerk of the commission said that he deleted the names at the direction of members.

Long County, of which Ludowici is the seat, has a 40 per cent Negro population.

Sheriff Says Klan Seized 7 Negroes; Flogging Reported

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 3 (AP).—Sheriff John Lynch of Dade County, Ga., said seven Chattanooga Negroes were taken from him by a group of hooded Ku Klux Klansmen last night near Hooker, Ga.

One of the Negroes reported tonight all seven were flogged by the Klansmen.

The Negroes were taken, Lynch said from the home of Mrs. Minnie Clay. The sheriff explained he had received complaints about "wild parties" at the woman's house and took three deputies "up to raid the place."

"As we started to raid it," he said, "the Klansmen took the men away from us and told us to leave.

"There wasn't anything else for us to do but leave. What would you do if there were 50 or 100 men around and ordered you to leave?"

One of the Negroes, William West, hotel porter, said they were put into a station wagon, driven a short distance, taken out and flogged.

corner shouted "Hit him, hit him," Mrs. Blasingame said, and the sound of rocks were heard against the house.

The fire department was summoned, and came so quickly, she said, that someone else must have put a call in, too.

Just as the fire department was leaving the rear of the house and policemen were ringing the front doorbell, more stones were heard against the back of the house. A window on the first floor and another on the second were broken.

It was the first of several calls by police that night, Blasingame said, and they were told that a squad car would pass the house regularly that night and a patrolman would be assigned to the neighborhood.

Sunday morning Police Inspector George R. Wallrodt visited them, Blasingame said, and told them that in addition to the patrolman he would have two plainclothesmen in the neighborhood. He said police also would try to determine who had broken the windows.

In between visits from the police Saturday night, Blasingame said, they had two other callers: a man who gave his name as Sylvester and a woman who said she was Mrs. Fraser of 3351 Clay place.

They said there had been a citizens' meeting; they had decided they were not going to sell their homes and had come to inquire if the Blasingames would sell, Blasingame said.

"I said we would sell, but at a profit," he said, and the meeting ended on that note.

Mrs. Fraser, he added, "said the KKK was in the neighborhood, but she did not know any members of the organization. She said she had seen crosses burned on Clay place."

Blasingame is a graduate of a South Carolina college, according to his wife, who said she had attended junior college in Chicago for two years.

George Shupp, 3301 Ames st., who said his occupation was construction supervisor, declared the first he had known of Negroes moving into the adjoining house was when he saw them.

He said he knew nothing about the cause of the fire, or the stoning, but had notified the fire department when he saw the fire.

Shupp and Edward P. Klepac, a police private of 3305 Ames st., have occupied their houses since they were built about seven years ago.

Klepac also said he did not know that Negroes were to occupy the house between him and Shupp until after the Blasingames had moved in. Earlier, he said, he had been busy bringing his wife and infant son, John Edward, home from the hospital.

Both Klepac and Shupp said they attended a hastily called meeting of the Citizens Association of River Terrace Saturday night at the River Terrace Church House, 415 34th st. ne.

No action was taken at the meeting, Shupp said, because the president, Robert F. Tibbets of 3333 Blaine st. ne., was not present, but two members had volunteered to visit the Blasingames and "find out their attitude."

Shupp estimated that until the Burlingames moved into the Ames street house the nearest Negroes lived "about 20 blocks" away. Klepac, a private at the Second Precinct, thought the nearest Negro residences were "a couple of miles" away.

Blasingame hedged on identifying the seller of the house, but said "he (the seller) is doing what everyone else is doing, selling to the highest bidder."

HERE'S TO THE Ladies!

The women of America are directly or indirectly responsible for the spending—or saving—of more than 70% of our $224,500,000,000 national income. That's a mighty heavy responsibility and we take off our hats to the sound way most women handle their affairs. But here at the Union Trust we don't let it go at that. We try to provide the type of friendly assistance the ladies appreciate in their banking transactions.

About 50 per cent of our depositors are women. They find our offices in the heart of the shopping district most convenient. They like to meet their friends—or rest a moment or two—in the comfortable lounge at the center of our 15th and H Streets customers' lobby.

More important, our women depositors like the higher interest rate (1½% on sums up to $2500—1% over this amount) on savings at the Union Trust Company. They are pleased, too, with our checking account plans designed to suit most needs and pocketbooks.

AS A SPECIAL SERVICE to the women of Washington, we are offering, free of charge, a helpful booklet—"WOMEN—AND THEIR MONEY"—published by the Public Affairs Committee, Inc. of New York. This booklet answers many business questions of vital interest to women, questions on investments in bonds, stocks and other securities, whether to rent or buy a home, how to provide for special needs, where to turn for financial advice, and many more. To get your FREE COPY of "WOMEN—AND THEIR MONEY" just ask at either of our offices—or write to Department B, Union Trust Company, 15th and H Streets, N. W., Washington, D. C.

New Plane Carries Four Giant Missiles

Long Beach, Calif., April 3 (NYHT).— A loading demonstration of a new transport plane capable of carrying four giant V-2 type rocket missiles and their launching crew to bases more than 2000 miles from the United States was given here today.

The plane, the Douglas C-124, also will be able to carry medium tanks, field guns, derricks, bulldozers and large trucks for long distances. In the event of war the craft would be one of the main instruments of world-wide airborne transport for the Army and the Air Force.

Intercontinental Weapons

By transporting relatively short-range atom-bomb-carrying guided missiles to bases fairly close to their targets, the new transport in effect could transform the missiles into intercontinental weapons. The C-124 is built to carry with ease a payload of 50,000 pounds, and the German V-2 weapon reportedly weighs less than 9000 pounds without its fuel.

Both the United States and Russian navies already are employing the missile-carrying idea in another medium, it is known definitely. At Point Mugu, near here, specially equipped submarines move out to sea frequently with no attempt at concealment to fire various types of missiles developed by Navy scientists.

Red Missile Launchings

Reports believed to be authentic describing test missile lautchings by the Red navy from collapsible metal platforms erected between two surfaced submarines.

At present every factory in the West Coast cluster of aircraft plants is working on missiles of various types and sizes, while scientific institutions, such as the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, perform basic research in the field.

Hughes Aircraft at Culver City, Calif., owned by Howard Hughes, for example, is developing a supersonic missile, known only as the JB-3 and designed to attack aircraft and missiles in the air.

Byrd Assails Vinson's View As Backing Insubordination

By the United Press

Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) said yesterday Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee had recommended what amounts to "insubordination" by military leaders.

Byrd took issue with Vinson's recent statement that Congress should depend on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, rather than the White House, for advice on military spending.

Vinson had said he would put his "confidence" in the Joint Chiefs of Staff when it came to deciding "our national needs."

Byrd, without mentioning Vinson by name, said:

"I accord the military authorities the right and privilege of explanation and discussion, but I should regard such excesses as have been proposed as insubrdination."

Vinson hotly shot back:

"The Joint Chiefs of Staff is the Nation's best qualifiec authority on military matters, and Congress, in reaching its own decisions, must give careful consideration to what its members have to say."

Dispatched to Hospital

Collins said he was working the morning Rowell was beaten. He received a call from the dispatcher to go to Garfield Hospital to see if he could help the man, Collins said.

"The way he talked, he definitely knew who beat him up," Collins said. "There is no question but that he could identify them."

In February, Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, who had transferred Detectives James Roche and Angelo Bonaccorsy from vice squad assignments, said he thought the two men "guilty as hell" of beating Rowell. "But I've got to prove it," Barrett added.

Interviewd by FBI

Collins said he had been interviewed by the FBI and had told them a similar story of his visit to Rowell at the hospital "about 5 a. m. the morning he was beaten." The beating occurred at about 4 a. m.

He has not been summoned to appear before a Federal grand jury investigating the case, Collins said.

The grand jury is expected to complete its review of evidence and hearing of witnesses in the case today.

Amputee Turns Sleuth, Finds His Stolen Car

A war veteran amputee, who did his own sleuthing, found his stolen automobile yesterday morning, just a few minutes before police also discovered it.

Jean W. Moreau, 2822 S. Abbingdon st., Arlington, a Marine colonel, who lost his right leg on Okinawa, found his car stolen from a parking space on L st. near the Statler Hotel about 2 a. m. He reported the theft to police and he and his wife returned to their home by taxicab.

About 8:30 a. m. yesterday, Moreau decided to look for the car. Since it had special controls for an amputee, he figured the thief would soon abandon it.

Moreau was right. He found the car about a block from where it had been stolen. Just as he climbed behind the wheel, up drove police, in time to mark the case closed.

2 Dead, 1 Injured In Boat Blast

Elkton, Md., April 3 (AP).—Two men are dead and another is in critical condition here today from injuries, suffered when a boiler blew up on a dredge boat.

The boat was working in the Elk River, 3 miles south of here when the explosion occurred yesterday.

Frank Zalewski, 23, of Elkton, died last night, nine hours after he had been brought into Union Hospital here. He was sitting next to the boiler eating his lunch when it exploded. Chief Engineer William Kinton, 29, of Charles Town, Md., died early today of burns over his entire body.

A third crewman, 51-year-old William McMillan of North East, Md., is in critical condition.

"heard a thing" about possible congressional action.

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), who was quoted in a Sunday newspaper as saying he thought the Senate committee "should look into the current gambling investigation," denied having made such a statement.

He said his only feeling in the matter is that "We should give the District home rule and let it conduct its own investigations."

Rep. Hobbs Keeps Eye on Check of Big Truck Drivers

By the United Press

Representative Sam Hobbs (D., Ala.) said yesterday he is "keeping a very close eye" on the current Nation-wide check by the Teamsters Union (AFL) of the union status of over-the-road truck drivers.

He said he "imagined" the Justice Department also is watching to see that there are no violations of the Hobbs antiracketeering law. The act makes it a crime for anyone to "obstruct, delay or affect" interstate commerce.

The 15-day checkup on the union status of long-distance truck drivers began last Friday. It was ordered by Dave Beck, vice president of the Teamsters Union, in the first step of a campaign to sign up all truck drivers from coast to coast.

6000 X-Rayed in Fairfax

More than 6000 Fairfax County residents took advantage of the free chest X-ray service in a 10-day county-wide tuberculosis survey conducted last month. This was announced yesterday by Dr. Henry C. Bradford, county health officer. He said confidential reports will be sent to individuals as soon as they have been tabulated.

Broadcast Plea For Blood Donors Proves a Hoax

Baltimore, April 3 (AP).—About 50 persons rushed to a Baltimore hospital today less than 15 minutes after a radio station had broadcast an emergency appeal for blood donors to save the life of a 6-year-old girl.

But when the volunteers arrived at the Franklin Square Hospital, they were bewildered to find no such patient there.

The radio station, the hospital, the 50 persons and the police concluded that it was a hoax.

Announcer Ted Phillips, who put out the emergency appeal over WCBM, said the station received a telephone call from an apparently hysterical woman who said that a 6-year-old girl had been hit by a car.

A few moments later, a calm-voiced woman who identified herself as "Nurse Robertson" of Franklin Square Hospital called and asked for blood donors, Phillips said.

He broadcast the appeal at 3:22 p. m. By 3:30 Chief Nurse Elinor Helsten said, the volunteers began arriving at the hospital.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

Ever have a "ring and run" telephone caller? Yesterday afternoon, I was out in the kitchen making up some cookies to send to my nephew Tom (Tom is a corporal now at Camp Lee). Just when I was up to my elbows in cookie dough, the telephone began to ring.

I washed my hands as quick as I could and hurried in to answer it. But whoever it was that called only waited a few rings and then hung up. By the time I got there, there was no one on the line. I do wish people would give a body a minute to answer the telephone!

I suppose things like that work both ways, however. Perhaps I haven't been so patient, either, when calling other folks. From now on, I'm going to wait at least ten rings before I hang up.

Arlington Men Top Bridge Competition

By Marian Barre

John McDermott and Irving Rottenberg of Arlington, defending the open pair bridge championship of Washington, qualified top in their section in the first half of the match played yesterday afternoon at the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria.

Forty teams entered the match. Out of the entries 24 survived for the finals in the evening.

Among other qualified leaders were J. G. Stone of Washington and Col. R. H. Skinner of Alexandria, in partnership; T. H. Shultz and W. R. Canada of Lynchburg, Va., Arthur Schlesinger and James Hunter of Baltimore.

The mixed pair title, in competition on Saturday, fell to Mrs. W. M. McIntyre and Ralph Spritzer, both of Washington. Miss Margaret Hamilton and James Hunter, Baltimore, were runners-up.

Postlude

Hendl Leads Symphony as Season Ends

By Richard Keith

Walter Hendl, young American conductor, led the National Symphony yesterday afternoon in its final concert of the season at Constitution Hall.

It was a colorful and well-built program of easily comprehensible music. The orchestra has seldom sounded as large and sonorous as it did under Mr. Hendl's leadership.

Peter Mennin's Folk Overture, which opened yesterday's concert, is a skillfully written composition with a splendid ending. The effective ending of a work is one of the most difficult tasks that a composer faces and Mr. Mennin has accomplished it successfully. The important weaknesses in the piece are that it goes on too long and that it tends to fall into arbitrary sections, alternately loud and soft.

Symphonies Contrast

Two sharply contrasting symphonies, Schumann's First and Prokofieff's "Classical," made up the major portion of the program. Mr. Hendl seemed more at home with Schumann than with Prokofieff because his interpretations are decidedly on the romantic side. The "Classical" Symphony lacked the requisite precision needed to put it over.

In the two Nocturnes, "Clouds" and "Festivals" by Debrussy, the orchestra gave one of its finest performances of the season. The strings provided a vibrant background to the expert and colorful playing of the brass, woodwind, and percussion. An exceedingly passionate performance of Tschaikowsky's Romeo and Juliet closed the program.

Mr. Hendl has a split personality on the podium; at times he seems so bored that he does little but stand there, and at others, he is intensely engrossed in the music. The first personality was undoubtedly responsible for many of the ragged edges in yesterday's performance and the second for the many thrilling moments.

Balogh Plays Piano At National Gallery

Erno Balogh, pianist, gave a recital last evening at the National Gallery, made up largely of modern music. It included a transcription and an original suite by Bartok, a suite by Burrill Phillips, two pieces by Debussy and a group of Latin-American compositions.

Mr. Balogh is a brilliant and expert performer, at his best in baroque and modern music. His tone is not very sympathetic, but its unusual clarity makes up for any lack of warmth. His frugal use of the pedal was particularly advantageous in the resonant Gallery court. He was in much finer form last night than in his previous Washington appearance this season at Howard University.

N. & W. Road Has 12% Rise In Revenues

Philadelphia, April 3 (AP).—Revenues of Norfolk & Western Railway Co., in 1948 were the largest in the road's history, the company disclosed today.

Total freight, passenger, mail, express and other revenues amounted to $200,264,607, a 12 per cent, or more than 21 million dollar rise over the 1947 figure.

Income, after allowances for sinking funds and miscellaneous appropriations, amounted to $35,691,370—$3,398,762 over the 1947 figure.

The road in its 53d annual report attributed the record revenue "principally to increases in rates."

Freight rate increases made in 1948 added approximately $12,790,000 to revenues, the report stated.

But, the company added, wages rose steeply, and the cost of materials increased. The ratio of operating expenses to total operating revenues was 67.48 per cent, compared with 65.94 per cent in 1947.

Virginia Cancer Drive Workers Meet Wednesday

A meeting of northern Virginia campaign workers in the American Cancer Society fund drive, which opened April 1, will be held Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. at Alexandria's Hotel George Mason.

Dr. Herman Slate of Alexandria will speak on "The Cancer Problem." Edward Phillips of Richmond, State campaign manager, will speak on the 1949 campaign. Workers from Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William Counties, which comprise the Tenth District of the State division, have been invited.

The district drive's goal has been scaled down from $275,000 to $225,000 because the purchase of a cancer mobile unit has been postponed.

Police Discover Car Thief Dead In Stolen Coupe

New York, April 3 (U.P.).—A car thief who had an early morning date with the FBI was found dead today in a stolen coupe, apparently murdered by fellow thieves who feared he would squeal, police reported.

Detectives said Joseph F. Mirenda, 35, an automobile thief for 20 years, had an appointment with the FBI at 7 a. m. He had been informing to the FBI regarding a Nation-wide car-stealing ring since his latest arrest on January 17, they said.

Mirenda was found slumped over the wheel of his stolen car with five bullets in his head and one in his chest, police said.

Railroads Forecast Car Loading Decline

By The Associated Press

One on the Aisle—

'Snowbound' Gets Lost in the Alps

By Richard L. Coe

"SNOWBOUND," at the Hippodrome, is one of those pictures in which you think that sooner or later something might happen. It doesn't.

They seem to happen right enough. A London movie studio, a hut in the Italian Alps, all manner of mysterious characters, an attempt at murder on a lonely ski junket, an Alpine storm, rumbles of the Fourth Reich and a crackling fire role before your eyes. But there's no foundation all the way down the line.

This obviously was intended to be one of those British chiller yarns about international intrigue, but Clifford Bax, who produced it, seems to have been pulling the thing together as he went along, delving into by-paths with such reckless zeal you assume he's going to be able to tie things together. He doesn't.

There is, however, one little joke that seems to have slipped in and it's worth passing along. Concerns a man in a movie theater whose vision is somewhat hampered by the chap in front of him who's wearing a fur coat. Eventually he realizes that it's not a man in a fur coat at all, but a bear. So he asks the man with the bear why he's brought him to the movies. "Why, he wanted to see the picture," says the bear's companion. "I can't think why a bear would want to see a movie," replies our hero. "Neither can I," says the furry one's pal, "but he insisted because he was awfully keen on the book."

Now, I grant you any movie with that in it promises well, but the gag is just a device to heighten the tension of something else which isn't quite so amusing. Still, it's a shame that a movie that tells such a pleasant little yarn has to get so balled up.

The idea is that when Italy capitulated the Germans hauled the national gold off to Hitler's Reich, which it never reached because the officer in charge had the bright idea of hiding the gold for himself to pick up after the war was over. A half dozen sleazy folk picked up the facts and congregate in the Alpine hut to dig treasure.

The story is adapted from a book by Hammond Innes, "The Lonely Skier." The cast is reasonable enough, but the producer and director lacked the discipline to pull the virtues together.

M-G-M's silver-thatched tenor, Lauritz Melchior, who seems to have left Wagner and the Met for Hollywood and African game hunting, gets into town and his Melchior suite at the Raleigh shortly for his recital in Constitution Hall Wednesday night . . . The burly Sinatra of "Luxury Liner" will be singing Wagnerian favorites as well as the popular songs he's done in Metro's color musicals . . . The concert's for the Allied College Benefit, aiding Connecticut, Goucher, Pembroke and Simmons colleges and their scholarship funds . . . Seats downtown at the Snow agency in Campbell's, 1108 G st.

GEORGE WASHINGTON University's Student Council has a novel entertainment for juniors and seniors of the area's high schools . . . This is a musical fantasy, "Johnny Jones," wherein Johnny signs up for more classes and activities than he can possibly handle . . . Pete Smith (the university's, not Metro's) and Jack Scott wrote this and with Smith directing, the cast will include Tom Pence, Louise Whiting, Dick Hildreth, Jacqueline Jacoby and a horde of others . . . The high scholars will see the show Wednesday night at Lisner Auditorium.

Six Adrift at Sea 14 Days Rescued

Tampico, Mexico, April 3 (AP).—Six American seamen were rescued by a Mexican fishing boat today after they had drifted for 14 days.

The men were the crew of the Caicos Trader of Miami. During their two weeks in a lifeboat, they had only six bottles of tomato juice and a few quarts of water.

Those rescued were Capt. Thomas J. McCrory, Chief Engineer Ellsworth Totu, Navigator Homer L. Johnson, Engineer Richard A. Williams, Cook C. G. Smith and Seaman William H. Norton, jr., all of Miami.

The Caicos Trader sailed March 19 from Campeche with a load of frozen shrimp. The next day the engines broke down and could not keep the water out of the ship. The crew took to their 9-foot boat.

Sheets were made into a rough sail, but the wind died down and the small boat drifted until it was sighted by the fishing boat Mesones off Tampico.

Loss of Legs No Bar to Work

CHARLES W. DISMER
. . . Red Cross worker

Amputee, 72, Works at Walter Reed Hospital

Charlie Dismer, 72, isn't a man to use a double leg amputation as an excuse to fiddle away his time.

About five years ago, Dismer, who lives at 1316 Hemlock st. nw., had to quit work in his nephew's hardware store when both his legs were amputated for diabetes.

Confined to a wheel chair at home, he went to work as a Red Cross production unit volunteer, turning out labels for surgical supplies. For nearly five years, he's put in a full eight-hour day, seven days a week, making up supplies for use at Walter Reed Hospital.

He works almost constantly at home, cutting and stringing labels for medical use, from raw materials his wife picks up weekly from the Red Cross unit at Walter Reed. There are usually 3000 to 4000 finished tags to be returned at the end of each week.

Dismer, a saloon-keeper back in preprohibition days, was proprietor of Dismer's Place in the 700 block of K st. before the Volstead Act put him out of business.

During World War I he went to work in the hardware store at 3117 14th st. nw. and kept at the job until five years ago.

"It helps to know I can still be useful to somebody," is the way Dismer feels about his work.

As for the Red Cross—it's mighty grateful.

Labor Disorders Reported in Osaka

Tokyo, April 3 (AP).—The Kyodo news agency reported today that 1000 police had to use fire hoses to disperse labor demonstrators in a two-hour battle at Osaka Saturday.

It said 21 demonstrators were arrested. Twenty-three thousand were estimated to have attended the anti-government rally sponsored by the Communist-dominated Congress of Industrial Unions.

Woman Olympic Champ Turns Concert Pianist

Paris, April 3 (U.P.).—Micheline Ostermeyer, who won the women's Olympic shotput and discus championships for France last summer, was successfully started today on an entirely different career—as a concert pianist.

Miss Ostermeyer, 26, who has been studying music since she was 4 years old, gave her first important concert last night at the Salle Gaveau, one of Paris' principal concert halls.

Marshall Spikes Rumors He'd Take N. Carolina Post

Pinehurst, N. C., April 3 (AP).—Gen. George C. Marshall today dashed any hopes that he would accept the presidency of the University of North Carolina.

"I could not accept," the general told a newsman following an unofficial proposal by Cameron Morrison, former United States Senator and a trustee of the university, that Marshall be offered the post.

The university presidency was vacated last week when Dr. Frank P. Graham was appointed United States Senator.

In his statement today, General Marshall said, in part:

"I naturally feel much complimented by these actions but even though the proposition is on such an exceedingly tentative basis, it seems advisable for me to make a statement.

"In the very unlikely event that my name might be favorably considered for the appointment, I could not accept."

McCarran to Address Bar Unit Thursday

Senator Pat McCarran (D. Nev.), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, will address the Administrative Law Section of the District Bar Association at its annual dinner at 7 p. m. Thursday at the Shoreham Hotel.

Senator McCarran, who has recently introduced a bill into the Senate calling for the creation of a new Administrative Court of the United States, will discuss various aspects of "Administrative Law Reform."

Are You- SOCIALLY SHY?
BECAUSE OF PSORIASIS
ENEMY OF BEAUTY
Are you forced to pass up formal parties because of psoriasis lesions? Then try SIROIL. It may help you, as it has so many thousands of others. SIROIL tends to remove the crusts and scales of psoriasis which are external in character and located on the outer layer of the skin. If or when your psoriasis lesions recur, light applications of SIROIL will help keep them under control. Applied externally SIROIL does not stain clothing or bed linens, nor does it interfere in any way with your daily routine. Try it. Certainly it's worth a trial, particularly since it's offered to you on a two-weeks' satisfaction-or-money-refunded basis.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., APRIL 3.—Baseball Commissioner Chandler has been reminding his employers who their boss is, the same being Chandler himself, as he views it. His latest demonstration came a few weeks ago when some of the faint-hearted club owners tried to sue for peace with the Mexican jumpers who now have them in court.

POVICH

Unknown to Chandler, certain National League owners and the attorneys of the two major leagues, the Messrs. Lou Carroll of the National and Ben Fiery of the American, recommended that Chandler's five-year ban on the jumpers be lifted. They attempted to enlist the support of all club owners in letters sent to each team.

Chandler hit the ceiling when a friendly owner, Clark Griffith, informed him of the move. "I'll handle this, or baseball can have a new commissioner," he thundered, and told the Messrs. Fiery and Carroll, in effect, to go crawl in a hole.

He went farther than that and virtually shelved 'em as baseball's counsel in the pending suits, selecting his own man, John Lord O'Brian, famed anti-trust authority.

IN ORLANDO TODAY, Chandler was beaming at the first victory won by organized baseball in the pending suits when Judge Conger of New York ruled that Max Lanier and Fred Martin had no right to reinstatement pending settlement of their damage suit. Chandler is carrying with him a transcript of the court's opinion in which Judge Conger cited that both players had "voluntarily" left the teams they are now seeking to rejoin.

But he's still peeved at the National League owners who tried to get an out-of-court settlement. He got wind of a special meeting they planned for that purpose and commanded them to call it off. "If they want somebody to negotiate a surrender for them, they'd better hire themselves a new commissioner," said Chandler today.

And he revealed also that he had cracked down on Walter Feely, the attorney of the New York Giants, who has been giving out statements casting doubt on the legality of the reserve clause. He told owner Horace Stoneham to quiet Feely or get a new attorney, else the commissioner's office would take action.

"AS LONG AS I have men like Connie Mack and Clark Griffith in my corner, I'm not afraid to proceed," said Chandler. "Mr. Griffith made himself plain to the club owners who wanted to settle when he answered their letter in the return mail. He told them they had nothing to be afraid of and that if baseball was operating illegally they ought to be glad for a show-down. Said he wouldn't have any part in hushing anything up."

Chandler revealed that he knew of two pieces of Federal legislation being readied for Congress by Senator Ed Johnson of Colorado and Representative Sid Herlong of Florida. The bills are aimed at removing any taint of interstate commerce from baseball. As it happens, both members of Congress are baseball men. Herlong is president of the Florida State League, Johnson heads the Western Association.

"Baseball can't be a party to any such legislation," said Chandler. "It would never inspire any such bills in Congress. We value the friendship and good will of Mr. Johnson and Mr. Herlong, and we cannot restrain them, but as commissioner I am maintaining a hands-off attitude."

CHANDLER COUNTS solidly on the support of all American League owners and league president Will Harridge. He knows there is opposition to him in the National League from a couple of sources, but he dismisses that as trivial.

"Some persons have never lost interest in their efforts to oust me, but they won't succeed. They can have my resignation, though, any time they don't permit me to act with conscience. They ran to cover when we had the trouble with the Mexican League and asked me to see them out of that. Happily, we settled is amicably, but they were a scared bunch. They're scared now."

Chandler's favorite comment is that he doesn't frighten easily. "I've been beaten, but I've never been scared. It's no sin to lose if you give your best effort, but running away is different. Baseball has nothing to be ashamed of, and those men who are running away from the battle are doing it a disservice."

Coan Slams One 420 Ft. But Pitchers Walk 11 Men

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., April 3.—The Nats hit all the home runs in a slugfest with the Athletics today at Tinker Field. At the finish, it was a 9-7 game that the Nats didn't win before 3000 spectators.

Connie Mack and Clark Griffith who blushed through a testimonial speech at home plate by Commissioner A. B. Chandler before the game, continued to blush furiously at the futility of their pitchers.

Thirty-nine hits were packed into the game, 17 by the Nats who wasted their blows. Ray Scarborough, who is presumed to be the Nats' best pitcher, blew a 5-2 lead, and Mickey Haefner gave up the winning runs.

Gil Coan keynoted the whole contest when he swung on Carl Scheib's first pitch of the game and whacked it far over the wall in right center for a home run estimated at 420 feet.

Robinson Slams 2-Run Homer

Eddie Robinson got into the homer act in the second inning with a swat over the rightfield wall with a man on to launch a four-run inning by the Nats. But after Scheib retired in the third inning, the Nats could muster only two runs against Charley Harris and Rookie Southpaw Alex Kellner.

Scarborough didn't recommend himself very highly for the opening game pitching job he is supposed to get against these same Athletics on April 18. After a rough but scoreless first inning he walked two men in the second and was found for a two-run single by Eddie Joost.

In the third, Scarborough walked another, was the victim of a fumble by Al Kozar, and then was belted for hits by Sam Chapman, Pete Suder, Scheib, and Joost. It added up to three runs and a 5-5 tie for the A's.

In the sixth, the A's moved in front 7-5, against Haefner who, after two were out, was the victim of Hank Majeski's Texas leaguer single to center. Rosar's single to left drove in the second run of the inning.

Calvert No Trouble

They got their eighth and ninth runs cheaply off Paul Calvert in the ninth. He walked three men in the inning and allowed one hit, Fain's single. Kozar's wild throw on a double play ball messed Calvert up.

The Nats missed a big inning in the sixth when Kozar, who had doubled, was thrown out at the plate by Taft Wright on Evans' single to center. Coan did drive in a run, though, with his third hit of the day.

In the ninth, the Nats had the tying runs on base. Dente walked, and Harris was withdrawn in favor of the left-handed Kellner. Lewis greeted him with a single, but Vollmer popped up and Yost flied out. Robinson singled to center for one run and put the tying run on, but Kozar obliged the A's with a fly ball.

Before the game, Commissioner Chandler praised the Messrs. Mack and Griffith as "founders of our great game, and two of the great men of our time . . ." Joe Kuhel gave outfielder Ed Stewart a complete rest to get a better look at Vollmer. On a day when the Nats made 16 hits, Vollmer could get only one . . . Kuhel is forgiving the fumbles of the Washington infielders here because of the uncertain diamond, but he say: "I am not excusing wild throws." . . . Eddie Robinson came out of his hitting slump with three bangs, including his homer and two singles . . . Kozar and Coan also produced three hits apiece . . . Pinch-hitter Sherry Robertson batted in tough luck in the eighth. He was out on a line-drive to Harris who made a self-defense stab of the ball on the mound.

Caps Open 7-Game Title Series Tonight Against Minneapolis

Post Reporter
By Morris Siegel

Minneapolis, Minn., April 3.—Still in business after a 60-game regular schedule and two playoff series, the Caps go for the jackpot here tomorrow night, facing Minneapolis in the opener of basketball's world series.

Monday's tussle opens a best four-out-of-seven set with the teams shuttling back to Washington and probably returning here again before a decision can be reached.

The second game will be played here Wednesday, the third and fourth at Uline's on Friday and Saturday. If other games are necessary, one will be played in Washington with the others tentatively set for Minneapolis.

The Caps are at a distinct disadvantage against the Lakers and nobody knows it any better than the Uline hot shots themselves. They're being called on to face a Laker team which has rested since Tuesday while the Caps have been commuting between Washington and New York eliminating the Knickerbockers.

What's more, the Lakers have played .775 basketball on their home floor. And also, the home club boasts one of basketball's all-time greats in George Mikan.

Strangely enough, the Caps won three of their five skirmishes against Mikanapolis this season, but the odds makers have discarded those performances and installed the Lakers a solid 9-point favorite to win tomorrow's opener.

The Caps have nobody who can come close to matching the scoring performances of the marvelous Mikan. Matter of fact, Washington usually employs from two to three men trying to stop the scoring wizard.

The Caps did manage to hold Mikan to 28 points in Washington three weeks ago, but it cost them the loss of three players on personal fouls, all fouling out trying to shackle the 6-foot-10-inch pivot man.

In his first year of BAA play, Mikan wiped out practically every record held by Philadelphia's Joe Fulks, which is doing a lot of wiping. The Lakers Georgeous George scored 1698 points in 60 games and was tops in practically every offensive department. He averaged 28.3 points per game.

Helping Mikan—as if he needed assistance—are another couple of court smoothies, Jim Pollard and Dutch Schaeffer, the Lakers' outside attack. These two hit from the outside when Mkan isn't hitting from under the boards and the records show the pair aren't exactly novices. Pollard, who like Mikan is an all-league selection, has a 14-point average while Schaeffer owns an 11-point mark.

The same unit which has seen the Caps through to preliminary victories over Philadelphia and New York will do most of the work tomorrow nght. Kleggie Hermsen and Bones McKinney (both dog-tired), Jack Nichols, Sonny Hertzberg and either Matt Zunic or Dick Schulz must carry the load for the Caps.

Bob Feerick is around, but it's extremely doubtful if he'll play. He gave his injured knee a short test against New York Saturday and learned that it still isn't strong enough.

Minneapolis, with a seasonal mark of 45-16 against Washington's 38-22, disposed of Chicago and Rochester in four games to gain the title round. The Caps required five games to eliminate a Fulks-less Warrior club and New York.

Yanks Win 5th in Row, Beat Cards

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 3 (AP).—The New York Yankees won their fifth straight exhibition game today, beating the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-1, behind the two-hit pitching of Joe Page and rookie Wally Hood.

Enos (Country) Slaughter got both Cardinal hits, a triple and a single. Slaughter's fifth-inning three-bagger led to the lone Red Bird run. Ron Northey's long fly brought the Card captain home. Page worked the first five innings and Hood the last four.

Page tripled and scored the first Yankee run on Bobby Brown's single in the third against starter Harry Brecheen. Brown tripled home George Stirnweiss in the fifth.

Brown also scored the Yanks final run in the seventh off Ted Wilks. Brown singled and came around on Gene Woodling's single and Johnny Lindell's two-bagger.

Joe DiMaggio was blanked in three trips to the plate during the six innings he played. He has now failed to hit in 13 times at bat this spring.

Giants Whip Chisox, 3-1

Phoenix, Ariz., April 3 (AP).—A three-run homer by Sid Gordon, with one out in the last of the 10th, today gave the New York Giants a 6-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The Sox had tied the count at 3-all in the eighth with a run on two singles off Sheldon Jones. In the 10th they went into the lead with a run on four singles off Andy Hansen. Then in the last of the 10th came Gordon's homer over the left-field fence with two mates aboard.

Feller, Wynn Team Up to Blank Pirates

Tucson, Ariz., April 3 (AP).—Bob Feller gave up only three hits during a six-inning stint today as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 0.

It was Feller's best performance so far this year. And it followed by only three days a statement by Tribe Manager Lou Boudreau that the big fireballer was one of the club's two disappointments of the training season.

During the six innings, he faced only 21 batters, just three over par for the distance. Early Wynn took over in the seventh and held the Pirates to one hit in the next three frames.

Cards B Team Defeat Reds, 2-1

Tampa, Fla., April 3 (U.P.).—Glenn Nelson singled to drive in two runs in the first inning today and give the St. Louis Cardinals "B" team a 2-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Cards' rally against Everett (Red) Lively consisted of a walk to Solly Hemus, a single by Hal Rice, an infield out, and the deciding blow by rookie First Baseman Nelson. The Reds were able to get only five hits, two off rookie Kurt Krieger in the first four innings and three off converted Outfielder Erv Dusak in the last five.

Dodgers Win, 16-10, But Barney Fails

Fort Worth, Tex., April 3 (U.P.).—Another poor showing by Smokeball Pitcher Rex Barney took much of the satisfaction away from the Brooklyn Dodgers today in their 16-10 victory over the Fort Worth Cats of the Texas League.

A crowd of 9254 saw Barney start for Brooklyn only to run into a wild spell during the second inning when Fort Worth scored five runs. In that rally Barney walked four batters, gave up two hits, threw a wild pitch, and made a bad throw on a fielding chance. Willard Ramsdell and Carl Erskine shared the Dodger pitching the rest of the way.

Entries Pour Into Augusta For Masters Golf Tourney

Augusta, Ga., April 3 (AP).— Entries and many of the 12,000 golf fans expected to watch the famed Masters golf tournament began pouring into Augusta today.

About 50 or more of golf's top figures will spend the next three days adding finishing touches to their games. Thursday they will start the four-day battle for one of the most prized championships in the golf circuit.

The course has been tough on par-bustrs. The record is 279, set by Ralph Guldahl in 1939 and equaled by last year's winner, Claude Harmon.

The defending champion will be on hand for the meet, along with Jimmy Demaret, two-time winner at Augusta.

Dr. Cary Middlecoff, young Memphis dentist; Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., and South Africa's Bobby Locke are other notables entered.

The tournament, which consists of four 18-hole rounds, will run through Sunday. Bobby Jones, orginator of the meet, will serve as official host but will not play.

Reserve Clause Safe—Chandler

Orlando, Fla., April 3 (U.P.).—Commissioner A. B. Chandler today reaffirmed his conviction that baseball's reserve clause will be upheld by the courts and insisted "We have never conducted illegal operations and will continue to go on that assumption until told otherwise."

The occasion was an elaborate ceremony by the Orlando Chamber of Commerce honoring Connie Mack, 86-year-old pilot of the Athletics, and Clark Griffith, 79-year-old boss of the Washington Senators.

"The courts ruled in 1922 that the reserve clause did not violate interstate commerce," Chandler said. "As far as I'm concerned, I haven't done anything illegal in barring those players who jumped to the Mexican League and violated the reserve clause which is still upheld by the courts."

Chandler has been named one of the defendants in damage suits brought by three suspended players who are asking a total of $2,800,000.

Canadiens Retain Chance For Title

Montreal, April 3 (U.P.).—Because they refused to quit when they had their backs against the wall, the Montreal Canadiens still had a chance today to win the National Hockey League Stanley Cup.

The Canadiens were on the verge of elimination in the semi-final round when they came through to defeat the pennant-winning Detroit Red Wings, 3 to 1, last night and knotted the series at three games apiece. The deciding game will be played at Detroit Tuesday with the winner meeting Toronto for the cup.

Lanier, Martin Plan to Appeal

New York, April 3 (U.P.).—Attorney John Flynn said tonight he will file an appeal tomorrow on behalf of Max Lanier and Fred Martin, suspended St. Louis Cardinals who were turned down in a request for a reinstatement injunction Friday.

Lanier and Martin, under a five-year suspension from organized baseball because they jumped to the Mexican League in 1946, sought the injunction on the grounds that the ban against them deprived them of a livelihood. Federal Judge Edward A. Conger denied their injunction request.

The two players have a damage suit totaling $2,500,000 still pending.

Martin yesterday signed to play with Sherbrooke, Quebec, in the Independent Quebec Provincial League.

"It proves what I have been saying all along," Flynn declared. "I told the court that Martin would have to leave the country to gain employment."

Alexandria Host To Speed Skaters

Sixty roller speed-skating stars from the National, and Alexandria Arenas, Baltimore, New York and New Jersey will see action tonight on the championship fund program scheduled for the new Alexandria Arena.

Profits will be reserved for sponsorship of the U. S. Amateur Roller Skating Associations's nation's championships and the America-On-Wheels competition. The program starts at 9:30 o'clock and features four races.

Yankees Option Pitcher Johnson; Lindell to Hurl

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 3 (U.P.).—The New York Yankees today optioned 22-year-old right-handed Pitcher Don Johnson to the Sacramento Solons of the Pacific Coast League.

Manager Casey Stengel also announced that Pitcher Frank Shea will make his spring debut in a camp game Tuesday and that huge Johnny Lindell, currently the No. 1 reserve outfielder, will pitch in a camp game on Thursday before the Yanks break camp.

Johnson, the sensation of the Yankee camp in 1947, divided his time with Newark of the International League and Kansas City of the American Association last year. The 22-year-old hurler won one game and lost three for Newark and copped three and dropped seven for Kansas City.

Cincy Options Catcher Lamanno

Tampa, Fla., April 3 (U.P.).—The Cincinnati Reds pulled their biggest surprise of the training season today when they optioned Ray Lamanno, last year's first-string catcher, to the Syracuse Chiefs of the International League.

Lamanno 29, was bothered this spring by a lame throwing shoulder for which he had been taking X-ray treatments, but his departure was completely unexpected. Reds Manager Bucky Walters rates Ray Mueller his regular receiver with Homer (Dixie) Howell and Rookie John Pramesa in reserve.

Schoolboy Golfers Play Return Engagement As Part of Celebrities Tourney in June

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The schoolboy golfers who made such a hit in last year's National Celebrities Golf Tournament haye been called back for a return engagement.

Semifinals and finals of the sixteenth annual Washington Post Schoolboy Golf Tournament will be held as part of the Celebrities event June 4-5 at the Army-Navy Golf and Country Club.

Qualifying tests for the Schoolboy tourney are set for May 16 at Manor. First round match play takes place May 17 at Indian Spring and quarterfinals May 19 at Chevy Chase.

Billy Wolfe, 15-year-old Montgomery Hills Junior High student is defending champ. Runnerup was Dick Foster, 17-year-old captain of the Coolidge High team.

Page Thompson, Mount Vernon High of Alexandria's .400 hitting shortstop for the past two seasons, has been "demoted" to the junior varsity this season.

It is not because he's lost his batting eye, he's meeting the ball just as squarely as ever. It's just that he has been a varsity regular since he was in the eighth grade. He's in the twelfth now, and the Virginia League has clamped down a player eligibility limit of four years, and Thompson has played four.

Page is permitted to play with the junior varsity, however, until he graduates June 12. Several big league scouts will be camped on his doorsteps that day.

Jack Dillon and Ray Harman will stay on at Bullis Prep as football coaching assistants to Harry Deming, the new head man, but there's still an opening for a line coach. . . . All important business in Alexandria yesterday had to be done with the approval of Fordie Thompson, star centerfielder of the George Washington High team. The mayor invited the Alexandria Boys Club to elect a member to be mayor of the city for a day. Fordie was the man. . . . Two lads who used up their last year of Interhigh eligibility, but who haven't graduated from high school, get a chance to get their diplomas and play another year of scholastic ball. They are Pitcher Benny Duvall, who transferred to Woodward Prep and Second Baseman Rod Hearty, now at Bullis. . . . Whether he likes it or not, Bob Irwin is ticketed as Priory's first string catcher this season. He's a good hitter and receiver, but prefers to pitch. He's not bad on the mound, but Coach Bob Dwyer has plenty of pitchers and no other catcher. So Irwin will be behind the bat.

Seven D. C. Boxers Compete in AAU Title Bouts at Boston

Around the Golf Courses

BELLE HAVEN—Frank Mann won the opening event, a blind bogey, on the 1949 schedule with a 82—5—77. Winston Dodson, J. A. Swink and John Lyins were the runnerups in the tourney. Low score for the day was carded by Joe Daniels, a 74, which gained Daniels a place on the club team.

WOODMONT—A blind bogey event saw four players tied for top position yesterday with 37s over the nine-hole route. L. W. Jacobs, Sam Pocker, Ed Wortman and Bob Cramer all came in with that score. Jules Rendelman and Sid Margolis tied for second place.

MANOR CLUB—A blind bogey event was won by A. M. Pickett, Ray Sim, K. B. Lewis and T. H. Waggaman all with 73s for 18 holes.

BETHESDA—A large turnout of about 90 players were on hand to open the 1949 season with a blind bogey tournament which, oddly, produced a single winner. H. R. Lurton won with 45, 45—90—10—80. Four tied for second, Harvey Thorson, William Durbin, Danny Pontone and W. Shotwell all had 71s.

Fan Suggests Facts Book, No Wonder!

Johnstown, Pa., April 3 (AP).—Steve Seman, a full-time railroad office worker whose hobby is compiling sports statistics, thinks somebody, somewhere should publish a national scholastic basketball record book.

Such a book, Seman says, could provide answers to:

1. What two high school teams played four scoreless periods on the basketball court before one quintet won out 2-0?

2. What high school team holds the record for most consecutive games won?

3. What high school team scored the most points in one game?

Seman dug up the answers. But he had to bury his nose in hundreds of papers across the Nation before being sure he was right.

For instance:

The lowest-scoring game took place in March, 1941, when the Las Animas Trojans and the La Junta Tigers met in a Colorado tournament playoff.

There were a few fouls, no conversions. The regulation game ended 0-0. In the overtime period one of the Las Animas players missed a long shot, but Douglas Coldwell, Trojan center, tipped in the ball for the winning counter.

On the other extreme, the biggest score was run up in 1923 when Kansas City High School buried Rainbow A. C. under a 234-2 avalanche.

He proposes a revised scholastic scoring book with special columns for statistics, such as shots missed, even assists and errors. Personal fouls and errors, he says, are potential scores for opponents, just as they are in baseball.

Charles Fights Lyons April 25

Toledo, Ohio, April 3 (AP).—Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati has been signed to meet Jackie Lyons, Pittsburgh light heavyweight in a four-round no decision bout here April 25, Promoter Sid Goldberg announced tonight.

The Charles-Lyons bout will head a 40-round card that is being held for the benefit of the family of Art Jackson, 18-year-old Toledo boxer who was injured fatally in a workout here March 18.

GW Sailors Win Pentagonal

Eric Nordholm and Patricia Granger led G. W. with 20 and 18 points, Jack Martin of Maryland also scored 18. Final scores: George Washington 38, Maryland 37, Georgetown 34, Penn 20, P.M.C. 18.

Gene Smith Hurt, Won't Make Trip

Boston, April 3.—Seven District of Columbia boxers arrived here today for the National AAU boxing championships starting at 1 p. m. tomorrow. The District will have no representative in the 112-pound class where Eugene Smith was the District champ.

Smith injured his hand in the finals of the Golden Gloves competition recently in New York. The rest of the D. C. titleists, however, are on hand, led by middleweight Eddie Marshall, who reached the semifinal round last year.

Also here are Eddie Grant, heavyweight; Jimmy Caraway, 118-pounder; Dave Jacobs, featherweight; Willie Davis, lightweight; Hezekiah Williams, lightheavyweight; and 147-pounder Connie Williams.

The only 1948 winner in the field of 190, gathered from all parts of the country and Hawaii, is Eugene Linscott, 17-year-old welterweight star from Grand Rapids, Mich.

Linscott, however, faces an exceptionally rugged assignment for the 147-pound class which includes 25 other skillful battlers who were outstanding in their home sectors.

Several AAU districts which were missing in recent years have entered full eight-man teams, including Oklahoma, Seattle, Wash., and Wisconsin.

The Pacific Coast district, which gained two championships here last year, has entered a full team.

Tournament Director Joseph M. Hines has ordered the battlers to weigh in at 10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow with the semifinal and final rounds to be put on Wednesday night.

Run off at the rate of seven bouts an hour, the tourney will consume 11 hours Monday and Tuesday—from 1 p. m. to midnight. Wednesday's semifinals and finals start at 7 p. m.

Terps, C. U. Fight in NCAA

Boxing Coaches Eddie LaFond of Catholic U. and Heine Miller of Maryland have both named two of their fighters to participate in the NCAA boxing championships opening at Michigan State College, East Lansing, Michigan, next Thursday, in the three-day tournament.

LaFond, who has already gone to East Lansing to take part in a boxing rules committee meeting, will be joined by Tom Cronin, undefeated 125 pounder who gained an Eastern intercollegiate championship several weeks ago, and 130-pounder Jack Redmond.

Maryland will send Paul Kostopoulos, 130, and Eddie Rieder, 155. Rieder lost to Jim Briggman of South Carolina in the Southern Invitational tournament; he also gained the semifinal round of the NCAA tournament last year before being defeated.

Virginia will also enter the tournament.

Ortiz Jailed On Gun Charge

El Centro, Calif., April 3 (AP).—Manuel V. Ortiz, bantamweight boxing champion of the world, is in Imperial County jail tonight on charges of carrying a concealed weapon, Police Capt. Wyatt Briggs said.

The 32-year-old Ortiz, booked as a "boxer and farmer," is being held in lieu of $1000 bail, Captain Briggs said.

The officer said Ortiz was arrested April 1 for disturbing the peace and forfeited $30 bail. Last night the boxer attempted to hide a .38-caliber revolver when a police officer approached him, Briggs said.

West Takes On Ratford Here Tonight

Tonight's 10-round bout between Sonny Boy West and Doug Ratford at Turner's Arena took on a new aspect yesterday when the National Boxing Association revealed it intended to name West as the Nation's fifth-ranking lightweight in it new listing which will be released this week.

Sonny Boy, the District's 19-year-old champion, is putting his new laurels in jeopardy before they are official.

In Ratford he is facing an experienced fighter who boasts of two triumphs over Kid Gavilan and another over Freddy Dawson, No. 1 contender for Champion Ike Williams' crown.

West, who came out of the amateurs to score 35 victories in 38 bouts, has come a long way and his ranking is probably the highest ever accorded a Washington lightweight.

Ratford should be at his best, having come off a triumph over Buster Tyler, another first-flight battler, last week in Holyoke, Mass.

West's most important recent effort was his upset of Johnny "Honeyboy" Williams in Baltimore, then the fifth-ranking lightweight.

Promoter Gabe Menendez has booked a good attraction in expectation of snapping the sport out of the doldrums. Last week Ken Stribling and Johnny Hansbury drew only 604 fans.

The supporting card shows Holly Mims and Gene Harley, local rivals, in a hot five-rounder, with Walter Ham facing Eddie Woolson and Ralph Gonzales going against Gene Gunter in four-rounders.

Shipley Horse Camp Wins Tri-Color At North End

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

Barbara Jo Shipley's Camp was granted the important hunter tricolor at the North End Horse Show yesterday, competing in one of the largest fields of entries as yet seen in a season's opening show.

Sergt. J. Owens' Black Jack garnered the jumper championship, under the new rules of the American Horse Shows Association, against some of the area's best veteran performers and a bevy of well-schooled newcomers to the open ranks.

In the hunter division Charles Carrico's good-looking 4-year-old chestnut gelding Sopy-Popy, making his debut in the hunter ranks equaled the point score of the declared champion, but had to be content with the reserve ribbon inasmuch as his winning class, the limit hunter event, did not carry the value of Camp's win in the open warm-up hunters.

Bette-Barron Smith's Bluemont made every post a winning one, annexing a perfect score of four wins in the junior division to be awarded the junior championship with a total of 20 points.

Durocher Spikes Trade Stories

Phoenix, Ariz., April 3 (AP).—With the New York Giants scheduled to take to the road tonight on their long eastward trek with the Cleveland Indians, Manager Leo Durocher took a parting shot at irresponsible sources from whence wild trade rumors have come.

"There not only will be no major league transaction with Branch Rickey, jr., of the Dodgers in El Paso, Tex., tomorrow, as incorrectly reported, but none ever was intended," Durocher said. The rumor was that Johnny Mize and Bill Rigney of the Giants would go to the Dodgers in exchange for Erv Palica, pitcher, and Eddie Miksis, infielder.

Hunter Henry Beckett Is "Jumped" by Stag; Survives

Henry Beckett, of Chase City, Va., has had many a hunting thrill—but this tops 'em all. "Hunting rabbits in the snow, I stumbled on a big buck deer. He let out a bellow and charged, antlers down. My Marlin .22 was light for deer, but I got in five fast shots. The deer knocked me down, and fell on top of me—dead! Bashed the wind out of me—and no wonder, that buck weighed 178 pounds."

"My fast-firing Marlin saved my life," adds Mr. Beckett, "and fast-shaving Marlin Blades save me time and money too. Both products suit me 100%." Single or Double Edge—12 for 25¢; Economy Packs 25 for 50¢, 60 for a dollar.

Highs Play 28 Ball Games This Week

Spring bursts on the high school scene this week with 28 baseball games, 5 track meets, and 15 golf and 2 tennis matches on the agenda.

The high point of the week comes Saturday when George Washington High is host to the second annual Alexandria Memorial Relays.

Eighteen area schools are entered, including defending meet champion G. W., defending District Interhigh champion Eastern plus Baltimore's defending champon Poly.

On the baseball front, Coolidge, District Interhigh champ for the past three years, gets two thorough tests. On Tuesday, the Colts travel to Bethesda-Chevy Chase to face last year's Montgomery County titlist. On Frday, they go to Alexandria to take on perennially strong Episcopal of Alexandria.

The Colts have lost almost all of their regulars of last season, but they showed a lot of fresh power in upsetting Woodberry Forest, 8-3, the other day. Eddie Miller, sophomore shortstop, socked two homers, and Pitcher Byron Anderson turned in a four-hitter.

Two of Coolidge's leading challengers also see action, Eastern playing at St. Albans Tuesday, and Wilson entertaining northern Virginia's defending champion G. W. nine.

Eight golf matches are on tap Tuesday as the Interhigh and Metropolitan Washington Leagues open up with eight matches. Defending Interhigh champion Coolidge, led by Dick Foster, second ranking schoolboy, plays Roosevelt at Argyle. Defending Metro champ B-CC tees off against Western at Bethesda.

Defending Interhigh tennis champion Coolidge gets its second start of the season Friday at Episcopal of Alexandria. The Colts lost their opener to Woodberry Forest, 5½ to 3½.

Terp Stickmen List 3 Home Matches

The University of Maryland Lacrosse team launches its 1949 collegiate season this week with three home matches.

Losers of a 7-2 exhibition test to Mount Washington, the Terp stickmen face Williams College on Tuesday, Harvard on Friday and Washington and Lee on Saturday.

AT BOWIE

THE LAST WEEK at Bowie begins today. Next Monday the Havre de Grace vs. Charles Town battle starts. Well, the Bennings' selections weren't too good during Bowie's first week. We slipped in some "best bets" at good prices but, all in all, it was tough sailing. However, we're getting a line on the horses, so expect to do better. Have faith and string along. Brimsek Asks Trade Now That Clapper's Gone

Eveleth, Minn., April 3 (U.P.).—Saddened Goalie Frankie Brimsek said today he wants to leave the Boston Bruins for some other National Hockey League club now that his coach, Dit Clapper, has retired.

Clapper announced his retirement as Bruin coach Friday night. Brimsek immediately dispatched a telegram to a Boston hockey writer, saying that he would like to be traded.

At first Bruin officials doubted that it was Brimsek who sent the telegram, but today the 33-year-old admitted he wanted a transfer, probably to the Chicago Black Hawks so he could be closer to his home here.

"I figured that with Dit gone I'd just as soon leave the club, too," he said.

Quantico Loses, 4-0, To Michigan

Quantico, Va., April 3.—The University of Michigan team remained undefeated on its Southern tour today as the Wolverines used home runs to beat the Quantico Marines, 4-2.

Ted Kobrin clouted one homer with two mates on the sacks for three first-inning runs. Capt. Harold (Tubby) Raymond connected for another long four-bagger in the seventh.

Bill Taft set the Marines down on four hits. Although stingy with his hits, Taft was wild, allowing seven walks. Quantico left 11 players stranded on the base paths.

Michigan shortstop Bob Wolfe sprained his ankle in the ninth inning.

Rev. Merrow Will Become Priest Today

The Rev. Edward Leith Merrow, deacon in charge of Grace Episcopal Church, 3601 Russell rd., Alexandria, will be ordained to the priesthood at 10 a. m. today at Grace Church.

Rev. Merrow

Mr. Merrow was formerly deacon in charge of the Church of the Ascension, Silver Spring, and later curate of St. Thomas Church, 1772 Church st. nw. He has been deacon in charge of Grace Church since December 15, 1948, and will become rector after his ordination.

He is also an instructor in speech and reading at the Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, and a guest lecturer at the College of Preachers at the Washington Cathedral.

The Right Rev. Frederick D. Goodwin, Bishop of Virginia, will be the ordaining bishop. He will be assisted by the Rev. Albert T. Mollegen, professor of Moral Theology and Christian Ethics at the seminary; the Rev. Thomas A. Fraser, jr., rector of St. Paul's Church, Alexandria; the Rev. Harcourt E. Waller, curate St. Paul's Church; the Rev. Isaac E. Brooks of the American Red Cross, and the Rev. Albert J. DuBois, rector of the Church of the Ascension and St. Agnes, Washington.

Two Churches, Parish House Are Dedicated

A new church, a remodeled church and a parish house were dedicated yesterday.

Members of one church worshiped in their new building for the first time, and members of another church held the last services in a building used since 1898.

Dedication of Bethel Evangelical and Reformed Church, 4347 Lee blvd., Arlington, took place at both morning and afternoon services.

Speaker at the morning service was the Rev. Frederick R. Daries of Indianapolis, Ind., chairman of the department of church building of the Board of National Missions of the Evangelical and Reformed Church. In the afternoon, the Rev. Ralph Weiler, Eastern field secretary of the denomination, was the speaker.

In Alexandria, the Right Rev. Frederick D. Goodwin, Episcopal Bishop of Virginia, participated in ceremonies dedicating the newly-remodeled Emmanuel Church, Mason ave. and Russell rd., and the new parish house of Immanuel-Church-on-the-Hill at the Virginia Theological Seminary.

Changes in Emmanuel Church have increased the capacity by 140 and reversed the seating arrangement in the sanctuary. Additional rooms for Sunday school and parish activities also have been constructed.

The new Immanuel-Church-on-the-Hill parish house is a memorial to the late Rev. Thomas Kinloch Nelson, formerly chaplain of the Episcopal High School and for 40 years a professor at the Virginia Theological Seminary.

Members of Chevy Chase Baptist Church held the first services in their new building at 5671 Western ave. The Rev. Edward O. Clark, only pastor of the church since it was organized 25 years ago, conducted the opening service.

Final services were held at Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, 1410 Columbia rd. Next Sunday services will be held in the new Westmoreland Congregational Church at Westmoreland Circle nw.

At the conclusion of the service in the Columbia rd. building, where the congregation has met for more than 50 years, members marched out of the building carrying the church furnishings which are to be used in the new building.

Calhoun to Speak To D. C. Masons Thursday Night

2 Score U. S. Agencies Have Eyes on House As This Is Money Week

This is money week in the House of Representatives. Before it's over two score Federal agencies will have a good idea how much money and how many employes they will have during the fiscal year that begins on July 1.

The House leadership has slated action this week on money bills for the Agriculture, Justice, State and Commerce Departments, plus all of the many independent agencies and the European Cooperation Administration. The Army supply bill also is about ready to be reported to the House.

House Majority Leader McCormack has promised his colleagues a 10-day vacation if they will jam through the appropriation bills. It has been years since the money bills have been acted on so early in a congressional session by the House.

ECA: Technically, this agency is dead. ECA's legislative authority expired on April 1. But a bill to continue it is being debated in the Senate and it's sure to be approved.

The 800 ECA employes here will report to work today as usual. They have not been given any if-and-when layoffs notices since its officials were confident the agency would be continued.

The proposed authorization bill gives the recovery agency several new jobs which could result in a modest increase in its staff. In addition to its staff here, ECA has 1100 Americans overseas. It has a few vacancies but they are all for high-type technicians and specialists. The clerical and other such jobs are filled.

NOTES: The Civil Service Commission has exempted from its merit provisions five additional jobs as special advisers to the Defense Secretary. Ten additional elevator operators are being hired for the House side of the Capitol. Democratic members will name the appointees . . . The President has asked the House Appropriations Committee to slash Maritime's proposed appropriation by $3,257,000 under what he originally recommended for the agency . . . The Hoover suggestions on employe salary changes will be discussed tomorrow night by the Society for Personnel Administration. The time is 7:30 in the Archives Auditorium and the speaker will be Ismar Baruch.

CENSUS: A. Ross Eckler is the new deputy director of the Census Bureau. He succeeds Philip M. Hauser who took leave to teach at the University of Chicago . . . STATE: Economy suggestion winners in this department are: Carl F. Mansfield, Arthur G. Harris, Robert E. Wilson, Alice M. Ball, Norvelle H. Sannebeck, and Frederick J. Lindow . . . GEOLOGICAL SURVEY: Fred Howard Moffit was "retired" from Government five years ago, but he has returned every work day since to his desk in this agency to work on Alaskan survey problems. He was given a surprise party by his coworkers on his seventy-fifth birthday last Friday.

JOBS: Veterans' Administration here will hire 1000 additional alphabetic card punch operators or trainees to work on its insurance records. Applicants merely must be at least 16, be in good health, and be able to type 25 words a minute. The jobs pay a minimum of $2284; some few applicants with previous Government experience will be paid $2724. For interviews and other details, go to Room 2057 in the Munitions Building, 20th st. and Constitution ave. nw. VA wants to build up a 1500-man card punch staff by June 10.

RECLAMATION: The fight over its officials and policies has been time-consuming and costly. And it's far from over.

Since 1944 when the battle first started over the 160-acre law, Reclamation and its policies has been investigated by four different Congresses and 10 separate committees with an aggregate membership of 97 in the Senate and 107 in the House. Sixty-seven days of hearings have been held and 5343 pages of testimony hvae been taken. This compilation doesn't include the debate in both the House and the Senate.

In addition, too, the bureau has had to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to make reports to the Congress and to bring witnesses here to testify.

Apparently the Senate deficiency bill which continues the Straus-Boke "no pay" rider and other personnel restrictions will be approved because of the time pressure. The real fight will come when the Senate takes up the 1950 Interior money bill. Both sides already have served notice of a fight to a finish.

WATER WHEEL AT PIERCE MILL DRAWS TED BURGLING AND JANET CONDON TO WATCH IT WHIRL AROUND

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

RAYMOND B. WATT, THE MILLER, EXPLAINS OPERATION OF THE MILL STONE TO LITTLE LINDA WORSHAM

Man Rescued In River, Hero Unidentified

An unidentified hero yesterday braved the swirling Potomac River current at Great Falls to save a foundering 22-year-old sailor and quietly disappeared after his deed was done.

Described by eyewitnesses only as an average-size man clad in a sports shirt and slacks, the anonymous lifesaver fought the swift current for about 100 feet from the Virginia shore to rescue Roy Mace, sailor from the Anacostia Receiving Station who was reported fighting a losing battle for his life.

Mace, who lives with his wife at 910 I st. nw., stumbled into the river after walking out on the rocks from the Maryland side just below the falls.

Bystanders said he was carried about 200 feet downstream and across the river by coursing waters and had gone under several times when his rescuer came to his aid.

Chilled and semiconscious, Mace was taken by the McLean Rescue Squad to Arlington Hospital where he was treated for chills and released last night.

Neither the onlookers nor members of the rescue squad could say what became of Mace's friend in need.

Policeman's Uniform Cut Halting Fight

A policeman narrowly escaped injury, but his overcoat and uniform were slashed yesterday when he broke up a street fight at 11th and O sts. nw.

Precinct Detectives Henry W. Eastman and S. F. Cox of the Second Precinct, were riding past the intersection at 1:15 p. m. when they saw two men fighting, one using a knife, the other a piece of iron pipe, they said. Eastman jumped out of the car and separated the pair.

The two men were taken to Freedmen's Hospital, where one, Burke Elliot, 39, of 1911 13th st. nw., was admitted for head cuts from a knife, and the other, Moses Bradley, 37, of 1330 Vermont ave. nw., was treated for head injuries from the pipe.

Not until the excitement was over did Eastman discover that the left sleeves of both his coats had been slashed to shreds, although he did not get a scratch.

In another fight early yesterday, John Thomas Henderson, 28, of 1637 Rosedale st. ne., was stabbed in the throat with a sharp instrument. He was admitted to Casualty Hospital. Police accused Josephine Anderson, 24, of assault with a dangerous weapon.

'Old Process' Corn Meal Still Historic Pierce Mill Feature

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Historic old Pierce Mill in Rock Creek Park, survivor of the waterwheel industrial era of the early nineteeth century, is still grinding it out.

As several hundred visitors learned yesterday, the old mill at Tilden st. and Beach dr. nw. is squeezing out "old process" corn meal, whole wheat and buckwheat flour as it did more than 125 years ago.

As in the early 1820s when Isaac Pierce settled in his 2000-acre tract of what is now the park, the power that turns the mill's 2-ton stones is still that of Rock Creek pushing against the picturesque waterwheel outside the blue granite building.

"There's nothing like waterground corn meal or flour for flavor and nutrition," said Raymond B. Watt, modern-day miller of Rock Creek, as he showed visitors around yesterday.

Output 2 Tons a Day

Watt is the miller for Government Services, Inc., which operates the historic industry under a concession from National Capital Parks. The output of the mill—2 tons a day with only one of its three stones operating—is used mostly for bread and buckwheat cakes made for the cafeterias that GSI operates in Government buildings.

Some 400 or 500 pounds a week, however, is sold to those of the general public who appreciate the old-fashioned unrefined and unbleached product.

The coarse-grinding stones, unlike the steel rollers of modern flour mills, turn out a flour which retains the entire grain of the corn, buckwheat or wheat, Watt declared. With a clearance of about a quarter of an inch between the slow-turning stones, little heat is gathered, a fact which also keeps loss at a minimum, he said.

Refining out the "germ" of the wheat or corn by the "new process" modern milling takes out vitamins and minerals which are kept in the Pierce Mill "old process," but on the other hand, the entire-meal grain does spoil more quickly, Watt admitted.

Watt, who lives at 1731 Kilbourne pl. nw., has been miller of Rock Creek Park for about 10 years. During the fall and winter months, he turns out wheat flour as well as whole wheat and corn meal. In the warm months, he concentrates on the wheat and corn, as "in the summer lots of people get hives if they eat buckwheat," he has found.

White Meal Preferred

Corn meal, the most popular of the mill's products, comes either in yellow or the more processed white type. While the yellow has more Vitamin A in it, accordin gto Watt, people from the South usually prefer the white. Apparently that's the kind they're more used to, he said.

How do you use it? Watt has several recipes. The simplest is for corn bread: Sift 1¼ cups of meal, 1 teaspoon of salt and 1 teaspoon of soda; add ¾ cups of sour milk or buttermilk, then an egg and another ¾ cup of sour milk; add 2 tablespoons of melted lard; pour in pan and bake in hot oven 20 minutes or until brown.

Watt is at the old grind every Saturday, when he turns out enough flour for a week. The mill si closed on Mondays, but visitors are welcome any other days of the week, whether for trade or just to swap millers' tales.

Missing Persons Unit Does Homework on Own Lost Car

Police reported that Willie J. Wilson, 24, of 423 1st st. nw., confessed he took one of their cruisers from the Municipal Center garage at 300 Indiana ave. nw. "to go for a ride."

Wilson was arrested at 6:30 p. m., near the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks in Hyattsville, four hours after the car was stolen.

The cruiser had broken down in the 4700 block of Rhode Island ave. ne., and passersby helped Wilson push it into the Supreme Motor Sales used car lot at 4724 Rhode Island ave., police said.

Edward Risley, 30, and Robert L. Aydelotte, 22, lot attendants, noticed the car's antenna, two-way radio and telephone. Wilson walked away when they began questioning him, they told police.

Aydelotte followed Wilson, while Risley called Hyattsville police.

Wilson, who was charged with grand larceny of an auto, told Detective Sergt. Sigurd Ostenso he went to the Municipal Building "to see a detective friend," but decided to take the car "to go for a ride." The keys were found in his pocket, police stated.

Confirmation Wednesday

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will confirm a class of candidates at 8 p. m. Wednesday at River Terrace Chapel, Clay st. and Anacostia ave. ne.

262,000 See Blossoms As Fete Ends

Queen Is Crowned For Second Time; Pageant Attracts Another Big Crowd

A crowd estimated at 12,000 yesterday saw the second and final performance of the 1949 Cherry Blossom Festival as 250,000 persons rode or walked around the Tidal Basin to see the cherry trees in bloom.

Spectators who watched both pageant performances agreed that the festival yesterday was a faster-moving, smoother play than it had been on Saturday.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson again placed the crown on the blonde head of Judy Queen, Cherry Blossom Queen, declaring: "I never heard of a queen being crowned twice before. I think that's typical of the state of the world as exemplified here in the United States—peace and harmony and double crownings."

Said Miss Queen: "I guess I'm twice as lucky as any girl can be."

Spectators lined the rope-enclosed Sylvan Theater for the entire pageant, which ended shortly before 4 p. m. The festival began under lowering skies at about 2:10 p. m. Shorfly after 3 p. m. the sun came out and shone intermittently on the final stages of the pageant.

The second performance of the pageant went off without incident. The temperature reached a high of 62 degrees at 3:20 p. m.

Biggest plaudits of the crowd went to the Japanese tumbling team, to Miss Kay DeWitt, who sang Puccini's "Un Bel Di"—in English—to the barbershop quartets, and to participants in the spring ballet.

Amateur cameramen had a field day both in the Sylvan Theater itself and backstage with the performers. At the conclusion of the pageant camera fans were permitted to gather in front of the stage and photograph the entire cast.

The water carnival originally scheduled for a repeat performance last night was cancelled because of lack of funds for materials and because canoe owners who donated craft wanted them for Sunday use, Dan Leonard, water pageant committee chairman, said.

Tax-Free Meal Seen Reducing Take $500,000

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Exempting restaurant meals up to $1 from the proposed 2 per cent District sales tax would reduce annual revenue by at least half a million dollars, District officials estimated yesterday.

The Commissioners, however, are on record as having supported a similar tax exemption.

The exemption for restaurant meals has been proposed by Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.). It has the backing of some members of the Senate District Committee, and the move is slated for attention by that committee when it considers the House-approved District revenue bill Tuesday.

Applies to One Meat Ball

But not even the famous one-meat-ball meal ordered by the sad little man with just 15 cents would be exempt from the levy in a restaurant. You could get a cup of coffee most places without paying the tax—that would be covered by an exemption for everything costing 13 cents or less.

Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), chairman of the Senate District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee, has served notice he intends to recommend District committee approval of the House bill without change.

Senator Hunt has generally taken a stand for as few exemptions as possible in the sales tax bill.

Other Provisions

Besides the 2 per cent sales levy, the House-approved revenue measure would:

1. Hike the real estate tax rate from the present $2 to $2.15 per $100.

2. Increase liquor license fees by 50 per cent over present levels.

3. Reduce the unincorporated business tax exemption from $10,000 to $5000.

4. Effective on income received after Dec. 31, 1949, the bill would increase the basic personal income tax exemption in the District law from $1000 to $4000.

The restaurant meal exemption proposed by the Commissioners two years ago would have kept the sales tax off meals costing $1.50 or less.

Plant Sale Thursday

The annual benefit plant sale of the Bethesda Community Garden Club will be held Thursday from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. on the grounds of the Farm Women's Market, 7155 Wisconsin ave. In case of rain, it will be held the next day.

15 Alexandria Democrats Run For 7 Places on Council Slate

By Richard L. Lyons
Post Reporter

Alexandria Democrats will nominate seven candidates for city council Tuesday after a campaign which in its last stages sounded a lot like the name-calling contest of last year's primary.

Mrs. Kabler

The 15 candidates include 6 incumbents—Leroy S. Bendheim, Marshall J. Beverley, Roy C. Bragg, R. Samuel Luckett, Albert A. Smoot, and William T. Wilkins. The others are Franklin P. Backus, Truman E. Carneale, James C. Crump, James M. Duncan, jr., John J. Ewald, Raymond A. Gallagher, L. Trice Gravatte, jr., Mrs. Dorothy H. Kabler and Ernest L. Mankin.

Polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. at the regular voting places: They are: First Ward, Precinct A, Armory Hall, 200 blk. S. Royal st.; Precinct B, City Hall, 100 blk. N. Royal st.; Second Ward, George Mason School, 2601 Cameron Mills rd.; Third Ward, No. 5 Firehouse, 1210 Cameron st.; Fourth Ward, Lee School, 1000 blk. Prince st.; Fifth Ward, Precinct A, Maury School, 600 blk. Russell rd.; Precinct B, George Washington High School, 800 blk. Mount Vernon ave.; Sixth Ward, Precinct A, Mount Vernon School Annex, 2500 blk. Mount Vernon ave.; Precinct B, No. 2 Firehouse, 213 E. Windsor ave.

Election officials cautioned voters they may vote for any number of candidates up to seven, but that ballots with more than seven choices marked will be thrown out.

General Election June 14

The candidates:

Franklin P. Backus, 35, of 202 W. Walnut st., served four war years in the Navy, is a law partner of State Senator Andrew W. Clarke. He favors zoning practices to protect residential areas, better educational facilities, running the city "on a businesslike basis." He is the only candidate on record opposing non-partisan municipal elections.

Leroy S. Bendheim, 43, of 309 Mansion dr., a lawyer, is serving his first year on the council. A former chairman of the city school board, he has sought city charter revision, creation of an "impartial" trial board for city employes and creation of a municipal civil service system that would make city jobs available to all on a merit basis "without regard to race." Opposed city manager change on grounds no better man was in sight and that the procedure was illegal. Is State commander, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Marshall J. Beverley, 37, of 3157 Martha Custis dr., is a bank official and former assistant national bank examiner. A Navy veteran and freshman councilman, he led the fight to change city managers. His watchwords are: "Progressive city government with economy" and "Tell the people what's going on in their government."

Lawyer, Runs 'Gas' Station

Roy C. Bragg, 48, of 206 West Mount Ida ave., is a lawyer who owns and operates a gasoline service station. Like Bendheim, he is serving his first year on council and opposed city manager change for the same reasons. A Marine in World War II, he wants long-range planning for all phases of city activity, feels the city is growing too fast to live on a day-to-day basis.

Truman E. Carneale, 41, of 317 E. Bellefonte ave., is a druggist and editor of a local weekly newspaper editor of a local weekly newspaper. Ran unsuccessfully in the council general election three years ago after having been appointed by the city Democratic committee to fill the place of a primary winner who died. Feels present license tax setup is lopsided; wants pension plan for city employes, trial board for police and firemen, and more authority for city manager.

James C. Crump, 58, of 405 E. Alexandria ave., is a locomotive engineer who ran fourth in the 1946 primary race for three council seats. Wants pension plan, grievance committee, pay raises for city employes, and a referendum on future bond issues.

James M. Duncan, jr., 51, of 107 W. Walnut st., former city fire chief who resigned in 1947 because of differences with city council, is now in the real-estate business and owns a gasoline service station. He belongs to 31 organizations, is chairman of the Alexandria chapter, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis; vestryman at Grace Episcopal Church.

Yardmaster, Former Councilman

John J. Ewald, 38, of 410 N. Alfred st., served six years as Third Ward councilman until his defeat last fall. A yardmaster at Potomac Yards, he wants sewage disposal plant, better streets, pension plan for city employes.

Raymond A. Gallagher, 35, of 413 N. St. Asaph st., insurance man, lost a close fight for First Ward council seat in 1946. He has advocated appointment of Negroes to police department to help patrol Negro districts. Also urged earmarking city revenue from auto licenses for upkeep and entension of city streets.

L. Trice Gravatte, jr., 38, of 2810 Cameron Mills rd., real estate business, is making his debut in city politics. Says he is running at the request of his friends who tell him he represents a cross-section of Alexandria. He favors all the improvements the other candidates talk about, but warns the taxpayers must pay and advocates a referendum on any proposed tax rate increase.

Mrs. Dorothy H. Kabler, 30, of 1111 S. Washington st. is an assistant in her husband's law firm, was a newspaper reporter, holds teacher's certificate and has written a history of Alexandria. Wants more lay representation on city board of health, appointment of city attorney, city collector and juvenile court judge, full collection of taxes and revision of system of taxing professional and businessmen.

Hardware Merchant

R. Samuel Luckett, 58, of 2504 King st., hardware merchant, has served on the council since 1946 as the only write-in candidate ever elected. Is chairman of council finance committee and of committee that acquired sites for the school building program. He is a director of Alexandria Hospital and is or has been head of the city Democratic committee, Chamber of Commerce, Knights Templar and Andrew Jackson Masonic Lodge.

Ernest L. Mankin, 60, of 210 N. Patrick st. is an assistant car accountant at Potomac Yards where he has worked for 43 years. He represented the Third Ward on the council from 1940 to 1942.

Albert A. Smoot, 44 of 410 Duke st., businessman, is the son of a former mayor and descendant of one of Alexandria's founders. A former president of Community Chest, he feels the city's most pressing need is a qualified city manager. Also wants charter revision, realization of second half of school building program, long-range city planning and a sewage disposal plant.

William T. Wilkins, 71, Hunting Terrace Apts., is a retired railroad official, who has been a councilman for 12 years and mayor for 9. Wilkins' slogan is "progress, efficiency, conservation and economy."

Murder Charge Filed Against Drug Store Clerk; She Blames Quarrel Over Drink

A 19-year-old girl was under police guard in Prince Georges General Hospital yesterday, formally charged with murder in the fatal stabbing of her 33-year-old lover.

E. E. Turner

She is Mrs. Dorothy Redden, of 7019 F st., Carmody Hills, Md., a drug store clerk, who also stabbed herself. The dead man is Ellsworth E. Turner of the same address.

The stabbing occurred at about 2:20 a. m. yesterday, police said. Mrs. Redden told police a quarrel began when she tried to dissuade Turner from taking another drink of whisky.

Police said the stabbing was witnessed by three persons. One, Claude Johnson, brother-in-law of the dead man, was sleeping in the house and was awakened by the sound of the couple's quarrel. He said he reached the kitchen door in time to see Mrs. Redden stab Turner in the right chest with a 7-inch butcher knife.

Johnson said that as soon as he saw the stabbing he went to a neighbor's home to summon aid. When he returned, he said, Mrs. Redden had stabbed herself in her left breast.

Another couple is also said to have witnessed the slaying, but left before police arrived on the scene. Turner's mother, Mrs. Abbie Ford, identified the woman as "Sue," a friend of Mrs. Redden's, but said she did not know the man.

Turner, an employe of a Takoma Park (Md.) tree surgery concern, was pronounced dead on the scene by Medical Examiner James L. Boyd.

Mrs. Ford explained that she and Turner had been living at the Carmody Hills address for five years. The house is owned by Johnson.

She said that "several weeks ago," Mrs. Redden came to the house with Turner. The couple announced they were married. Mrs. Ford said they shared a room in the dwelling.

Mrs. Redden told police that she and Turner planned to be married in June.

Mrs. Redden is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hunt, of Capitol Heights. She has been employed by a Washington wholesale drug company for several years.

Mrs. Redden has lived in the Capitol Heights area all her life, according to neighbors of the Hunts. They said she attended Maryland Park High School. She told police she had once been married, but that the marriage had been annulled.

Turner was a native of Washington and lived most of his life with an aunt, Mrs. Nell King, in Takoma Park, Md. He attended public schools in Takoma Park and had held a variety of jobs. He had his current job for about a month, his mother said.

10,000 to Parade Here on Army Day

Marines, sailors and airmen will turn to Wednesday in extracurricular activity designed to help their soldier teammates celebrate Army Day-1949 in grand style.

Units from each branch of the service will join troops in an hour-and-a-half-long parade. President Truman, with the new Secretary of Defense, Louis A. Johnson, and Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall will review the 10,000 marchers who will parade along Constitution ave. beginning at 1:30 p. m.

Three Bands to Play

The parade will include Army, Navy and Marine bands, Army wheeled equipment, a division of the National Guard, ROTC units of the nearby universities, and boy and girl high school cadets.

The units will assemble at the Capitol grounds and will march west along Constitution ave. from Delaware ave to the dispersal point at 17th st.

Calling attention to the 1949 Army Day slogan, "The United States Army—part of the team for security," Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commanding general of the Military District of Washington, called upon every soldier in his command to celebrate Army Day in a manner that will help "bring closer and better understanding between the American people and their Army."

Walter Reed Observance

Army Day is the anniversary of the United States' entry into World War I on April 6, 1917. The day was observed at Walter Reed Hospital yesterday with open house.

Beginning today numerous activities of the Army will be portrayed in the windows and lobbies of downdown stores and theaters.

From 7 to 9 p. m. Wednesday a public exhibit will be held in the National Guard Armory under sponsorship of the D. C. National Guard, directed by Maj. Allen G. Crist.

The show will include displays of weapons, jeeps, half-tracks and other equipment of the D. C. Guard, as well as continuous showing of movies relating to military subjects.

Climax of the day's program will be a banquet and pageant at the Mayflower Hotel sponsored by the Military Order of the World Wars. Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) will be guest speaker.

Festival Visitor

$5215 Gems Stolen From Hotel Room

The theft of jewelry valued at $215 from a Carlton Hotel room Friday night or early Saturday was reported to police yesterday by a visitor here for the Cherry Blossom Festival.

Mrs. Elizabeth Haywood, 1500 Lake Shore dr., Chicago, said the gems were taken from the room where she and her husband, Marshall Haywood, owner of Haywood Publishing Co. of Chicago, are shopping until Wednesday.

The theft was discovered about 9 p. m. Saturday, when a side door to the room was found unlocked.

The stolen articles were listed as a $1000 diamond crescent pin, a $900 diamond and platinum wrist watch, a $1000 diamond and platinum dinner ring, a $500 platinum ring set with an aquamarine and diamonds, a $500 pin set with an aquamarine and rubies, a $90 yellow gold watch, and a gold mesh purse valued at $125.

In another break-in here an undetermined amount of jewelry was taken early yesterday from the show window of Card and Osborne Jewelers, 1809 Connecticut ave. nw.

The window was smashed about 4:15 a. m., according to a passerby, William S. Harrington, a soldier from Fort Belvoir, Va., who told police he saw a man run away from the store and through a parking lot across the street. He said the thief was about 40 years, weighed about 225 pounds, had a heavy beard and was wearing a brown hat and gray topcoat.

Virginia Davis, 1516 3d st. nw., told police she was awakened by a burglar in her first-floor apartment about 2:30 a. m. yesterday. The burglar pressed a hard object in her side and warned: "Don't move or I'll kill you."

She said he then took $36 in cash, a $20 wrist watch and keys to the apartment and escaped through the kitchen door. The burglar entered by forcing a window of the apartment.

Western, Wilson Youths Science Fair Winners

Roger Barron, Western High School, and Don J. Byers, Woodrow Wilson High School, won first awards in engineering sciences, senior division, at the Third Annual Science Fair in the Department of Commerce Auditorium.

Their names were inadvertently left out of the list of award winners which appeared in The Washington Post yesterday. The Washington Post regrets the omission. The fair will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. today through Friday.

Dr. Dargeon to Speak

Dr. Harold William Dargeon, attending pediatrician at the Memorial Hospital for Treatment of Cancer and Allied Diseases, New York, will discuss "Cancer in Childhood" at the Kellogg Lecture Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. at the George Washington University school of medicine, 1335 H st. nw.

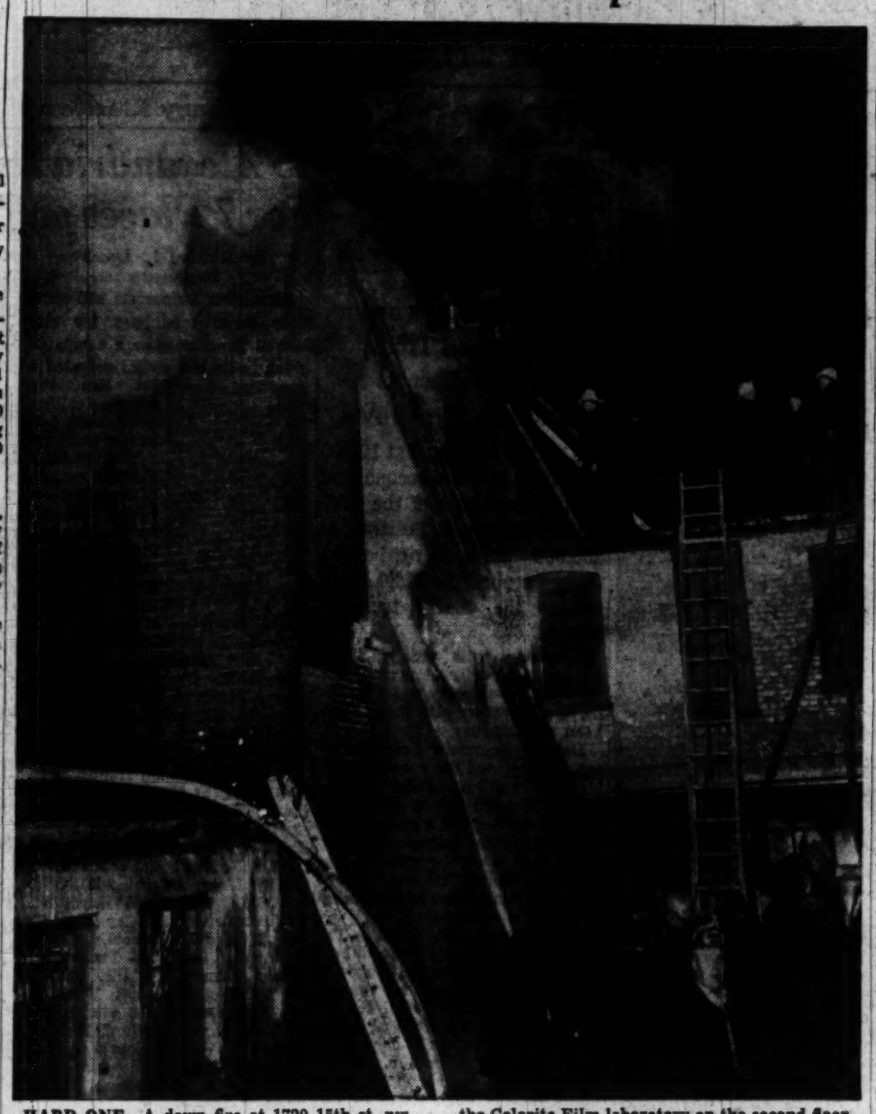
The American Federation of Labor yesterday announced an April drive among its eight million members for purchase of CARE food and clothing packages for relief in Europe.

Firemen Battle Dawn Photo Shop Fire



HARD ONE—A dawn fire at 1720 15th st. nw. yesterday forced firemen to wage the battle on the rooftops. The two-alarm blaze destroyed the Colorite Film laboratory on the second floor and damaged the Stewart Auto Upholstering Co. on the first floor

$20,000 Fire Wrecks Film Laboratory

A $20,000 two-alarm blaze burned out the interior of the Colorite Film Laboratory, 1720 15th st. nw., early yesterday.

H. W. Cronkite of 1215 Penn st. ne., owner, said most of his equipment was ruined by the fire, which was of undetermined origin. His customers, however, suffered no loss, because films to be developed were in the laboratory safe, he said.

One fireman, Pvt. H. W. Foster, of No. 3 Truck Company, was overcome by smoke, but was treated at the scene and returned to duty.

The first alarm was sent in at 4:16 a. m. and a second followed at 4:25 a. m. Six engine companies, three truck companies and Rescue Squad 1 responded.

The first floor of the two-story brick building is occupied by Stewart's Auto Upholstery Co. An estimate of damage there was not available.

M. D. Hensey, Retired VA Official, Dies

Melville D. Hensey, 79, retired chairman of the Veterans Administration Board of Appeals, died yesterday at his home, 5111 Connecticut ave. nw., following an illness of several months.

Mr. Hensey, who had served with the Veterans Administration since World War I, retired in 1939, but returned to his duties during World War II, retiring again in 1946.

He was born in Washington, and was graduated from George Washington University and Columbia University in New York. He specialized in law and architecture, and had his own architectural office here following his graduation from Columbia.

Active in Masonic affairs, Mr. Hensey was a thirty-third degree Mason, and belonged to Lafayette Masonic Lodge No. 37. At one time he was president of the National League of Masonic Clubs.

Mr. Hensey is survived by his wife, Mrs. Edith Mourning Hensey of the Connecticut ave. address, a son, Melville D. Hensey, jr., Beckley, W. Va.; and a daughter, Miss Margaret E. Hensey, New York City.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Scottish Rite Temple, 2800 16th st. nw. Graveside services and burial will take place in Rock Creek Cemetery.

R. H. Brasel, Ex-Commerce Aide, Dies

Royal H. Brasel, 70, retired chief of the Department of Commerce's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce correspondence division, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital following a stroke on Saturday.

Death was attributed to cerebral hemorrhage.

A resident of 3832 Garfield st. nw., Mr. Brasel was a native of Muskogee, Okla., where he attended school and worked in the postoffice before moving to the District in 1906.

Mr. Brasel was employed as a copyist in the old Department of Commerce and Labor before the Department of Commerce was established as a separate executive organization in 1913. He was appointed chief of the Bureau of Domestic and Foreign Commerce's correspondence division in 1917. He retired as division chief in 1943.

Mr. Brasel was a member of the Woodmen of the World and of St. Alban's Church, Wisconsin and Massachusetts aves. nw.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Lucy Stuart Brasel, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Clara B. Marthinsen, both of the Garfield st. address, and a son, John R. Brasel, 2715 29th st. se.; two sisters, Miss Irene Brasel, and Mrs. Bashie McAlpin, both of Drumwright, Okla., and two grandsons.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. in St. Alban's Church, on the grounds of the Washington Cathedral, at Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves. nw. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

'Good Will' Book Presentation Scheduled Today

A "Book of the Americas," containing nearly 3000 messages and signatures of leaders of the 21 American countries, today will be presented to the Pan-American Union by its originator, Chilean journalist, Orlando Oyarzun Garces.

The "good will" book will be received at noon ceremonies by the Pan-American Union's secretary general, Dr. Alberto Lleras Camargo, on behalf of the union's director general and council.

Inspired by President Roosevelt's trip to Argentina in 1936, Oyarzun began compling the messages and signatures on illuminated pages after he affixed President Roosevelt's signature here in 1941.

Family Relationship Panel Set Tonight

A panel discussion on "How to maintain wholesome family relationships living in an apartment development" will be held at 8:15 tonight at the Kaywood Gardens Nursery School, 8714 Webster st., Mount Rainier, Md.

Col. M'Diarmid Dies; Official Of Hospital

Col. Norman L. McDiarmid, 70, superintendent of the Columbia Hospital for Women, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital after an illness of three weeks.

Col. McDiarmid

Colonel McDiarmid, who retired from the Army Medical Corps after 30 years service, came to the hospital as superintendent in July 1940.

His strenuous efforts during the war years to obtain Red Cross volunteer aides and trained nurses prevented serious curtailment of the hospital's facilities in that period.

In 1944 he was praised by Capt. Chester Wells, USN, retired, president of the hospital's board of directors, who, said the hospital was rendering an impressive and steadily expanding service.

Colonel McDiarmid was born in Toronto, Canada, and was graduated from Bethany College in West Virginia and Hiram College of Ohio. He received his medical training at the University of Cincinnati and the Army Medical School.

He was commissioned first lieutenant in the Medical Corps in 1908 and served with General Pershing during the Villa campaign along the Mexican border.

During World War I he was with the First Division of the American Expeditionary Force in France. At the end of the war he was stationed with the German occupation forces in Coblentz.

Prior to taking his post at the hospital in 1940 he was the corps area surgeon at headquarters Fourth Corps Area in Atlanta, Ga.

Colonel McDiarmid, who lived in the superintendents' quarters at the hospital, 25th and Pennsylvania ave. nw., is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice R. McDiarmid, of that address. He also leaves a son Hugh N. McDiarmid, of Vienna, Va., and a sister, Mrs. J. Warren Ritchey of Cincinnati.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Gawler funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Private burial will be held in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Edgar S. Kelley

Dallas, Tex., April 3 (AP).—Mrs. Edgar Stillman Kelley of New York City, past president of the National Federation of Music Clubs and widow of a noted American composer, was found dead in a hotel room today. Her death was reported due to natural causes.

Mrs. Kelley was here to attend the twenty-fifth biennial convention of the Federation of Music Clubs.

She married the American composer, Edgar Stillman Kelley, in 1891.

She taught piano in New York and Berlin. For many years she was a lecturer at the Cincinnati (Ohio) Conservatory. She also was director of music at Western College at Oxford, Ohio.

Robert A. Russell

Rustburg, Va., April 3 (AP).—Robert Achilles Russell, 62, former Commonwealth's attorney, and member of the Virginia House of Representatives, died early today at Lynchburg General Hospital after an illness of several months.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. in Diuguid Memorial Chapel. Burial will be in the Russell family cemetery in Campbell county.

Corpl. Henry Midkiff

Reburial services for Corpl. Henry Kyle Midkiff, USMC, 30, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd B. Midkiff of Franconia, Va., will be held today at 2 p. m. at Arlington Cemetery.

A native of Stoneacre, Va., Corporal Midkiff was killed June 11, 1945, while serving with the Sixth Marine Corps Division on Okinawa. He had attended schools in Alexandria and Monroe, Va.

He was employed for nearly seven years as a sheetmetal worker for the Virginia Roofing & Tinning Co., before he went on active duty in 1940. He had been a member of the Marine Corps Reserve since 1935.

Corporal Midkiff served two years in Northern Ireland in 1941. There he married the former Miss Betty Stewart and returned home for another year's duty here before he was sent to the Pacific in April, 1945.

Besides his parents and wife, Corporal Midkiff is survived by a 3-year-old son, Henry Kyle Midkiff, jr., three brothers and two sisters.

John M. Berdan

New Haven, Conn., April 3 (U.P.).—John M. Berdan, retired Yale English professor who taught several well-known authors, died today after a long illness. He was 75.

Dr. Berdan, who retired in 1941, taught the fundamentals of written prose and instructed such writers as Sinclair Lewis, Thornton Wilder, Donald Ogden Stewart and Philip Barry. He held the title of Emily Sanford Professor of English Literature emeritus at Yale.

Berdan was aslo instrumental in setting the style of Time Magazine. Soon after Henry Luce and Britton Hadden established the magazine, Berdan studied trial copies and advised them on style.

Rifle Exhibit Thursday

The National Rifle Association will sponsor an exhibit of shooting devices used by Olympic rifle champions at the weekly luncheon of the Washington Junior Board of Commerce to be held at 12:30 p. m. Thursday at the Burlington Hotel.

Capt. McCauley Dies Here

Funeral services for Capt. Cleveland McCauley, 63, USN, retired, will be held t 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

The captain died Saturday at the Bethesda Naval Hospital following a heart attack he suffered Friday.

He had retired in 1936 but returned to active duty in 1941. During the war, he served here on the staff of Admiral Ernest King, retiring finally in 1946.

Born in Waverly, Tenn., he was educated in the public schools there and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1908.

During World War I, he was executive officer aboard the Army transport Madawaska. From 1931 to 1933 he was naval attache at Pekin.

He lived at 2714 Olive ave. nw. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Leary McCauley, and a son, Lieut. Brian McCauley, USN, now taking postgraduate studies at Harvard.

As Conclave Closes

Dr. Agnes Wells Elected Woman's Party President

By Norma Lanum

THE National Woman's Party yesterday elected a new slate of officers headed by Dr. Agnes E. Wells of Saginaw, Mich., and passed resolutions reaffirming the group's demand for immediate action on the Equal Rights Amendment

Miss Alice Paul, founder and first chairman of the party, was elected chairman by acclaim, but declined to serve, so that she could devote her entire time to advancement of international equal rights.

She will continue as chairman of the World Woman's Party, an outgrowth of the N. W. P. She also accepted election as honorary founder and chairman of the latter. Miss Anita Pollitzer, outgoing executive chairman, was chosen honorary vice chairman.

The resolutions approved at the meeting at Hotel Washington, included a condemnation of Judge Dorothy Kenyon Frieda Miller of the Labor Department woman's bureau, and labor unions that do not see eye to eye with the Woman's Party on the equal rights issue.

The party resolved that a committee be appointed to "educate [the opposition] on the value of the amendment and secure their help in passing it."

"Unless we get labor to back us, the equal rights amendment will fall again," the resolution suggested by the Illinois branch concludes.

Another resolution adopted on the final day of the three-day national convention challenges chairmen of the Republican and Democratic parties to see that their 1948 platform pledges to support the Amendment are carried out. The woman's party also thanked the New York State Legislature for memorializing Congress to pass the amendment.

Besides Dr. Wells, the new slate of officers includes Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller of Pennsylvania, former congressional chairman, who becomes first vice chairman; Mrs. Helen Hunt West of Florida, second vice chairman; Dr. Florence A. Armstrong of Iowa, third vice chairman; Mrs. Betty Gram Swing of Connecticut, fourth vice chairman, and Pearl M. Sayre of Oklahoma, fifth vice chairman.

Also, Mrs. Mamie Sundey Mizen of New York, secretary; Mrs. Mildred Palmer and Mrs. Mabel Van Dyke, both of Washington, D. C., assistant secretaries; Mrs. Mabel Hiatt of Washington, D. C., treasurer; Mrs. Gladys H. Greiner of Maryland and Mrs. Mary C. Roebling of New Jersey, assistant treasurers.

Other honorary chairmen include Elsie Hill of Colorado, Jane Norman Smith of Vermont, Sarah Colvin of Minnesota and Florence Bayard Hilles of Delaware.

Status of Bill Outlined

AT A FELLOWSHIP luncheon which followed the business sessions Mrs. Betty Gram Swing, chief lobbyist for the party, described for the assembled feminists the status of the equal rights amendment.

She pointed out that it had just recently received a favorable report from the Senate Judiciary Committee without a dissenting vote, and she asked every woman there to make a personal appeal to her Congressman to vote in favor of the bill when it is introduced.

In her luncheon address Mrs. Catherine R. Dobbs, Ohio State Senator, asked the women to be ever watchful against losing their leadership, and urged that they pass their knowledge on to the young members.

She also defended congressional lobbyists, referring to them as "the Third House," because that's where the legislator "gains his intelligence."

Complement support for the amendment from the North Carolina delegation was promised by Mrs. John Forrest, North Carolina State chairman of the party.

At the close of the sessions Dr. Wells called for a meeting at 2 p. m. today at the national headquarters for the newly elected and outgoing officers.

Norse Women Have Gone Far With Ballots

By Lydia Van Zandt

Special to The Washington Post.

OSLO, Norway. — Norwegian women won their full franchise in 1913, seven years earlier than American women. In the small Norwegian Storting (Parliament) today there are a larger percentage of women than the United States has ever elected to its Congress. At present Norway also has a woman cabinet member, Miss Aslaug Aasland, acting minister of social affairs.

The Storting has only 150 members of which 9 are women. Only seven of these were elected to their seats. The other two, sent as alternates, have achieved their present status through illness of the incumbent.

There is one Communist woman member, Mrs. Kirsten Hansteen, whose husband was executed by the Nazis during the occupation. She follows the party line and votes with other Communist members in a bloc. Many of her fellow countrywomen excuse her because of the tragic circumstances of her husband's death and refer to her as the beautiful but dumb Kirsten.

The conservative party has only one woman member in the Storting, Miss Claudia Olsen. She wields a great deal of influence and is the only woman to become chairman of a committee.

The other five fully elected members belong to the majority labor party. One of the most outstanding of these is Mrs. Rakel Sewerlin, member of the social affairs committee, elected by the voters of the City of Oslo.

In the heart of the city the round black Storting building, which was used as headquarters by the commanding Nazi general during the occupation, presents a rather forbidding exterior but the circular chambers and the members' restaurant are bright and cheerful. Over coffee and a Norwegian pastry Mrs. Sewerlin talked freely about the problems of her country and particularly of those which affect its homemakers.

Dr. and Mrs. Max Fischer have motored to California for a vacation prior to Dr. Fischer's departure for Japan, where he will be stationed with the Army Medical Corps.

Heads Prominent List

Mrs. Truman Is a Patroness Of John Mason Brown Lecture

Mrs. Truman, Mrs. Fred Vinson and Mrs. Dean Acheson are among the patronesses for the John Mason Brown lectures on Monday afternoon, April 25 at the Mayflower. Mrs. Adolphus Staton, chairman of the Washington committee for the Frontier Nursing Service of Kentucky to which proceeds of the lecture will go, also announces as patronesses, Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. Harold Burton, Mrs. Chester Bolton, Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, Mrs. Max Truitt, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone and Mme. Draper Boncompagni. Mrs. Mary Breckinridge, founder and director, has built up the service and maintains it entirely by contributions and proceeds from benefits, given by various committees throughout the country. Mrs. Breckinridge's six cousins are active members of the Washington committee. They are Mrs. Montgomery Blair, Mrs. John S. Graham, Mrs. B. Lowndes Jackson, Mrs. Adolphus Staton, Mrs. John G. Vance, and Mrs. Arnold Wilcox, who will entertain is honor of Miss Breckinridge when she comes to attend the lecture.

Wendover, the administrative headquarters of the Frontier Nursing Service, is a cluster of log and frame cabins and barns, in a forest on the side of a mountain above the Kentucky River. There is no main highway within 70 miles and an old trail that winds along the river is the approach to Wendover. Until a few months ago, when a friend of the service donated "electricity," oil lamps and candles were the only light for nurses and secretaries alike. One of the nurse-midwives writes, "Over and over again I count up the blessings that the lights have brough to the Frontier Nursing Service. Any one who comes after dark, or very early on a winter morning, with a bad cut or burn that needs a dressing can now be attended to quickly and safely.

New members of the Washington committee include Mr. and Mrs. Paul Porter, Mr. and Mrs. J. William Herron, Mrs. Donald C. Bingham and Miss Patricia Appel.

Mrs. Harold H. Burton To Be Luncheon Honoree

MRS. Harold H. Burton, wife of the Associate Justice, will be the ranking guest at luncheon at today's honor table at the Mayflower Lounge. Others in the party, who also will be heard on the weekly broadcast from the Jelleff fashion luncheon, are Miss Bess Davis Schreiner, who will talk on plans for a legitimate theater in Washington, and Mrs. Green Chandler Furman, who will leave this week to join her husband in Guam, and Miss Jane Stafford. Mrs. Furman and Miss Stafford are both on the staff of Science Service.

On The Party Front

Round the Clock Parties Fete Emissaries Here to Sign Pact

'TWAS the day before signing and all through the town, not a hostess was idle, not even a glass. Fetes for Foreign Ministers circled the clock, as the historic occasion drew nearer and nearer. Today at 4 p. m. the North Atlantic Defense Pact will be signed in the Departmental Auditorium, and in the evening at 8 all foreign ministers, together with the Ambassadors of their countries and their wives will be the guests of the President and Mrs. Truman at a state dinner at the Carlton Hotel.

Yesterday's busy schedule started with a luncheon at the Luxembourg Legation, hosted by the Minister and Mme. Le Gallais, in honor of the Luxembourg Foreign Minister, Joseph Bech, and Mrs. Bech. Another luncheon in honor of the Foreign Minister and his wife will be held at the legation today.

Foreign Minister and Mrs. Bech were also feted during the cocktail hour yesterday. Guests were invited to the legation from 5:30 to 7 o'clock. A cocktail party was given at the Canadian Embassy from 6 to 7:30 by the Ambassador and Mrs. Wrong in honor of the Canadian Foreign Minister, Lester B. Pearson, and Mrs. Pearson, followed by dinner at the home of the Canadian Minister and Mrs. Stone.

El Salvador Minister Is Honored at Embassy

WHILE North Atlantic Embassies were bubbling over with parties honoring their foreign minister here to sign the North Atlantic Pact, most of the Latin American diplomats flocked to the Embassy of El Salvador. The occasion was a party honoring the Foreign Minister of El Salvador, Miguel Rafael Urquia and Senora Uriquia.

The Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro were hosts. Among those attending were the Brazilian Ambassador Mauricio Nabuco, the Mexican Ambassador Rafael de la Colina, the South African Ambassador and Mrs. H. T. Andrews, and the Dominican Ambassador and Senora de Thomen.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Col. and Mrs. Leigh Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris and Mr. and Mrs. William S. Culbertson.

Surprise Party Given For Miss Jane Wyatt

A SURPRISE party for Miss Jane Wyatt was given Saturday evening by her parents Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyatt and Miss Laura Belle Wyatt. The drawing room of the Wyatt home on Kalmia Road was abloom with spring flowers for the occasion.

Promptly at 8:30 guests began to arrive. Each came in costume, and the gaiety lasted till long after midnight. A buffet supper was served throughout the evening, there were games and dances.

Miss Polly Norment drew admiration for an ingenious costume called "Spring." Her skirt was edged in bedsprings, her earrings were bedsprings, and a small robin perched on the edge of her cigarette holder. Mrs. Robert Sherrod wore a lovely Chinese dress, and Mr. and Mrs. George C. Clarke, jr., came as "Field and Stream."

Others at the gala party were Graham Smallwood, dressed as King Farouk of Egypt; Mrs. Gillespie Critchell, Gallatin de Knox, Mr. and Mrs. William Pennington, Jerry Boggs, Miss Adelino Copello, Miss Betty Nicholson, Miss Harriet Johnston, Comdr. Harry Allendorfer, Mrs. Robert Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Grayson Headley and Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Whiting Wicker.

Miss Wyatt makes her home in New York City, and has not been in Washington for two months, owing to a recent foot injury. She is starting a new job in New York this week at Time and Life.

D. C. Commissioner Young Is Honored by Misses Chase

ENGINEER COMMISSIONER BRIG. GEN. GORDON YOUNG and Mrs. Young were the guests in whose honor the Misses Emily and Nannie Chase entertained a small group of the honor guests' close friends at cocktails yesterday afternoon.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After Six Months' Companionship With Man To Whom She Has Given Great Devotion and Understanding, Girl Feels Stymied in Love

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In six months' steady companionship with Dick, a bachelor in his early thirties, I have given him much kindness, comfort and understanding; and now I find myself in love.

Dick is aware of my feeling and he, too, possesses a very deep feeling for me, which he has proved in many ways, in devoted acts and sincere faithfulness.

However, the idea of settling down, of having a home and family, has never appealed to him. He isn't the marrying type, in that he likes his freedom, his stag parties, and doesn't want to be confined to any one situation. And never before has he been constant to any one girl.

Girl Is Fending With Double-Talk

DICK SAYS he is happy with me, and knows that he never will find another like me; but very recently we have discussed breaking up. This, we know, will hurt both of us; but even so, I feel that it will hurt worse, the longer the break is postponed, if he continues with the idea that he is never going to marry. Don't you agree?

At times my heart pleads with me to give him more time in which to find himself, with the possibility in mind that he may realize how much he needs me, and that it's time he settled down. Dick doesn't like the idea of breaking up any more than I do.

We have found so much companionship and understanding in each other, and he says he never will hurt me intentionally and tries so hard to make me happy. So, should I give him more time; or should I make the break now? If there was someone else in his life I would be more willing to give him up; but I am positive there is nobody else. Your advice will be greatly appreciated. B. C.

Man Is Talking Like Any Wolf

DEAR B. C.: To get down to cases, you are having an affair with Dick, and thus far he has been faithful to you, also gallant in expression of gratitude for your favors, and pretty smug about his record of constancy in this instance—something new in his case history of playing around, he seems to say. Isn't that the story in a nutshell?

Now there is talk of breaking up, which probably developed when you began to bid for love-security in relation to him; in short, when you began to ask wistfully for marriage—a social "discipline" he isn't willing to accept in relation to any girl.

With typical wolf-finesse, Dick evades the question by batting it back in another form—which leaves him in the clear, by sophist thinking. Instead of meeting the real question,—namely, will he marry you?—he cagily talks as if the question were: Do you wish to break with him or not? Or, shall the break be now or later? And with phony air of steadfast devotion and "consideration," he leaves the question to you to decide!

Drift Is Damaging To Her Personality

THIS is the wolf's classic technique in dealing with a conquest who begins campaigning for marriage, after her first fine feeling of independence has been lost in consequence of giving too much to him. It is his way of getting across that she has no strings on him and he claims none on her. Ergo, that a "break" is the only final solution of the impasse created by her hopes and his defensiveness.

Of course it may be that you initiated talk of a break, hoping thereby to challenge him into a proposal, to save the companionship. Even so, all the implications are the same. He knows you are asking for marriage and would grab at it, and he is fending craftily as aforesaid—selfishly willing to drift "as is" indefinitely, but essentially indifferent to your predicament.

So, for advice: If you have the strength to take a hint, you ought to break with him now. The longer you drift in the present arrangement, the greater the damage to your personality; and the more time lost that should be invested in promoting bona fide companionship with a reliable man, which Dick is not. Experts to Air Fashion News For Men and Women on WTOP

Five guest experts will lift the lid off the pre-Easter style bandbox to reveal what's new in clothes for both women and men, in a "You and Fashions," roundup, CBS-WTOP, Monday-through-Friday series, beginning Monday, April 4. The program will be heard from 11:15 to 11:30 p. m., with Dwight Cooke as host.

Former Powers model Elizabeth Ann Tucker, in the role of CBS modes reporter, leads off the descriptive fashion extravaganza on Monday with a first-hand report on what women are buying, and what their purchases have decreed to be tops in dresses, hats, shoes and furs in all price and quality levels. Her survey will include fashions for both men and children.

What's a-la-mode for the man will be described on Tuesday, April 5, by Perkins H. Bailey, fashion editor of Look magazine, member of the editorial staff of Men's Wear Daily, and professor of design at New York University.

On Wednesday, April 6, Mrs. Michelle Murphy, curator of costumes and research consultant on industrial design for the Brooklyn Museum, reviews the "Fashion Parade," from the dim past ages down to the present, going back into the periods when men, not women, were the center of the style vortex.

Thursday, April 7, Miss Dorothy Wallace, columnist for the Fairchild publication, Women's Wear Daily, talks on "The Business of Fashion." She will tell how styles originate, who develops them and how they are "sold" to the public.

Friday, April 9, Ralph Linton, author, professor of anthropology at Yale University, explains the "Psychology of Fashions." Professor Linton will trace changing fashions from the psychological point of view, and tell why we dress as we do.

Nervous Parents Should Avoid Upsetting Sensitive Children

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Mrs. J. B. wants to know what influence would be more powerful in the case of nervousness, heredity or environment?

"My mother was a very nervous person," she writes, "and I have always been the nervous type. On the other hand I know a little girl who is a bundle of nerves and her mother is a calm, collected person.

"I have a sweet 6-month-old daughter and she has a wonderful disposition like her father. She seldom cries. By proper training will it be possible to rear her to have poise and stability? Where does the fault lie when children do not outgrow their nervously energetic dispositions?"

This would be anybody's guess. Nerves, of course, are part of the physical body and subject to the same laws of heredity as govern all other physical features. If this child inherited nerves which reacted more keenly to all outside stimuli; and was subjected, in addition, to the type of upbringing possible to a nervous parent, one would surmise that the results woud be poor.

Also feeding has much to do with nerve stability. The nerves have to be nourished, so that proper diet and the essential vitamin and minerals are all a part of good nerve health.

You, as a nervous person, will be a poor influence on the child. You will be easily upset by ordinary circumstances. You will be full of fears, tend to scream when the child is hurt, talk too much, laugh too much, or cry too easily and be full of dire warnings about imminent disaster. This is the environment you will furnish this impressionable child.

But, as a parent who is conscious of your own disposition you should be able to conquer some of your nervousness. Don't cling to it as a measure of distinction. Give the child calm treatment; don't handle her overmuch; surround her with affection and protective care and I see no reason why she should be handicaped by nervousness.

Mrs. C. B. I feel sure you will have to have some corrective treatment before you can conceive. Ask your doctor.

About Re-Covering Folding Panel Screen

I have a three-panel mahogany screen that was originally burlap covered. I renewed the covering once with pretty wall paper and now would like to do it again but the task is a heavy one. The difficulty seems to lie in my inability to supply the correct material on which to paste the paper before fitting it back into panels. Can you help me in any way toward making a good job this next time?

E. L. S.

You could use a light weight plywood cut to the exact size of the panels. This would be a firm, hard surface which would not warp readily. A lumber yard which does mill work will have the plywood and will also cut it to specifications.

I will very much appreciate the favor if you will advise me through your column whether there is any place where one might learn how to upholster (from the beginning) furniture in either day or evening classes and the charge therefor.E. M. McK.

The Adult Education Department of the Washington Public Schools teaches a class in upholstery. There will be a new course starting about September 1. If you are interested, I suggest you register now, as they have waiting lists for these classes. The fees are nominal for District residents. Only a dollar or two as a laboratory fee.

The following recipe is sent in response to a reader's recent request for cheese cake recipes:

CHEESE PIE ROYALE

Crust

1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
⅓ pound melted butter
2 tablespoons sugar

Filling

¾ pound cream cheese
2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup sugar

Top of Pie

¾ pint sour cream
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla

Have all ingredients at room temperature (70 to 75 degrees.) Preheat oven to 350 degrees Fahrenheit (moderate). For crust, add butter and sugar to crumbs. Roll out and place in pie tin. For filling, beat eggs at low to medium speed, adding sugar, vanilla, and cheese. Fill pie crust up to three-eighth inch of top. Bake 20 minutes. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Cool. For top of pie, mix ingredients at low speed. Cover pie to crust level. Bake exactly 5 minutes at 375 degrees Fahrenheit. Decorate with nuts or coconut on top of last baking before placing in oven. Let pie cool. Chill in refrigerator before serving. Good made the day before using.

This recipe is from the booklet that came with my electric mixer.

Clothes-Pin People

The old-fashioned, non-spring, two-legged clothes-pin can serve as the foundation for a clothes-pin doll that will be great fun both in the making and for playing.

Take one of the pins—or several—and cut off the bottom with a knife or saw so that it can stand upright. Paint the whole pin with ivory-colored lacquer paint. Mark features lightly in pencil. Draw on a coat or blouse. Then paint in the face and the clothes with a fine brush or a toothpick. If you wish, you can make a flaring skirt for Miss Clothes Pin out of paper, or cloth hats for both boy and girl pin dolls are easily made from a piece of felt cut with a hole just large enough to fit tightly over the head. Thumb tacks—small size—can be used to fasten on various items of clothing.

Perhaps you would like to have a whole troop of these dolls dressed in the national costumes of different countries. Or Billy may want to have a set of soldiers or firemen. There are all sorts of possibilities. And what is most important, children themselves can plan and carry through ideas of which you never would have thought.

Men Who Enlist Are Held Entitled To Get Old Jobs

Youths enlisting in the armed services were assured yesterday that they are entitled to get their jobs back when they are mustered out.

Robert K. Salyers, director of the Labor Department's bureau of veterans reemployment rights, said enlistees and reservists called up for active duty have protection, even though the services are not drafting men at present.

He said some youths apparently have been under the impression that they have no reemployment rights unless they are drafted. But he said all those entering the armed services are protected by the Selective Service Act passed by Congress last year.

He cautioned those discharged from service to seek reinstatement in their jobs within 90 days after leaving the service.

$417,000 Jewelry Stolen, Rich Reno Widow Reports

Hollywood, April 3 (U.P.).—Detectives sought clews today in the theft of $417,000 worth of jewelry from Mrs. Eugenia Clair Smith of Reno, Nev., multimillionaire widow of William E. Smith, coffee magnate.

Mrs. Smith told police the jewelry was taken from the home of her son, William Smith yesterday.

The stolen jewelry is part of her two-million-dollar gem collection. She said the other pieces are in a Reno vault.

Since wearing the jewels at the Democratic Victory Dinner in Washington recently, she had not had an opportunity to return them to the vault, Mrs. Smith explained.

Divorces in U. S. Show Sharp Dip In Last 2 Years

There has been a sharp dip in divorces in the United States during the past two years, the Government reported yesterday. There also has been a decline in marriages.

The Public Health Service estimated there were 415,000 divorces last year, compared with some 474,000 in 1947 and 610,000 in the peak year of 1946.

The marriage rate for the past three years went like this: 1,815,000 in 1948; 1,991,878 in 1947 and more than 2,000,000 in 1946.

5 States Alerted For Bandit, 19

Reidsville, Ga., April 3 (AP).—A five-state police alert went out today for a 19-year-old Baltimore, Md., youth the state patrol reported is charged with armed robbery, auto theft and assault with intent to murder.

Patrol Sergt. J. W. Robertson identified the youth as Claude Maxwell Williams of Baltimore. Robertson said Williams' cousins, Alvin Williams, jr., and Carlos Williams, both of Reidsville, brought the charges in warrants sworn out last night.

Sergeant Robertson said Claude Williams was reported en route to Baltimore and radio look-outs were dispatched to Georgia, the Carolinas, Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D. C.

Baltimorean Killed By Miami Policeman

Miami, Fla., April 3 (AP). — Baltimore man was shot and killed today by a Miami policeman seeking him in connection with a slaying a few minutes earlier.

Deputy Sheriff Claude High identified the dead men as James Lynn Massey, 37, of South Miami, and John Eddie Burkett, 40, of Baltimore.

Patrolman Paul Lipscomb told High he shot and killed Burkett when the latter pulled a gun on him in the Black Cat Bar at the climax of a lengthy chase by police.

Independent Airlines Say CAB Plans Ruin

A proposed ruling by the Civil Aeronautics Board, expected within a week, will put "every independent airline in the country out of business," James Fischgrund, chairman of the National Independent Airline Association, charged last night.

In a discussion over radio station WWDC, Fischgrund said the CAB is considering a reinterpretation of existing regulations governing the independent companies that would have the effect of limiting flights between any two points to four each month.

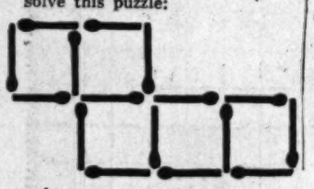
THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Here's One For Puzzle Fans to Work On

Bette Doyle of 13 Berkley st. informs me that my "under the alfluence of incohol" is part of a poem, and quotes the remainder of it—including passages like:

"Though some thinkle peep I am . . . I fool so feelish . . . The drunker I sit here, the longer I be . . . Well, anyhow, I've got all day sober to Sunday up in."

Bette says that after I get through unraveling those lines, I might be interested in trying to solve this puzzle:



As you see, there are 16 matches, forming five equal squares.

The trick is to move two of the matches, to new positions, thereby using all 16 of them to form four equal squares, instead of five.

Herblock sprung that one on me a few months ago, and I sat up all night with it.

You won't have to, because I'll have the solution in tomorrow's column.

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Is there a dry cleaner in Washington who knows how to keep lint off a tuxedo or a blue serge suit? Mine always come back looking like a large, woolly dog has been sleeping on them.

TREASURER'S REPORT

"Here is our collection of tokens, which our 2-year-old tucked away in an old wallet many months ago," writes Mrs. L. B. B. of 4504 Guilford rd., College Park, Md.

"Please forward the five tokens to Children's Hospital for us. You'll have to wait a bit for the sixth one, because our young lady ate it."

Additional contributions have been received from Josephine L. Burke, 1870 Wyoming ave. nw.; Mrs. Ralph F. Bartley, 721 Thayer ave., Silver Spring, Md.; Mary L. Partello, College Heights Estates, Hyattsville, Md.; the folks at 2811 Valley dr., Alexandria, Va. (war stamps); Mrs. Lela W. Sullivan, 315 Franklin st. ne. (more war stamps); H. I. Chase, 1726 Vermont ave. nw.; the folks at 601 19th st. nw. and Mrs. Lenna Krause, 4119 18th pl. ne.

Thanks, too, to the nine young ladies of the "Help the Needy Club" who each pay 5 cents per week in dues, and in that way collected $10 for the kids at the hospital.

The club members range in age from 9 to 12, and all go to Shepherd School at 14th and Kalmia rd. nw. Their names are Paula Alewiler, Elaine Marcus, Charlotte Frankel, Rita and Susan Finkelstein, Shirley Heiny, Carolyn Harris, Elaine Oshinsky and Barbara Saxe.

Speaking of kids who collect money for worthy causes reminds me of 7-year-old Leslie Shufer's undertaking.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Shufer of 939 Longfellow st. nw. laughed when Leslie announced that she was going to canvass the neighbors for contributions for the Washington Heart Association.

They stopped laughing when Leslie returned a short time later with $3.50 and the names of a long list of willing contributors.

MISCELLANY

Some people got rich off the Pyramid Clubs, but H. A. Willard of 1416 F st. nw. says the only thing they did for him was to take his mind back 39 years to the time he visited Egypt and saw the Pyramids . . . Don Henry's many friends will be glad to know that he arrived safely in Caracas, and leaves in a few days for a two-month tour of the Venezuelan interior . . . M. F. Cummings of 1003 Bryant st. ne. thinks that the gardening column in one of our afternoon contemporaries went somewhat afield from its subject the other day with the observation: "Perennial pants are now being offered for sale" . . . Bruce Hollihan of 100 19th st. se., wonders why the same paper referred to Herman (Coaker) Triplett as "the 1948 International League bathing champion" . . . If Triplett were a pitcher I'd suspect that he'd been sent to the showers too often . . . When Dr. and Mrs. Harold L. Foss of Danville, Pa., were in Washington recently, Mrs. Foss lost a watch which had been given to her by her husband on their 25th wedding anniversary. She put an ad in The Washington Post and the next day Fenton V. Mizelle of 321 Geranium ave., Takoma Park, Md., saw the ad and turned in the watch. He had found it in his cab (Bell, No. 227) and was told when he returned it that the keepsake had cost well over a thousand dollars . . . If they inflict a sales tax on us, and fill everybody's pockets with pennies, they ought to put in penny parking meters, such as are used in other cities. You get 12 minutes of parking time for each penny (up to five) that you insert in the slot . . . Harry Gilburt of United Features Syndicate cautioned his 4-year-old son, Johnny, "Don't gulp your applesauce so." Johnny's reply was, "I can't help it, Daddy. It's too drinky."

THERE GO SLIM AND GUSTY—I WONDER IF THEY CAN GET THAT FILM BACK HERE FROM CALCUTTA IN TIME TO SHOW THE CRAG HAG?
THE REBELS ARE REALLY THROWING METAL IN HERE NOW! I WONDER HOW LONG THE DAMMANIAN ARMY CAN HOLD THEM OFF?
THEIR PROPAGANDA CAMPAIGN IS ALMOST AS EFFECTIVE... PLENTY OF THE LOCAL FOLKS ARE READY TO JOSS US OUT AND LET THE BIG BEAR HAVE THE ATOMIC ORE!
THAT WON'T HAPPEN AS LONG AS THE CRAG HAG IS FOR US... I HOPE THAT FILM GETS BACK SOON TO KEEP HER HAPPY!
MARTY—CHRIS HAS BEEN TRYIN' TO TELL YA!
OH, YES—I WAS DISTRACTED, SENDING FOR THAT MOVIE... WHAT'S UP?
I GOT A MOVIE TO SHOW THE PRINCESS ABOUT AMERICA! I GOT IT RIGHT HERE!

B-BUT, BILL—SCHMEHL TOLD ME THAT RED LOOKED GREAT AT THE SCHOOL!
AND SCHMEHL WAS RIGHT, SHERIFF! BUT AFTER A WEEK AT THE TRAINING CAMP, THINGS CHANGED!
APPARENTLY RED THOUGHT THAT HE HAD IMPROVED ENOUGH TO MAKE THE GRADE RIGHT AWAY—OR AT LEAST BE SENT TO ONE OF OUR TOP FARM TEAMS FOR A SEASON—
BUT WHEN HE SAW HOW TOUGH COMPETITION WAS AT THE CAMP—THAT HE'D HAVE TO START AT THE BOTTOM—AND BE SENT TO SOME CLASS "D" LEAGUE—HE BEGAN TO SULK—AND QUIT TRYING!
SO NOW I'M AFRAID HE ISN'T GOING TO BE SENT ANYWHERE—EXCEPT HOME!

PENNY

THE CLASS WILL WRITE A 500 WORD ESSAY ON SOME INCIDENT THAT OCCURED OVER THE LAST WEEK-END.
MY WORD, PENNY, HAVE YOU FINISHED SO SOON?
YES, MISS SYNTAX, MAY I GO NOW?
The record was called "It's Love Again." Elsie put it on the record player and left the room. The record was cracked and it said, "its love... its love... its love... its love... its love... its love..."

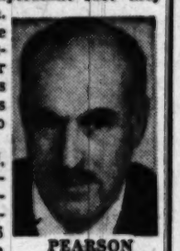
I see your folks have gone out. But since I was free anyway this evening—
But Mr. O'Malley, Mom got someone—
Naturally, I'm always available to look after you, m'boy. Part of a fairy godfather's regular duties. At no extra charge—
Mom called the college and got—
There IS a draft from somewhere. Ker-CHOO!
Hear that? Lucky I'm here with you. Someone must be breaking into the house—
But I told you, that's only—

Merry-Go-Round

Advisers See Depression In 1950-51

By Drew Pearson

There's been a lot of petty bickering between the President's Council of Economic Advisers, but there's one unpleasant fact they all agree on. They foresee definite depression in 1950 or 1951—unless immediate steps are taken to head it off.



PEARSON

The council, it will be recalled, was created by Congress in 1946 to advise the White House on how to ward off depression. And although the three members differ on a lot of things, they feel that depression can be stopped—though only by the concerted cooperation of the Administration, Congress, business, farmers and labor.

To understand the background of the Economic Council's vitally important business diagnosis, it should be recalled that for the past 100 years American economy has been riding a roller-coaster of ups and downs, inflation and deflation, of booms and busts. In the past 50 years these ups and downs have become more severe—so severe that the Politburo in Moscow is known to have based its global strategy on the theory that one more economic depression would wreck the entire American system.

Since VJ-Day most Americans have been enjoying the greatest wave of prosperity in history—for two reasons: (1) the public's unsatisfied demand for goods they could not buy during the war; (2) the cold war, which has caused the Government to pour billions into the world's economic stream.

However, the Council estimates that the long pent-up demand for automobiles, refrigerators and other consumers' goods is now just about filled, while the vast expenditures to Europe in another year will begin to taper off, so that depression will come in 1950-51.

Another factor is the psychological effect of swiftly rising prices followed by dropping prices. If OPA and inflation controls had not been thrown overboard by Congress and prices had not shot up so high, business dislocation might not be so bad now.

For, while falling prices at the moment may be healthy, yet a lot of business—especially small business—always gets hurt by falling prices. And the psychological effect of falling prices encourages depression; for people, waiting for lower prices, don't buy.

The three members of the President's Council of Economic Advisers are:

Chairman Dr. Edwin Nourse, a New Yorker, long-time member of the Brookings Institute, and generally considered the most conservative counselor.

Leon Keyserling, a native of South Carolina, former Secretary to Senator Wagner, and who has had a long experience in the Government, chiefly in the U. S. Housing Authority. A liberal, Keyserling frequently disagrees with more conservative Chairman Nourse.

John D. Clark, a native of Colorado, and former economics professor at the University of Nebraska and the University of Denver. Clark usually lines up with liberal Keyserling.

However, the Council has composed its differences to recommend a program to President Truman which it regards as absolutely essential to block depression. While all the three agree, Dr. Nourse considers the voluntary phase of the program more important, but Keyserling and Clark, though not disagreeing, would place more emphasis on the Government phase. The program which Nourse considers most important is:

Farmers—Convince farmers to grow bigger crops and accept somewhat lower support prices, thereby reducing the consumer's food bill, but continuing a reasonable return for farmers.

Business—Sell businessmen on lower profits per item, thereby getting greater volume and continued reasonable profits.

Number 9 in a Series... Hecht Co. Personalities in the News

IDA FEDERER is one person who really knows her onions . . . potatoes . . . carrots and all the foods used in the restaurant business. When she isn't juggling calories and menus . . . Ida spends her leisure time wielding a menacing but productive crocheting needle. Ida was born in Herkimer, N. Y., and came to Washington 13 years ago. She's been in the business of feeding people on a large scale for the past 25 years . . . loves to see people happy . . . knows of no better way to keep people happy than with good food.

Two Thousand For Lunch...

SAYS IDA FEDERER, MANAGER OF THE HECHT CO. ASSOCIATES' CAFETERIA

"Like homemade pies? Most people do," says Ida Federer. "And the associates of The Hecht Co. are no different from most people." That's why homemade pies are just one of the many delicious desserts served to our family of 3500. Running a private restaurant for store associates is quite a job, particularly when you have to plan breakfasts . . . luncheons . . .and once in a while a full seven-course dinner for a family as big as ours. But, Ida takes all this in her experienced, culinary stride. She and her staff, ranging from dietitians to bus boys, work with one aim in mind . . . to give Hecht Co. associates good, wholesome, balanced meals served in a tempting, modern setting. The associates' dining room at the Washington store serves over 2000 people a day. The Silver Spring and Service Building dining rooms serve the rest of our Hecht Co. family. Recently, The Hecht Co. purchased thousands of dollars worth of new equipment to further modernize already modern cafeterias. We now have the latest in steam tables, dishwashing and sterilizing machines, food mixers and refrigeration units. For everyone at The Hecht Co. . . . top management to our stock boys . . . the cafeteria is the place where good health is served up at budget prices . . . where one hears last night's bowling scores discussed . . . where one hears shop talk . . . a place of relaxation. "Whether it's a sandwich or pie a la mode," says Ida, "by serving our associates in their own cafeteria . . . we feel we are helping them serve you, the public . . . more efficiently!"
